The other day I somewhere ran across the following that isn't half bad: "We should be a great deal nearer to Christian unity if some churchmen would practice what they preach, and if others woud preach what they practice." It is a poor rule that does not work both ways. In the great majority of cases it is the former that fails to materialize: those who are loud in their profession of a certain course of action, but fail to make a practical application of it. Let us remember that the above was spoken in relation to Christian unity, a matter that is quite alive in religious circles. Now in all the denominations there are hosts of broad-minded people who have shown a wide liberality of spirit in their treatment of others. They are the silent members of our churches, those whose characters carry a great moral influence. Now if this silent contingency which we call the "salt of the earth" would only speak out, the question of church unity would soon be solved.

It is amazing what power for good the radio is developing. The following is evidence of this, for no modern invention is doing more to unify the world than radio. One of our home Sunday schools was very much interested in helping the boys and girls of China. At the expense of this school a building in China was shingled and used for Sunday school and other religious purposes. In this home school there was a young electrician who secured an amplifier and put it on the top of the radio, but connected directly to a microphone in another room. The superintendent pretended to be tuning in on the radio when suddenly he heard from a station in China. A Chinese Boy Scout was telling the story of the American Sunday school which had furnished funds for shingling their building in China. One can imagine the interest this created in the home school.

When we speak of variety we have only to look at the weather to find some perfect examples. According to the statement made in The Bulletin, and other daily papers as well, on January 4, 25 years ago, in many places of Eastern Connecticut the mercury dropped to 42 degrees below zero, while on the same date this year the lowest register in the same territory it was 20 degrees above. Now as to range in temperature on the same day of the month, you will have to go some to beat that record! This is a good illustration of variety that nature loves to revel in. Nature abominates monotony and she breaks it up at every good chance that falls into her hands, and she nowhere uses this power more recklessly than with the weather. When we are inclined to growl because it is too hot or cold, too calm or too windy, what a stupid old world this would be if all the days were exactly alike!

We ought to be very thankful that in every walk in life nature does her very best to break up a dull monotony. Suppose every person on the street you meet in the course of a single day were as homely as you are, then most of our obituary notices would be the record of suicides. But nature has done a great redemptive work in making no two faces just alike. We very seldom make the blunder in calling Bill Jones Tom Harris. It may be nothing more than a small wart on the tip of Mary Smith's nose that distinguishes her from Elmira Jenkins. In natural philosophy we are told that "nature abhors a vacuum," but just as truly does she hate duplication. Every person of keen intuitions finds interest in the faces of those with whom he comes into contact. We thank God that no two of these old granite hills that surround our city are just alike. We are thankful not to be like others and they are still more thankful than we.

Now when we take a peek at what lies just back of these faces we shall find variety carried to the nth power. It matters little whether the faces we meet are white, black, red brown or yellow, they are all of them typical of personality in varying degrees. We can rest assured at the very outset that no one color has any monopoly of intellect or character. Everyone of the nations which these colors represent runs the whole gamut of intellectual and moral power. Every one of them has its proportionate share of idiots and geniuses. If the so-called backward races had had the advantages of the Nordic race they would today be in the same class of civilization, and would be doing post graduate work in economics. We have evidence of this in our schools. The swathy children of those coming from southeastern Europe are doing just as good work in our schools as those of lighter skin. Equal advantage is turning out equality of product.

This fundamental unity of the human race is seen along other lines. Whether a little girl lives in a marble palace on Fifth avenue, New York or in the wild jungles of equatorial Africa, she loves a doll. According to Project Number, a missionary magazine, the Order of Joyful Service girls connected with a New Jersey church learned that a woman missionary in central Africa wanted a large-sized, washable, negro baby doll for demonstration purposes. After much intelligent study and labor they produced the desired article. They even equiped it with clothes for both warm weather and cold, "and everything for cleanliness and comfort." Then the beautiful toy was sent on its long journey to South Africa. Was it strange that the little girls of the dark continent who never saw a doll before were wild with delight. "A touch of nature makes the world akin."

If the writer should state his honest opinion the one thing that is arousing paganism to a careful consideration of Christianity it is not the matter of occidental theology. As an actual fact it is difficult for the oriental mind to reason after the type of western thinking, and hence the philosophy that has been read into Christianity by our colleges and theological seminaries has only mystified the eastern mind. But along other lines far more powerful contacts have been made. For instance: When a missionary doctor goes into a pagan home where there is apparently a dying child, and naturally intense grief, and the doctor with his professional scientific skill restores that little one to health, a mighty hold is made on that family, and they all will listen to the story of the great "Physician." It is not cold theological argument that will do the work, but the contact of heart with heart.

In pulpit, press and otherwise much is being said about what we ought to think, say and do, in the year on which we are now fully launched, but ought not equal emphasis to be put on what we ought not to think, say and do during the ensuing year? There are some things that ought to be looked at negatively. Don't try to pull down everything others are trying to build up. That is the chief occupation of the old grouch. He is the person who never had a constructive idea in his life. There is a newspaper in Massachusetts that has a wide circulation, one of whose former editors went on basis that "whatever is is wrong" and the editor set to work to correct the mistakes of the universe, and there were those who said that it was not an unqualified success. A crepe-hanger is respected about as much as a public hangman. Now one has a right to criticize, but don't do it for mere fun.

FROM A VEST POCKET.

Becky operated the pressing machine in her father's tailoring shop. Folks in the neighborhood said that running a pressing machine was no job for a girl, but Becky had no time to think about that. There were no boys in her family and papa could not afford to hire an assistant. As it was, the little business brought in barely enough to keep her and papa decently, so Becky operated the machine, and when business was slow she found time to cook and to attend to their three little rooms above the shop.

Today Becky was thoughtful as she felt the warm steam hiss around her and watched the arms of the coat she was pressing become sleek and flat before her. Her mind was on Aaron, whose clothes were always in faultless shape because he liked to bring them to the little tailoring shop where Becky smiled at him. Aaron's father owned the big furniture store down the street and was regarded as rich by the people of the district, who whispered that any girl would be doing well who "got" Aaron.

Becky looked up through the encircling wisps of steam as the little door of the shop clanged.

"Oh, hello, Aaron," she said, smiling at the curly-haired youth who had just entered.

"Lo, Becky." Aaron seemed excited. "Can you press this suit in a hurry? I'll want it in half an hour. I'll send my little brother Joe in for it."

"Why, sure, Aaron," she answered. "I'll start it this minute. My, but you must be in a rush."

"I sure am. S'long." He tossed the words over his shoulder as he dashed for the door, leaving Becky gazing after him in troubled surprise.

Ah! Aaron was not treating her as he used to treat her, and she knew the reason. It was that Riley girl, who didn't have to work in any tailoring shop, who wore $3 stockings and who had her hair shampooed every week in the beauty parlor. She was trying to cut Becky out!

Becky snatched up Aaron's suit with something like fury. Her personal feelings, however, could not keep her from doing a good job.

She picked up the vest, which she always left until last. As she grasped it she heard something drop from a pocket and strike the floor with a metallic ring. Aaron was leaving money in his clothes again!

On hands and knees she searched the floor around the machine. Finally she found a dime and she smiled to think how little it would have mattered to Aaron to have lost a dime. Nevertheless, after she had placed the neatly pressed suit on a hanger she carefully put the dime in the vest pocket. It was hardly five minutes later when Aaron's brother came running into the shop.

"Aaron wants his suit!" he bawled "He's got a big date. Here's the money."

"Where's Aaron going at this time of the day, Joe?" Becky asked with pretended carelessness as she handed him the suit.

"Over to Mabel Riley's house," replied Joe shortly. Becky frowned. She knew it! She stamped her foot angrily, then hastily started to work again to forget Mabel Riley.

She had pressed another suit when she felt something on the floor under her thinly soled shoe. Glancing down she beheld a shining new wedding ring.

For a few seconds she stared at it unbelievingly and then the horrible truth dawned upon her. This was the metallic object that she had heard fall from the pocket of Aaron's vest! The dime she had found might have been lying on the floor for days. She sank weakly to a little stool behind the counter. He was going to marry that Riley girl!

Fighting back the tears, she tried to think clearly. Suddenly she jumped to her feet. He couldn't marry her without the ring! He'd find out he had lost it and come back to the shop, and she wouldn't give it to him! She'd delay his marriage for a while, anyway. She would—even if it was dishonest. At that moment the door opened and Aaron came racing into the shop, worried, harassed. Grimly she bit her lip and faced him.

"Becky," he cried, "did you find a wedding ring in my suit when you pressed it?" She dropped her eyes.

"No, I didn't see any," she murmured. Aaron groaned.

"Oh, now I am in a mess!" he cried. "Pat Shane and Mabel Riley are getting married this afternoon. Nobody knows about it but me and the girl that's standing up with Mabel. I'm best man. And now I've lost the ring!" He turned and started through the door, but Becky was after him.

"No, no! Wait, Aaron! I did find it. Just a second ago. Here it is. I—I thought you were going to marry Mabel yourself." Hastily he snatched the ring from her, but not too hastily to prevent his squeezing her hand.

"You little monkey!" he cried, smiling. "You know better than that. I'm in an awful rush now. I'll be back." The door slammed. Becky danced around the counter and swung as she removed the bags from the knees of a pair of well-worn pants.—Chicago News.

How The World Is Governed

Cabinet is Real Executive in France

RUSSIAN MASSES THINK LITTLE OF OFFICE CHANGES

This is the fifth of a series of eleven weekly articles dealing with the manner in which the principal nations of the world are governed and contrasting the powers of the heads of those nations with the authority which President-elect Hoover will assume upon his inauguration.

By BATES RANEY
(Associated Press Feature Editor.)

With the approach of the presidential inauguration the thoughts of Americans who pride themselves on good citizenship turn more and more to governmental affairs, but a change of executives in Russia means little to the comrade-in-the-street or on the steppe.

Despite its extreme socialism, the government of the union of socialist soviet republics is not representative. No provision is made for an opposition, and, indeed, an opposition is not tolerated. The liberty of the individual under soviet rule is considerably less than under the old Tsarist governments.

Freedom of speech and the rights of newspapers to criticize acts of officials are definitely denied the people. The government is composed entirely of communists, although the communist party represents only 1 per cent of the population, if that much. In fact, the government today is a historic instance of an organized minority enforcing its will upon an unorganized majority.

Although Josef Vissarionovitch Stalin is nominally the general secretary of the political bureau of the communist party, he is in fact dictator of the soviet union and as such wields for greater powers even than those which President-elect Hoover will assume upon inauguration, and it is a well known fact that the American president is among the most powerful of modern chief executives of states.

The government is vested in the all-union congress of soviets, which is theoretically the supreme authority of the state. It meets once each year in Moscow. Its members are elected by a system of indirect voting in which only workers and peasants more than 18 years old can cast ballots. They are the aristocrats of Russia today as a result of the revolution which swept one privileged class from power and created another. The former aristocracy and bourgeoisie have been completely disenfranchised.

Each village is governed by a soviet which sends representatives to the volosts soviet. That in turn sends representatives to the uyezd (district) soviet. The uyezd soviets send representatives to the government soviet, and the various government soviets send representatives to the all-union congress.

In the United States the congress is checked by the executive branch (president) and by the judicial branch (supreme court) of the government. In Russia the congress of the people has no such checks designed to keep its power from becoming too great.

A Washington Bystander

By EIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—That show of remarkable longevity, Abie's show of remarkable longevit, "Abie's Irish Rose," still has a "pull" in high places.

Reduced to film presentation, it held the attention of no less a personage than Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States, until after midnight when privately produced after a dinner to the president and Mrs. Coolidge by "the general," which is the inside way to refer to Vice President Charlie Dawes.

That's quite unusual for the president. As a rule, at private first showings of the sort, he shows a homegoing itch soon after 10 p. m., but he stuck for this particular comedy throughout an eight or ten reel version still lacking its final pruning.

Pershing Laughed

General Pershing was another guest of "the general" for the show, held in the Dawes leased Washington home, which with part of its furnishings belonged to the late Senator Scott of West Virginia. The story goes that Pershing laughed so hard that he broke down a chair. Without doubt he laughed. Nobody could see that show and not laugh. It is true that a chair collapsed under Pershing, but the explanation seems to be that it had been unused in a vacant house for some years and just sort of dried out beyond the hold-together stage.

General Dawes, despite his music-loving aspect, does not force musical entertainment on his guests. Occasionally he plays himself if pressed; but special showings of new movies are more to his liking as after dinner amusement for those who dine with him. He still is highly interested in good music, however, and has twice figured in getting a Roumanian royal orchestra hotel jobs in the United States for six months at a crack. The general encountered the squad of fiddlers during his last trip to Paris and much approved of their work, particularly the Roumanian tunes in which they specialized. He got well acquainted with these fellow craftsmen before he left Paris.

Dawes Fixed Them Up

Back in the United States, the vice president got pleas from his orchestra friends to find them an engagement in this country and obliged through kindness of a Chicago hotel friend. There was trouble about getting them through the immigration bars and again with union musicians in Chicago; but General Dawes was equal to both emergencies. Later the fiddlers did another hotel tour in Washington about which little was published. Now they are back in Europe and eager for a third American invasion. They have so advised Impresario Dawes. What he is going to do about it doesn't appear as yet.

Incidentally, the Bystander has surveyed available data on men now in Washington public life without finding a musical match for General Dawes. He has heard from navy friends, however, that Rear Admiral "Big John" McDonald, now retired, was a great performer on the bagpipe.

YOUR HEALTH

WARNINGS IN USE OF LIVER

A great medical discovery always runs the risk of being misused and exploited at the expense of the public. Such is the case today with the liver and liver-extract treatment for pernicious anemia. This wonderful discovery has led to the excessive and unwarranted use of liver by large groups of people and to the well known slogan, "Eat liver for blood building." What are the scientific facts with regard to the dietary treatment of anemia?

The specific application of liver should be limited to those suffering from true pernicious anemia, and rarely used in other cases; they alone should be encouraged in the use of this treatment. Here also the caution should be sounded that it is far safer to use liver extract made up by some reputable concern than to depend upon the excessive liver consumption, which if continued over a period of time will undoubtedly lead to kidney injury. Liver is of doubtful value in other types of anemia.

Nutritional or so-called secondary anemias occur frequently, and, although often in mild form, warrant our attention. In these individuals there is a deficiency of hemoglobin, the red matter of the blood. One of the constituents of hemoglobin is iron, which the average American diet supplies in barely adequate and sometimes deficient amounts. Such is the foundation for the advertising slogan "Have you had your iron today?" When malnutrition, excessive growth at puberty, or some wasting disease has caused the hemoglobin of the blood to drop below par, we say the person is anemic and needs an extra supply of blood building foods to make good the deficiency. This usually means foods rich in iron because that is the one constituent of hemoglobin he is most likely to lack.

Foods rich in iron, such as the green vegetables, dried fruits, whole grains and nut meats, may also contain other factors that are valuable in blood building and that we are only beginning to appreciate. The discovery made at the University of Wisconsin and announced last April that minute traces of copper were essential for the utilization of iron leads us to inquire whether or not some of the foods that we have called the best blood builders contain traces of copper. An analysis of some of our common greens such as spinach, lettuce and chard shows they contain copper in small amounts. That they may also contain other valuable minerals that we have hitherto considered insignificant is evidenced by the fact that a water extract of spinach proves to be an excellent hemoglobin builder. It suggests to the housewife that she not only serve greens frequently but also make use of the water in which they are cooked.

Whatever foods may be advocated for blood building, be it liver, spinach or egg yolk, let us not lose sight of the fact that a well balanced diet containing an abundance of fruits and vegetables, milk and eggs is essential to supply an adequate number of calories and a proper amount of protein, vitamins and minerals. It is the body itself that must build the new blood, and anything that hinders its perfect functioning in any way is likely to retard the process.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

School Children at Street Crossings.

Mr. Editor: I am much interested in the movement sponsored by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins and the Women's City club to rename some of the streets of Norwich. It is a civic enterprise aimed in the right direction, answering a need of substantial benefit to the city.

I would, however, call to the attention of Mayor Robbins and to the ladies of the Women's city club to take up the matter of protection to the children who attend Broad street school. These children have to cross McKinley avenue, Broadway, and Washington street while going and returning from school, and thereby are in danger of life and limb. These streets are main traffic arteries and the number of automobiles using them during the time the children cross them on their way to and from school is always a menace to the children.

It is only a few months since the citizens of Norwich were shocked by learning of the death of a school child, Harold Raucher, while on his way from school on Broadway.

It appears to me that if police officers were placed on each of these crossings during the hour when the children use them on their way to and from school the parents of the children would be saved much anxiety. I have three grandchildren attending Broad street school and I am always conscious of the danger attending these crossings, and I am also sure that other parents feel likewise.

Arm Chair Journeys To Other Lands

By PRISCILLA RING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

CONSTANTINOPLE, (AP)—Modern improvements are—in the Turkish expression—"squeezing the soul" of the old bazaar, a meandering world of colorful booths and tiny shops that squat along narrow, cobblestone alleys covered by the same vast cobwebby roof.

Hurried tourists, however, bless the most recent of the new improvements: the "fixed price district," where the prefecture has gathered examples of the bazaar's chief wares—hammered brass, rugs, silks, embroideries, Kutaiha pottery, amber, coral and sandlewood prayer-beads. Attar of Roses and incense, and wrought silver—all dominated by a huge sign, "No bargaining here!"

Natives hold this district in as much horror as the devil does holy water, for to them the whole joy of shopping is the intricate rigamarole of bargaining. There is a fixed etiquette for the game of unfixed prices, and woe to the merchant or purchaser who slips up on any of the rules of the game.

The cardinal principle is for the customer to evince profound contempt for the article he is determined to buy and for the merchant to demonstrate abysmal despair at the idea of parting with the object which he is determined to sell. Hours of impassioned dialogue can thus be wound about even so simple a bit of merchandise as a nightcap or a donkey's blue-beaded bridle while the customer punctuates his invectives with innumerable cigarets and cups of coffee offered by the perspiring, gesticulating salesman.

At a certain point in the game the purchaser—without purchasing—must stalk out of the booth, which is the cue for the merchant to drag him back for another coffee and another scene. Finally the bargain is clinched at about one-third of the price originally demanded.

Glowing, the customer walks off with his package of incense, his bubble-bubble pipe or his nightcap, while the merchant, mopping crocodile tears, wails, "For your sweet sake, I have ruined myself. By the eyes of my two children, by the one lone tooth of my grandmother, I swear you have cheated me."

THE VALUE OF THE SOUL.

The soul. How shall I estimate the value of a soul? There are many things in this world which we value and spend our lives to gain, that we may possess for a few years or possibly days, and leaves. All material possessions and our life on this earth lasts at best for a few short years. But how different with the soul which exists for all eternity. Age after age, beyond our comprehension. This soul, God's supreme gift to man, is that part immortal given to each human being. How do we value this priceless possession? The value of which is far beyond our comprehension. Gold, diamonds and all the possessions of earth fade into nothingness when compared with the soul in value. How true the words found in Matthew 16:26: "For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? oh what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" What a vivid picture of the value of the soul expressed in a few words. It is as though on one side were placed the world and all it contains and on the other the soul. The world and all that goes with it are as nothing. Do we spend every bit of our energy to guard and treasure this precious gift. Men give their lives, strength, their all for the perishing things of this life. How carefully we guard and look to the safety of temporary possessions. They are placed in vaults and guarded by every conceivable means. There is one Who promises the safety of the soul that none may harm it. Its safety for all eternity if only given into His possession or keeping. By sin we all forfeited our birthright as Esau for a mess of pottage. Nowhere on earth was there found anything worthy to redeem it. So God in His finding no treasure worthy on earth takes heaven's choicest, God's only Son as so beautifully expressed in John 3:16, "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him shall not perish, but have everlasting life."

How simple, how plain, the promise. Why, O why, does not every human being place this precious possession in the safe keeping of the creator and Lord of all. The one who has given us our all and after our rebellion given His Son. Can we still reject such great love, such sacrifice? Should not our love and trust far exceed that of a child for a parent? May each heart give into the loving care of their Heavenly Father this priceless possession that not only for all eternity but also during the changing scenes of this life and its uncertainty we may rest peacefully and securely in Him who is our all for time and eternity. No other can do for us or be to us what He can and will if we will only do our part. Let us trust Him, fully and say with Paul, "For me to live is Christ."

May each one realize the true value of his soul and be worthy the great love and sacrifice in a small degree. Our very best is very small in comparison to what Christ has done for us. May we strive to give Him our very best during the coming year.

Give of your best to the Master,
Give of the strength of your youth;
Throw your soul's fresh glowing ardor
Into the battle for truth.

Give of your best to the Master
Give Him first place in your heart;
God His beloved Son gave
Gratefully seeking to serve Him,
Give the best that you have.

Give of your best to the Master,
Naught else is worthy His love;
He gave Himself for your ransom,
Gave up His glory above;
Laid down His life without murmur,
You from sin's ruin to save;
Give your hearts adoration,
Give Him the best that you have

Burgess Bedtime Story

The Unknown Neighbor
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Old Mother Nature doth arrange
Some folks' affairs in ways most strange.
—Peter Rabbit.

For a long time Peter and Mrs. Peter sat side by side, asleep. They were a little way down the hall of the old home which once had been the home of Johnny Chuck's grandfather, in the middle of the dear Old Briar-patch. Outside a great storm raged and howled. It was still raging when Peter awoke. He hopped up into the entrance to look out, but he was soon glad to retreat. Little Mrs. Peter awoke. "My," said she, "the storm is getting worse, isn't it?"

Peter agreed that it was. "Let's go down into Old Mr. Chuck's bedroom," said he. "We may as well make up our minds that we shall have to stay inside for some time. There is more room down there."

Little Mrs. Peter accepted this suggestion and followed Peter down to Old Mr. Chuck's bedroom—so far down that Jack Frost never could pinch them there. It was a good, comfortable room. Peter was the first one in. It was dark down there. As it is his way, he at once began to inspect that little room. Suddenly he put his foot, or rather his front feet, on something dome-shaped and hard and fairly smooth. He knew instantly it wasn't a stone. He jumped back, for he was startled, and when he did this he bumped into little Mrs. Peter.

"What is the matter with you, Peter? Why don't you look where you're going?" she demanded little bit crossly.

"Excuse me, my dear! Please do excuse me! You see, I was startled," said Peter. "I stepped on something queer."

"What was it?" asked little Mrs. Peter.

"That is just what I want to know," replied Peter, edging forward a little.

Mrs. Peter joined him, and together they examined the curious thing Peter had stepped on. "It's the shell of a turtle," declared Peter after a while. "It's the shell of a Box Turtle. It is shut up tightly. Now I wonder how that came down in here. I wonder who could have left it here and what they did it for."

Timid little Mrs. Peter scratched her long ear with a long hind foot. Then she scratched the other long ear with the other long hind foot. "I've just thought of something," said she. "I mean, I've just remembered something."

"What?" demanded Peter.

"Why, Slowpoke the Box Tortoise was over here in the dear Old Briar-patch for several days late in the fall," said she. "I saw him eating toadstools one day. Do you suppose he could have come down in here and died? Tell me, Peter, is that shell empty?"

But this was something Peter didn't tell her. The bottom shell was closely shut against the top shell at each end. There was no way of telling whether that shell was empty. At least, there was no way for Peter Rabbit to tell. But Peter was doing some thinking. He had remembered something. He had remembered that all the members of the Turtle family—like the members of the Snake family and the Frog family and the Lizard family—hibernate. That is, they sleep all winter. "My dear," said he, "do you know what I believe?"

"What do you believe?" asked little Mrs. Peter.

"I believe," replied Peter, "that this is Slowpoke himself, and that he is right inside this funny little house of his, fast asleep, but just as much alive as you and I are. Instead of digging a hole for himself, he saved himself the trouble by coming down in here. I wish he would wake up, so that we could ask him. Well, we don't mind having him for a neighbor."

Peter was right. It was Slowpoke the Box Tortoise, and he had gone down in there to sleep for the winter. It wasn't the first time he had made use of such a comfortable underground house.

APPEALS FROM FINE FOR SLANDERING OFFICER

Found guilty of directing slanderous remarks at Police Officer John Carroll, Stanley Walenda of No. 566 North Main street, was fined $15 and costs in the city court Friday morning. He took an appeal, through his counsel, Attorney Thomas J. Kelly.

Walenda has been arrested twice for alleged violations of the liquor law. Flu Creating Phenomenal Demand for Vicks VapoRub

Although the flu itself is not so serious as in 1918, authorities stress the importance of taking every possible precaution for fear of the complications which invade the weakened system after a flu-attack.

They urge, especially, prompt treatment of every cold, as colds lower the body resistance and make it easier for flu or pneumonia to get a foothold.

That the public is heeding this warning is indicated by the phenomenal demand for Vicks VapoRub, the famous external treatment which leaped to fame almost overnight during the 1918 epidemic. In spite of tripled capacity, the Vicks laboratories are once more operating night and day, and 375,000 jars are now being produced every 24 hours.

CAREY SAYS GARDEN CORPORATION WILL STAGE BIG FIGHT IF POSSIBLE

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Negotiations to carry on the last fight Tex Rickard scheduled, after appearing to be headed for the rocks, seemed safe and headed for the port of Miami Beach tonight.

With William F. Carey, vice president and former right hand man of the late promoter, at the helm for the first time, the main deck of the Garden teemed with activity designed to land Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling in the ring in the southern resort on February 27.

One half of the match is safe. Carey announced after a long distance conversation with "Pa" Stribling, father-manager of the Georgia youngster. Tonight Carey headed for Boston to talk definite terms with Sharkey and the latter's manager, Johnny Buckley. Upon the outcome of this confab depends the fate of the match.

With no legal contract left over by Rickard as a basis for negotiations, Carey undertook to straighten out the tangle over formal terms and financial agreements. So far as Stribling is concerned, any arrangement the Garden officials make is satisfactory, Carey said, emphasizing that the Georgian desired first of all to go through with the match, even at some sacrifice. Sharkey, who was understood to have been guaranteed $100,000 by Rickard, may be more difficult to swing into line.

Jack Dempsey probably will handle the actual reins of promotion, if Carey succeeds in completing the business arangerments. The former champion had a long talk with the man who now seems to have taken over complete command of the Garden destinies, at the end of which Carey, impressed by Dempsey's business sagacity, declared the latter would be a good man to put in charge at Miami Beach.

Dempsey promised to help in any way desired, but gave no further indication of his own fighting plans. The fact that Dempsey is financially interested in the Miami Beach Kennel club, where the arena for the match was to be erected, is a factor in the situation. Control of this site passed from Rickard's hands at his death and is one of the difficulties involved in going ahead with the bout.

"If it is possible, the Madison Square Garden corporation will stage that fight," Carey said. "I will be very happy if we can put it over, if only for the sake of Rickard's memory. However, we cannot say we have the match made until we have the fighters."

The search of Rickard's papers today gave no indication of any agreement under which the Miami Beach chamber of commerce agreed to underwrite the contest, as was originally intimated. Neither were any contracts discovered involving Sharkey, Stribling or Dempsey, who had told Rickard he would fight once more in 1929.

Mack After Bout For Boston

BOSTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Convinced that the Madison Square Garden corporation would not stage the Sharkey-Stribling bout at Miami beach on February 27, Promoter Eddie Mack, of the Boston Garden today started negotiations to move the heavyweight fight to Boston.

Reports emanating from the Boston Garden stated that Sharkey has reached an agreement with Promoter Mack and that the latter expected to have equal success in obtaining Stribling's consent to perform in Boston.

According to Boston Garden officials Sharkey and Stribling would draw about $200,000 in their new sport palace which seats about 20,000. Both fighters have been offered a percentage of the gate, which Mack said would net them almost as much as they would receive if the bout were staged in Miami.

Sharkey has already expressed his preference for meeting Stribling in Boston rather than in Miami or any other boxing center, with the exception of New York. It was pointed out that Mack and Stribling were friends of years' standing and the latter would not hesitate to fight Sharkey in this city if the terms were satisfactory.

FINISHERS MAKE FIRST ATTEMPT AT SHOP BASKETBALL

The first attempt of a Norwich firm to put out a basketball team is seen in the United States Finishing Co., represented by the Peerless Finishers. This is noted by some as the foundation in the not distant future of an industrial basketball league in Norwich, similar to the baseball league of the same name, which has proved such a hit with local fans.

The Peerless Finishers have lost their only two starts, those to the C. F. G. five and have therefore been set back considerably in any city title aspirations this year, but it is recognized that the makings of a strong team is there and time may bring a fast team.

Lack of a suitable playing surface has handicapped the Finishers but they are using Parish hall, Taftville when available both for practice and home games. There are several boys in shops in the city who withcut doubt want to band together into teams but have no floor upon which to practice. The Finishers have started something along industrial basketball that may, in time, prove a big thing.

Tonight the Peerless quintet plays its third game at Noank, meeting the Noank Crushers. The local boys will lineup with S. Finn at center, Archibald, Walter Dabrowski and P. Finn at forwards and Lefty Dugas, Long and McNeil at guards. Tominich, star center, is on the sick list but is expected back in shape shortly.

This evening at the Y gym the Y seniors tackle a worthy foe in the Middletown Y, a team they will probably have to meet again later on in the year when the serious business of state Y championships begins. The locals beat Middletown, 30 to 24 early in the season in a tight game at Middletown which was not decided until right up to the finish.

The locals tonight will present their strongest cast that won six straight games before its double defeat on New Years. However, Coach Howard Demarest feels that his men have completely recovered from the effects of those games and will be in top condition for tonight's battle.

In the preliminary tonight the Y Emps meet the Baltic Bantams in what is expected to be a hard-fought encounter. The preliminary starts at 8 o'clock.

JIMMY M'LARNIN WHALED JOE GLICK IN SLASHING TEN ROUND BATTLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Fighting in his "lucky" ring, Jimmy McLarnin, blue-eyed Irish lad from Vancouver, stepped back among the top notchers tonight by whaling Joe Glick, tough Brooklyn lightweight, into defeat in a blood-tingling ten round battle in Madison Square Garden. The stirring struggle, before a capacity crowd of over 19,500 re-opened the garden to boxing after the death of Tex Rickard.

Some Puncher.

The baby-faced Celt, cool as ever, lightning fast and deadly with both fists, was the same punching terror New York has known in the past, apparently fully recovered from his recent technical knockout at the hands of Ray Miller in Detroit.

The Williamsburg tailor, ranked as the outstanding lightweight contender and a two-fisted wildcat at close quarters, stole the play in the first round, rallied in the eighth at his forte and battered Jimmy in the tenth session.

In the other seven rounds McLarnin had a clear margin. There were no knockdowns and the decision of the two judges was unanimous.

Jim Has One and One-Half Pounds Edge.

McLarnin, who has outgrown the lightweight division entered the ring at 137½ pounds while Glick weighed 136.

For a round McLarnin let Glick set the pace and then went to work in earnest. For a round or two it seemed that Glick was to go the knockout way of Sid Terris and Phil McGraw, the Irish lad's chief conquests in the ring and then McLarnin lashed both garden ring. Joe was feinted into leadhands to chin or body. One smashing right hand to the chin staggered Joe in the second round.

McLarnin never slackened until the eighth. He treated the New York contender to a thorough boxing lesson.

Glick Rallies.

Glick rallied in the eighth, whipping right uppercut to Jimmy's head, traded with him in the center of the ring, and turned the tide with solid smashes to the body.

Jimmy came back in the ninth to win by a shade but again in the tenth Glick slugged it out while the packed house howled. McLarnin was groggy and battle-spent at the close but still fresh enough to trade punches with Joe after the final bell.

Tribute For Rickard.

Before the main bout was staged, the garden lights were dimmed and almost 20,000 fight fans stood with bowed heads for a minute in silent tribute to the late Tex Rickard, builder of the garden, as a trumpeter sounded "Taps" from the promoter's empty black-draped, private box. Jack Dempsey, cheered steadily for ten minutes, stood in the ring while the veteran announced, Joe Humphreys, delivered an eulogy. Dempsey left for Boston after the bouts to aid William F. Carey, vice president and new power in the garden affairs, in the signing of Jack Sharkey to a contract to fight Young Stribling in Miami Beach, February 27th.

Flowers Wins.

Bruce Flowers, Negro lightweight from New Rochelle, N. Y., scored a technical knockout over Eddie Guida, promising New York youngster in the ninth round semi-final.

Flowers weighed 137½, Guida 134.

ACADEMY FALLS BEFORE PUTNAM HIGH IN OPENING GAME, 32 TO 13

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 11—The Noyes coached quintet of Putnam high school tamed the Wildcats of Norwich Free Academy here tonight in a one-sided contest in which they emerged victorious by a score of 32 to 13. The Academy five under the direction of Capt. Aime "Buck" Lacroix maneuvred about the court in the early stages of the game displaying excellent passwork and advanced all indications that the game would be close and perhaps would be a victory for the visitors. However, Carmen Lee, flashy Putnam forward, proved to excel above all and soon his keen eyes and strong arms started the score on the upward trend, crashing the five man defense plan of the Wildcats. Putnam finished the first eight minutes of play with the score 9 to 1 in their favor. A minute rest failed to instill the much pep and vim into the Norwich boys as the Noyes coached group continued to display their exceptional skill. Leo retained his early speed and scored several field goals in the second quarter. A feature of the first half was the great number of foul points chalked up by the Academy. Out of their total score six points were made from the field, while the rest being made on foul shots.

Stevens Scores

Stevens was the first Academy player to score, when a wild throw favored with a bit of Rose City luck directed the ball through the loop. Fagan, who was shifted about in the lineup twice from center to right forward tossed the ball into the net on two successive occasions and succeeded in scoring one foul point. Swertsburg was removed from the lineup early in the game, when he failed to show results expected by him. Armstrong fulfilled his berth at left guard and poled two foul points.

Cody on Sidelines

Capt. Walter Cody of the Putnam veteran team was forced to remain on the sidelines because of a recent illness from which he is recovering. Despite his absence the Putnam players ably displayed all that was wished of them tonight. Shann was second highest scorer, while Sabin and Marion proved to be strong links in the human chain that brought about the overwhelming defeat upon the strong Academy team. Capt. Buck Lacroix returned to the game in the remaining minutes of play and attempted to spur his men on, yet they succeeded in scoring only three points, which were foul shots. A large delegation of the Academy student body made the trip to Putnam and when combined with the Putnam group of anxious rooters filled the large gymnasium to its capacity. The Academy defeat is the fifth straight victory for the Putnam team.

DANIELSON TOWNERS TRIM CLINTON GERMANS, 49-24

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 11—The Danielson Towners defeated the Clinton German five 49 to 24, in a very clean and fast game of basketball and a game much more interesting than what the score would indicate. Although the Germans played hard every minute they just could not stand the fast pace set by Danielson. At times Danielson completely baffled their opponents by their clever passwork which was by far the best of the season and which brought hearty applause from the fans.

Danielson took the lead in the early part of the first half and held it throughout, although being threatened several times in the early stages of the game by the Germans.

The first half ended with the score 22-15 in Danielson's favor, after two very neat shots by Williams and Gallup. The nearest the German team came to tying the score was at the start of the second half when, with a sudden spurt, they made two baskets, making the score 22 to 19, but then Danielson settled down and gradually pulled away from their opponents and took everything in their own hands, winning the game 49 to 24. On the whole, this was a very interesting game to watch and from the manner in which Danielson is improving week after week, they are going to make the best of teams step to defeat them before the season ends.

Pop Williams and Gallup played fine games for Danielson while special mention should be made of Godreau, who held T. Battes, one of the original Boston Whirlwinds to one basket and a foul.

Next week Danielson will play the great Sacred Heart team of Lowell, Mass., which is touring New England and has conquered such teams as Plymouth, Mass., and Philadelphia Colored Giants. This will be one of the big attractions of the year for Danielson.

JIMMY BYRNE WINS UNIMPRESSIVE DECISION

BOSTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Jimmy Byrne, Louisville heavyweight, gained an unimpressive victory by outpointing Frankie Wine, a crude youngster from Montana, here tonight in the Boston Garden's ten round feature bout. Byrne weighed 193 pounds, 13 more than his opponent.

The ten round semi-final bout, which closed the show, ended abruptly in the seventh round when the referee disqualified Johnny Jadick, of Philadelphia, for holding and awarded the decision to Louie "Kid" Kaplan, former featherweight champion.

PUTNAM FANS BEHIND JACK CRONIN IN BASKETBALL FUSS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 11—Jack Cronin, Putnam basketball player, found many supporters tonight in Putnam fans who have seen him perform, against charges of unsportsmanlike play from Danielson. Cronin plays with the Armory five in the Southern New England basketball league. It is claimed that Cronin, in knocking Lague of Danielson down in a fracas, was doing so only to protect a teammate, the smallest player on the floor, who had been treated roughly by Danielson players. President A. Fulkerson of the league has issued a call for an early league meeting to settle the protest that Danielson has entered.

PROBABLE GRAND JURY ACTION IN BOSTON SCANDAL

BOSTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Possibility of grand jury action in the Sunday baseball scandal in this city, was seen tonight in the announcement that Attorney-General Joseph E. Warner and District Attorney William J. Foley, with their assistants, would confer on the case tomorrow, probably at the state house.

The attorney-general's office has been investigating charges made at the hearing of the Boston finance commission that a $30,000 list of contributors to the Outdoor Recreation league, sponsors of the Sunday sports bill, filed with the secretary of state was false. It was charged that the contributions were in reality made by Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves.

Attorney-General Warner said today that four persons whose names were identical with those on the list of contributors filed with the secretary of state, have denied that they contributed to the Sunday sports fund. One of these, he said, was Harold Hathaway, of Taunton, former law partner of the attorney-general. He declined to reveal the names of the other three persons mentioned.

Gerald Callahan, assistant attorney-general, who is assigned to the investigation today interviewed George R. Hunt, member of a Boston advertising firm, to whom the Outdoor Recreation league paid $5,376 for services during the last political campaign. Hunt was accompanied by counsel, and the conference lasted about an hour and a half. None of the parties concerned was willing to reveal the nature of the conference. Callahan also interviewed Frank Imhof, of Boston, who was listed as having contributed $500.

"SMITHY", HUNH-BACK PROGRAMME SELLER, IS DEAD

A familiar figure at Bay State meetings at the Fair Grounds track in other years, the hunch-backed programme seller, is dead. He died a few weeks ago, and a resolution on his death was drawn up at the meeting of the Bay State circuit stewards Tuesday in Springfield.

"Smithy", as he was called, was a familiar figure all over the Bay State or Grand circuit races.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The Coast Guard Cadets in New London meet the Webb Institute of Naval Architecture tonight. The Cadets are bringing some good college teams to New London and only the other night lost a hard-fought game to Providence college, a strong five.

There is quite a little discussion, pro and con, concerning the new ruling at the Y gym, whereby the end walls are off-side territory. No doubt, this is a good insurance against injury but it also slows up the game considerably. The Y gym is none too large anyway.

High school basketball hasn't been started long enough yet to get a good line on the teams. They all appear to be able to hold their own and in a week or so a better line on them will be had.

Fishers Island this winter seems to be quite a busy basketball place. With three or four teams operating the natives there are taking kindly to the sport.

Now that the campaign is approaching the half-way mark fans can begin to think about the local Y team's chances in the state Y tournament. Tonight the Seniors will be pitted against a team that always has a lot to say about where the title rests each season, Middletown, and should Howie Demarest's men survive this test to add it to the rst six starts of the year then fans will have good reason to believe the Rose of New England will be ably represented in the title chase.

The Emps have lost considerably now that the Academy has started operations. Coach Conklin has quite a job on his hands to rebuild the local team to its usual standard and so that it will be a contender for the Eastern Connecticut Intermediate championship, as in 1928.

The Willimantic Trade school, recently opened, has a basketball team. The other night, playing against New Britain Trade's quintet, the Thread City boys received quite a jolt, losing 66 to 6. Tubbs, a local boy, played at a guard position and made a foul shot. The score at half time was 32 to 1.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Thirty or more local girls will appear in the "Norwich Follies," which will be presented the entire week of January 28th in conjunction with the regular bill of Paramount vaudeville, as the feature attraction at the Palace theatre.

These girls, over 16 years of age, will be selected carefully in keeping with the same high standard in which the Follies have been presented in all the large cities over the "big time" route. No attraction which has been brought to the Palace theatre has created the widespread interest prevalent in the announcement of the coming of the Follies to this theatre. Rehearsals will start shortly under the direction of Tom Linton, former producer of musical comedy and other big feature acts. The Follies is a high-class presentation along musical comedy lines, which carries in addition to an excellent company of professional entertainers, special scenery and wardrobe as well as a most complete equipment for artistic lighting effects.

Every girl who applies will be given every opportunity to display her talent—whether she can sing or dance she will be carefully rehearsed under the eye of a capable director for one week—followed by a week of practical experience under ideal conditions. Everything will be furnished for her, such as costumes, make-up, etc. without costing her a cent. Beautiful tokens will also be presented to all the aspiring young misses who enroll and take active part, this as a mark of appreciation of their efforts and co-operation.

Any young lady who would like to enroll may do so by calling the manager's office at the Palace theatre any day from now on between 2 and 4 or 7 and 9.30 p. m. in person. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Lon Chaney donned his first false moustache in eleven years; studied several days in a hospital to emulate the actions of a paralyzed man, and mastered the intricate art of sleight of hand to be able to perform the feats required by his latest screen role.

This odd form of preparation was necessary in filming "West of Zanzibar," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's vivid drama of the African jungles, in which Chaney comes Sunday to the Palace theatre for four days.

Chaney plays the role of "Dead Leg Flint," a sinister "white voodoo" and former stage magician, who, paralyzed from the injuries he received in a fight with the man who had robbed him of his wife's affection, trails his enemy through the wilds, terrorizing a tribe of savages with his strange "magic" and eventually accomplishing a fearsome revenge that turns about and destroys him.

A complete replica of an African jungle was built at the studios for the picture. Tropical plants were made to grow by artificial heat. Several hundred natives take part in weird voodoo ceremonies, wearing African "devil masks" and other strange accoutrements, and a number of spectacular exhibitions of mystery enhance the dramatic situations.

In the earlier part of the picture, while he is enacting the stage magician, Chaney gives an elaborate sleight of hand performance, including the sensational "fire eating" trick.

A notable cast surrounds Chaney in the new production. Lionel Barrymore plays "Crane," the enemy whom he trails through the jungles, and Mary Nolan is seen as the heroine, supposed by Chaney to be his enemy's daughter until, in the dramatic climax, he finds that she is his own child. Warner Baxter plays the romantic lead as the renegade physician who finds regeneration in his love for the girl. Kella Pasha, Jane Daly, Roscoe Ward and many others of note are in the cast.

Tod Browning, who directed Chaney in the "The Unholy Three," "The Road to Mandalay" and other notable successes, directed this production.

A Russell Conwell Moving Picture At Y. M. C. A. Sunday

"Johnny Ring and the Captains Sword" will be shown in a special feature moving picture in the large gymnasium of the local Y. M. C. A. on the coming Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

This is a true and thrilling story of the Civil War, dealing with Russell H. Conwell, then an atheist, and his orderly, Johnny Ring.

Enlisting in Captain Conwell's company, Johnny proceeds to read his bible following his habit at home but he was forbidden to do so.

Later, Johnny, after braving extraordinary dangers to save his captain's sword, is killed. Ultimately Captain Conwell is severely wounded and in the long hours of pain and agony following finds his God and goes forth with faith and determination.

The good that Dr. Conwell did during his life afterwards cannot be adequately told. His famous lecture "Acres of Diamonds" was listened to by millions all over America, and from the proceeds of this lecture he made possible the education of thousands of young people, spending millions of dollars in doing so.

This picture story is not true but most gripping and carries with it great inspirations.

To this service the public fourteen and over are invited.

Broadway Theatre

Love under the tropic moon—grim shadows of the money-hungry white man—fantastic scenery; far flung, gorgeous, but terrible—a thrilling drama of a dying race.

These factors all contribute to make W. S. Van Dyke's production, "White Shadows in the South Seas," which comes tomorrow to the Broadway theatre, a picture that is human, natural and different. The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production soars to a new high level of popular interest.

Van Dyke has taken an idea; namely that the white men, wherever they find their way around the world, bring with them a shadow which when thrown over primitive races results in disease, destruction and death for the simple savage. On this new but simple theme he has woven a screen drama, violent and terrible but tragically beautiful.

The story opens with Monte Blue as Dr. Lloyd, a beachcomber physician, salvaging the lives of native pearl divers on a South Sea island. These natives, urged on by the white man's cupidity, dive to great depths in search of the elusive mussels, and as a result are dying out rapidly from the tremendous pressure. Lloyd finds in his own maimed heart a great pity for these simple islanders.

This pity earns him enmity of the renegade whites on the island and he is shanghaied aboard a peatship. After all others except himself have died, the ship is wrecked on a lonely uncharted atoll and Lloyd is cast ashore.

After many hardships he finds a native village which has never seen a white man and the natives take him to their heart. It is his love for little Fayaway, the daughter of the chief, and his determination to keep her and her people away from the contaminating influence of his fellow whites which make the picture a mighty epic of the hearts of men as well as of the beauties of tropical nature.

The photography has deservedly been declared the most beautiful scenes of the South Seas ever filmed and due to Director W. S. Van Dyke the story moves rapidly to a dramatic conclusion.

Breed Theatre

Never has Corinne Griffith appeared to greater advantage than in the role of Miriam, a girl of easy virtue but with a heart of gold and a soul above her sordid surroundings, who not only rises to great heights herself, but also uplifts the man she loves in "Outcast," her second First National starring picture under her new contract with that organization. This widely-heralded picture, directed by William A. Seiter, will be first shown in our city at the Breed theatre tomorrow night.

The stellar role made famous on the stage by Elsie Ferguson over a decade ago when the celebrated Hubert Henry Davies play had its Broadway opening in New York and afterwards toured several important cities, calls for real character delineation and gives Miss Griffith an opportunity for tremendous emotional depths contrasted with lighter moments, which bring into play her keen comedy sense.

"It is roles such as Miriam," says Miss Griffith, "that are always my favorites, because of the essentially human quality about them and also the opportunity for contrast or shading. Certain pictures gain their chief entertainment value through fast movement, or spectacular scenes with stunendous settings or the suspense of one thrill after another, and so on, but the stories in which I find keenest joy in my work, are the ones which stress the gradual development of a character.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(AP)—Enlarged shipments of wheat both from Argentina and Australia causing Liverpool quotations to weaken did much today to pull the wheat market here down. Besides, profit-taking sales on the part of recent buyers of future deliveries of wheat and corn alike was much in evidence.

Closing prices for wheat in Chicago were unsettled, 5-8c to 1 1-8c net lower. Corn and oats finished unchanged to 1-4c off, and provisions at 2c to 12c advance.

Nearly 10,000,000 bushels of wheat were shown today to have come out of Argentina and Australia in the last week, curtailing to that extent the needs of other countries for wheat from North America. Word also was at hand that Argentina is offering wheat more freely to Europe at lower quotations. These circumstances apparently went far toward explaining persistent refusal of the Liverpool market to respond to advances that have taken place here, and were also taken as a reason why export demand for wheat today from North America lacked volume. Meanwhile new investment based on prospective farm relief measures failed to develop fresh vigor.

Fears expressed in some quarters that a cold wave looked for tonight would inflict additional damage on domestic winter wheat led to considerable buying at times, but not enough to bring about more than a moderate rally in prices. In this connection, one of the foremost private crop experts said today that soft wheat territory which suffered severely from winter-killing last year is again experiencing trying conditions; with plant growth smaller than normal and with many fields under an ice-pack. He added that freezing and thawing have continued longer than is good for the crop, and that prospect of another sub-zero visitation upon fields already in this shape furnished reason for apprehension.

Corn prices held up much better than wheat. Speculative bulls were credit wheat. Speculative bulls were credited with giving the corn market support on setbacks. Moisture needed for Argentine corn growth was again reported as below normal, but on the other hand Argentine clearances of corn for the week were larger than expected, 3,104,000 bu. Oats were easier, influenced chiefly by the action of other grain.

Provisions were responsive to upturns in the value of hogs.

GROTON

CATHOLIC PASTOR ADVANCED TO NEW CANAAN PARISH

The pastorate left vacant by the death of Rev. Pliny F. Cooney was filled this week by Bishop Nilan. Rev. William J. Fox will leave the Sacred Heart church in Groton to take charge of St. Aloysius' church, New Canaan. Father Fox is a native of Waterbury and received his early education in the schools of that city. He is an alumnus of Holy Cross college, Worcester, being prominent in the athletic life of that institution while a student there. His philosophical studies were made at Holy Cross. After finishing he took up his theological course at St. Thomas' seminary, Hartford, and remained until his ordination to the priesthood in St. Joseph's cathedral, Hartford, July 26, 1904, the ordaining prelate being the late Rt. Rev. Michael Tierney, D. D. then Bishop of Hartford. His early years in the sacerdotal service were spent in St. Charles' parish Bridgeport, and St. Mary's parish, Derby. His longest period as an assistant saw him in St. Peter's in Hartford. During his ten years there he became widely known throughout the city for his genial qualities. He was assigned to Groton in 1919 as pastor and has remained in charge of the Sacred Heart parish until the present. His devoted work for religion in the town on the Thames will make his departure regretted. The people rejoice, however, in his promotion and feel that he will be an able and efficient successor to Father Cooney.

STOCK MARKET WAS ACCELERATED BY CURRENTS OF BUYING AND SELLING

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Prices again wavered between cross currents of buying and selling on the stock market today, which quickened the pace of trading to the fastest rate since Monday.

An unsettling factor was a rise in the call money rate from 6 to 7 per cent in the late afternoon, which put an abrupt end to the impression which had been gaining ground in some quarters that bankers predictions of an average rate of 7 per cent for some time to come were unduly pessimistic. The rise was attributed to withdrawal of funds for week end requirements.

The steel shares stood out as pillars of strength in the uneven market. They were heavily bought as result of the striking vitality of the industry disclosed by U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage report yesterday. A wide assortment of issues, however, in which motors, food, merchandising shares and a number of the sterling dividend payers were prominent, turned heavy, particularly at the close, when the higher money rate inspired week end profit taking.

Total sales aggregated 4,242,400 shares, which was about 240,000 more than yesterday.

Maintenance of a 7 1-2 percent rate for time loans, an abnormally high rate for this time of the year, and new bond offerings this week totalling less than $18,000,000, little more than half of last week's total and about one-seventh of the total for the like week of a year ago, were regarded as rather gloomy commentaries on the credit situation. Commission houses were almost unanimous in advising their customers to keep their accounts in a liquid condition and to extend their holdings with care.

While it has been hoped that another sharp break in the market would be unnecessary to improve the credit situation, there is a growing disposition in Wall street to believe that many investors are awaiting lower prices to buy, and that only a substantial drop will bring them into the market and cause heavy outright purchase of stocks now carried on margin.

There was little of moment in the day's industrial news. Firmness of the copper market was reflected in an increase in brass ingot prices, and further hardening of scrap metal prices was reported. A. M. Byers Co. reduced its prices on welded pipe for the first time in about 6 years, due to savings in production costs.

Some of the utilities made sharp gains, under the stimulus of the announcement last night of the new utilities holding company sponsored by J. P. Morgan & Co. General Gas & Electric B jumped 17 points, while Commonwealth Power rose about 10 points to a new record price.

In the steels, U. S. Steel was especially in demand, as an extra disbursement of some sort is expected as a result of the unusual mill activity and the recent $26,000,000 tax refund. The issue rose nearly 5 points, touching 168 3-4. Ludlum gained nearly 8 points. Bethlehem made further improvement, as resumption of dividends on an annual basis of $4, or $5 is expected this month.

Standard Milling rose more than 8 points on approval of a capital increase involving the granting of rights. National Bellas Hess was a strong point in the merchandising group, selling up more than 7 points. Allied Chemical was again in demand, mounting nearly 8 points to a new peak. In the rails, Boston and Maine climbed more than 6 points.

A. M. Byers sold down 10 points at one time on the announcement of pipe price reductions, and closed more than 8 off. Radio gained about 4 points, then fell back 10. Union Pacific, Norfolk Southern, Montgomery Ward, Mexican Seaboard, General Motors, Goodyear, and General Electric were among issues sagging about 2 to 4 points.

The commodity markets were irregular. Rubber gained sharply on speculative buying from Europe based on the belief that American consumption will gain considerably this year. Wheat sagged on lower prices at Liverpool. Cotton was heavy on private estimates of low consumption early in the session, but recovered its losses when these estimates were revised.

Foreign exchanges also were irregular. Sterling was firm on reduction of the Reichbank's rediscount rate, which is expected to check the flow of gold from London to Berlin. The franc turned heavy, which was attributed to earmarkings of gold, believed to be for the Bank of France, at New York.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

ANGER AND HASTE HINDER GOOD COUNSEL.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY.

New Year's Resolutions

With the dropping of the curtain
On the drama of the year,
When the final act is pending
And the closing time is near,
We are prone to introspection,
To forsake life's lighter roles,
And to make new resolutions.
From the bottom of our souls.

What if many soon are broken,
If we seldom deign to keep
The uplifting midnight pledges,
From a realm where shadows creep?
If the prompting voice of conscience
May be stilled by slumber, too,
And our good intentions vanish
With the sunlight, like the dew?

It displays a finer spirit,
It reveals a contrite heart,
When remorseful human beings
Would attempt another start;
And it's infinitely better,
If they stand or if they fall
To make countless resolutions
Than no good resolve at all.
(By Ralp hM. Thomson in Christian Herald)

My Yesterdays

If I could gather up my yesterdays,
And do them over, one by one,
Just the bright smiles, kind deeds and loving words,
Leaving the rest undone,
Ah! then I would to heaven give grateful praise.
If I could thus re-live my yesterdays,
If I could gather up my yesterdays
And cast out all that were not fair,
Giving regret, whose sting I often feel,
No smallest part or share,
O what a dear and precious memory,
Though past recall, my yesterdays would be! Ida M. Thomas.

The Oxen.

Christmas Eve, and twelve of the clock.
"Now they are all on their knees,"
An Elder said as we sat in a flock
By the embers in heartside ease.

We pictured the meek mild creatures where
They dwelt in their strawy pen,
Nor did it occur to one of us there
To doubt they were kneeling then.

So fair a fancy few would weave,
In these years! Yea, I feel,
If someone said on Christmas Eve,
"Come; see the oxen kneel,

"In the lonely barton by yonder coom
Our childhood used to know,"
I should go with him in the gloom,
Hoping it might be so.

Back to the Fold

'Twas a sheep, not a lamb, that strayed away,
In the parable Jesus told,
A grown-up sheep that had gone astray
From the ninety and nine in the fold.

Out on the hillside, out in the cold,
'Twas a sheep the Good Shepherd sought;
And back to the flock, safe in the fold,
'Twas a sheep the Good Shepherd brought.

And why for the sheep should we earnestly long,
And as earnestly hope and pray?
Because there is danger, if they go wrong,
They will lead the lambs astray.

For the lambs will follow the sheep, you know,
Wherever the sheep may stray,
When the sheep go wrong, it will not be long
Till the lambs are as wrong as they.

And so with the sheep we earnestly plead,
For the sake of the lambs today;
If the lambs are lost, what terrible cost,
Some sheep will have to pay!

The Aim of Living

To live as gently as I can
To be, no matter where, a man
To take what comes of good or ill
And cling to faith and honor still

To do my best and let that stand,
The record of my brain and hand
And then if failure comes to me
Still work and hope for victory.

To have no secret place wherein
I stoop unseen to shame or sin,
To be the same when I'm alive
As when my every deed is known.

To walk undaunted, unafraid,
Of any step that I have made,
To be without pretence or sham
Exactly what men think I am.

HELP BY RIGHT THINKING

Dear Social Corner Members: Saturday's page looked as though Social Corner stock was rising. With so many nice letters to begin the new year, I must not be outdone, so here comes mine.

If not too late, I wish you all a happy New Year and the finishing of many things planned.

To keep cheerful means so much to ourselves and our friends.

One member writes of trying to cheer herself on by the "better in every day in every way" manner of thinking. It may not cure us, but it does help over the hard places and the mind surely controls the body to a great extent. We are advised to think health, talk health, and in this way keep health. It works in well with a physician's care, as the two together can do wonders in many cases. Now I wish to thank a Social Corner Member for my pretty calendar. I hardly expected one this year, as I've been rather slow in sending in letters to the Social Corner page.
O. D.

MAKES JUST ONE RESOLUTION.

Dear Social Corner Family: Here we are in a new year, one with two nines, odd isn't it? Perhaps we can remember it easier when we start to write to our friends.

I'm wondering how many of us have made new resolutions to break or not to break. I heard Interested Reader say she has made two. Now I believe I'll form just one. Of course I cannot promise by all that's great and good to keep it, but at least I'll try. I know that Interested Reader is getting more curious than ever, so to appease her curiosity as well as Kipper's and a few others I'll write it in this letter: Resolved, To send at least twelve letters to the Social Corner this year, and more if possible.

I suppose to some of you that sounds small, but to me it's quite an undertaking with my other "scratching." And may I suggest if more of us formed the same resolution our Social Corner page would be full every week.

I wish to express my thanks to the sisters from whom I received cards and one sister was exceedingly thoughtful and gave me a year's subscription to Norwich Courier-Cooley's Weekly, that I may be able to read the letters regularly.

We surely miss Kitty Lou's most interesting letters and sympathize with her family in their loss.

I trust every one who could had a merry Christmas and that the brothers and sisters of the Social Corner may have a bright and prosperous New Year, is the sincere wish of PRAIRIE CHICKEN.

THANKS ALL FOR KINDNESSES.

Dear Social Corner Friends: I want to thank all the members, my friends and neighbors for their kindness to me on my birthday and Christmas. Glad to see many letters on the beginning of the New Year.

One sister said she was collecting epitaphs. Here is one:
"Here lies the body of Nancy Flynn,
Who, when she lived was so pure within
That she burst at last her mortal skin
And hatched herself a Cherubim."

The following is from a headstone in the Johnson cemetery of Bozrah:
"They had been married forty-seven years wanting one day,
When he resigned his breath and winged his soul away."

Years ago I lived near the Methodist parsonage and when the parson and wife were away, two of their children would sing in an open window upstairs, their feet hanging out, kicking against the bricks, singing the following verse to the tune of Hold the Fort:
"Hold the forks, the knives are coming,
The spoons are on their way;
Slam the dishes on the table,
Pass the hash this way."

We never hear that song these days. Hope all had a nice Christmas and wishing each one a happy New Year. JOAN.

STARTING THE NEW YEAR

Dear Social Corner Friends and Editor: This is the first Sunday in the first month of the new year, a dark and rainy one with the thermometer registering high and rising all the time—the windows and doors open like a summer morning—the radiators full of heat with me trying to keep cool and a thunder shower going on it is no time to even try to write letters. So this will be a short one. We certainly can't find fault with so many nice letters as were seen last week. No one can say the paper looked "slim" can they?

Here is something a bit funny for a change:

"A teacher in a public school asked her small boys and girls to write brief essays and told them to choose their own subjects. One boy chose 'Our Hired Man' for his topic, and gave this information about him: 'Our hired man is about five feet four inches tall and is quite thickly settled.'

"A little girl called her essay, 'A Comparison' and in it she compared the horse and the camel in a way that should be of interest in natural history as it contains facts not generally known. She wrote: 'There is but one horse that can cross the great desert, and he is a camel. The reason that he can cross the desert is because he can carry water for himself in his hump. The horse cannot do this. When the camel has no hump it is because he has drunk himself dry.'"

"Now for another step up the pathway of the gladsome year;
Lending a helping hand,
Singing a song of cheer;
Ready for what may come
With hearts immune to fear."

I must not forget to thank the one who sent me the lovely little calendar. ANN TENNA

MISSES BOY KEENLY

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I want to second Marjory's suggestion that Kitty Lou's letters be republished. I want to tell Marjory also how her letters have helped and comforted me. Death came into our home at holiday time and we laid our 4 year old boy to rest on New Year's day. It is wonderful to have had the little loving lad, and, while the missing him is keen, "it is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all." But love is not wholly lost and links us to the unseen where we trust he lives.

I wonder if Marjory is in the Club 4 section? If she is a P. H. S. graduate of about 29 years ago, and if she hasn't two children?

Thanks for the calendar, always so welcome. THIRTY-TWO.

TASTY DISHES FROM YELLOW DAISY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It has been quite a while since I have written a letter to the Corner but somehow it seems as if I did not have much to write about. Silver Locks has been reading the letters from the sisters and came across one by Riverview. She says she knows us and if she is who I think she is we remember her too and wonder how her mother and father are. Her mother was so good to us once that we will never forget her.

We have had lovely weather and hope we will have a good winter all along. We had nice times over the holidays and hope every one else had pleasant times, too.

Wonder if any of the sisters would care about making soup with suet. It doesn't require meat and makes a delicious soup. We add onions, carrots, tomatoes, celery and potatoes and run all except the celery, through the food chopper. Cut the celery in small pieces put them all over to cook with the suet which is cut in small pieces too and cook together about three hours. Season well with salt and pepper.

Here is another dish which we are fond of and which uses up dry bread too. Take four or five slices of salt pork fry nice and brown, soak the dry bread in cold water and squeeze as dry as you can put in spider with pork and grease and stir often until it is a light brown. Season with pepper and salt. You will like this dish too, I hope.

I would like to have some one tell me how to make plants grow good in the house.

Silver Locks has been piecing quilts and they are very pretty and she takes a lot of comfort making them. She enjoyed a nice visit at the home of Hillside not long ago. Have not seen a letter from her for a long time.

I see several letters of sympathy to Ethelyn in the loss of Kitty Lou. I add my bit to her, too. I enjoyed her letters; also Ethelyn's.

Wish all the sisters and editor too a happy New Year.

Where are Arbutus and Old Fashioned Mother? Haven't seen you for a long time. YELLOW DAISY.

PLEASANT TIME AT MEETING

Dear Social Corner Editor, Sisters and Friends: As I have just been reading the Social Corner letters, I will add my mite. I know I don't write as often as I ought to, but I will try and be more prompt in the future.

I think what Scottie wrote is true, that if we think that our letters are not as interesting as we wish they were, they might interest others. Sometimes I have the same opinion of my letters.

I agree with Marjory about copying some of Kitty Lou's letters for the first Saturday in the month. I have a beautiful letter she wrote, pasted it in my scrap book, and I will try and copy it for the first of February.

I wonder who River Nieu is? Was your name B. B. before you were married? If so, I went to school with your sister and brother and many times the scholars used to run around the brick church playing "catch." The church steps was the "goole" and sometimes the scholars would say: "The last one on the goole is 'it' for catch." So we would all run and the last one on the steps had to catch the others.

When the teacher rang the bell for us to come in, how we would all run for the schoolhouse and run in any way, any shape, anyhow, but now the scholars form a line and everything is done by system. Well, those were happy days, never to be forgotten. Now I am most 70 years old and have six grandchildren.

I went to the Social Corner meeting at the Buckingham Memorial Tuesday and had a very pleasant time meeting the old members and also many of the new ones. Calla Lily was the first one to greet me and we all know she has a kind greeting for every one. The dinner was lovely and, and such a variety! It plainly shows the Social Corner members are good cooks.

Hilltop: I was as much surprised to see you as you were to see me, as I did not know you were a member. I hope "Pop" is well over his cold.

Yellow Daisy is as busy as a bee from morning till night with her housework and home cooking, besides giving lunches and dinners to those who come for them.

I guess this is all for this time, so I will close by wishing one and all the best of luck through the year. Yours for the Corner. SILVER LOCKS.

TO MAKE LARD SUCCESSFULLY

Dear Corner Sisters: Happy New Year to all the Social Corner readers. First, I wish to thank a Corner Member for pretty little calendar.

As the butchering season is here with us farm people, I want to tell how I do my lard. It may help some of the readers. I use the following suggestions and have the best of success with my lard. First I remove all scraps of lean meat, as they are almost sure to cling to the cooking vessel and get scorched, giving an unpleasant odor to the lard. The fat I cut into small blocks or strips, from one to one and a half inches, as nearly equal in size as possible, so they will "fry out" (try out, the dictionary says) in about the same time.

A clean vessel should be filled about three-fourths full of the fat. I set it on the back of the range at first, so not to burn when starting to fry when the heat is first applied. The kettle should be kept over a slow, moderate fire until the cracklings are of a light brown color, when they will begin to float. It is necessary to stir frequently, else the fat will burn. I always use a wooden spoon for this purpose. When done, remove from the fire allow it to cool slightly, then strain through a muslin cloth into a suitable vessel. I generally use a large earthen jar for a large quantity.

To whiten the product and develop smoothness, or "grain," as some call it, I stir quite a little while it cools. When it is solidified I cover the vessel carefully and place in a clean, cool, darkened place. Leaf fat makes the highest class lard. Fat taken from the back, the hams and shoulders also yields good lard. The "riddings," on the other hand, makes a product that is strong smelling and sometimes a little off color, but mine is always very white because I give it a good soaking in several clean salted waters before I fry it out. This fat I always keep separate and never mix with any other fat obtained from the other parts of the body.
CRIMSON RAMBLER.

CALENDAR ACKNOWLEDGED

Dear People of the Corner: I will start the new year right by promptly sending thanks to the Social Corner member who sent the little calendar. It seems to be a mystery where they come from and I have wondered how many are remembered in this way.

Michie: You don't need a message from me, as I just sent you a long letter, but you are the only one I know in the Corner. I wonder if you have gone away yet. I do not like to think of this place where I have had so many pleasant times being closed up. If it is better for you, I am glad you can go.

Best wishes to all for the new year. HEPATICA.

ANSWERS ROLL CALL

Dear Editor: This being my first letter this year, I wish the editor and all readers a happy New Year.

Where are you, No. 13 Busy making smocks? Let's hear from you.

Olive: Why not write a letter to the Corner, so I can find out who you are?

There is a writer I have in mind, if she will take a saucepan and smear well with molasses all over, inside and bottom in the morning her trials will be soon over if a sufficient quantity of boiling water is added, "to the cockroaches," which was my successful experience. Another remedy is snuff. Ants cannot stand the presence, either.

I have answered the roll call.
WHITE TULIP

PRETTY CARDS BRING CHEER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: As I was unable to be present at the Social Corner gathering of Jan. 2nd, am writing a few lines to you. To the many Social Corner Sisters who sent me the lovely cards during my recent illness I send back to you a hearty thank you. The cards were very cheery. Sister Ducky came to see me the next day after the meeting and brought a sunshine box. The contents were delicious. I thought of all of you that day and hope to be with you the next meeting.

Just a few added lines. Many Social Corner sisters have expressed their sympathy through the Social Corner page in the loss of Sister Kitty Lou and I, too, take this opportunity to add my sympathy to theirs. The interesting writer has passed, but the memory of Kitty Lou, the faithful writer, will linger.
GUSTA (Club No. 5)

RECIPE FOR REMOVING MILDEW

Dear Sisters and All Members: At last I have aroused myself enough to write a letter to the Corner after so long a silence. I wish to thank the giver of my pretty calendar I received, also cards from others.

I believe it was Red Rose who asked for a recipe to remove mildew. Mix equal parts of softsoap (This you can make by dissolving pieces of laundry soap.) with powdered starch, half as much common salt and the juice of one-half lemon. Spread the mixture over the mildew spots and then lay the article on the grass on clean paper, day and night until the stain comes out. This never fails if you can have patience.

Here are a few more helpful hints: Rub knives or spoons and forks with a slice of lemon to remove the smell of fish from them.

In a sick room where a light must be used, use a long extension cord and place the light under the bed. The patient can rest in darkness, yet there is light around the floor and one can see to get around easily.

Ready: Thanks. You know there is a saying something like this: "They that do right can see no fault in others." I deem it a great blessing to have had such a congenial person in my family all those months.

Fat Contributor: Wake up! It's been many moons since we heard from you.

Arrawana: You have my sympathy.

Hopeful: Keep up being hopeful; you will get through some day. Am sorry for you. It's hard.

Well, we have passed one week of the new year. May we see more of the old writers coming forth. Am pleased to see so many new ones, as so many of the old ones are passing on to their reward the new ones must fill in the vacancies. We will certainly miss Kitty Lou, she was so regular.

There is a proverb: He that doeth good is like a medicine.

Sympathy to all bereaved ones and a wish for a speedy recovery to all sick and shut-ins.

A happy and prosperous new year to all is the wish of AUNTY.

A CHAT BY SISTER GLOW

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As today is a fine time to write I will try my hand at it, for I am ashamed to myself when I see so many letters in the paper. Well, I do enjoy going to the meetings, one meets with so many. You go home with such good feelings and something to think about, and you get so many good ideas. Am I too late to wish all the shut-ins a happy New Year? I enjoy reading the letters from those who take trips.

Aries: Don't see you down this way lately; cannot be on account of snow.

I, too, think, as Red Rose, we must co-operate. Then we will have good meetings. We had a fine meeting Tuesday. We had a nice dinner and speaking and singing. Then we had the pleasure of seeing a drill by some of the G. A. R. ladies which was fine. If I was young I certainly would join, for it is a fine order. I do miss Kitty Lou's letters.

Silver Locks: My better half said he would have liked to have had a chat with you. Huldy's trip to Florida was fine. My better half and I spent last winter in DeLand.

E. L. M.: I hope you are fine these days.

Well, I had better drop out and give someone else a chance for her letter.
SISTER GLOW.

FROM A SLACKER.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I'll say the Corner is full of slackers. But maybe there is a reason.

When you have sickness and are over worked and nervous, what is it we have to write about that would interest the Corner?

I know I am a slacker and I reckon there are many that are having their hands full only they don't write and tell us about it. When we are sick and miserable who feels like writing a nice letter? So have a little sympathy for the slackers for maybe there is a reason. So those that have lots of pep write as often as they can. And we poor sick slackers will try and find time to read them.

Quid Nunc: I surely have enjoyed your letters. And many thanks for writing us all about the wonderful trip. I love the mountains. And my, the good things you had to eat would make a fellow hungry. It must take some nerve to make such a trip. I also enjoyed the the letter the sister wrote about Paris. Yes, and many others. I want to thank the Social Corner member for my calendar.

Mavis: Thanks for card. I wanted to send you one but couldn't find your address. A very happy New Year to the editor and all Social Corner members.
ANNA Z.

HAPPINESS

Dear Members: Well, how are you after the holidays? It is a very busy time of year for everyone. Hope each one enjoyed it as much as myself. Was so glad to see so many letters in Saturday's Bulletin. I could scarcely believe my eyes. It shows what we can do if we only try. All the letters were very interesting and helpful and now we have got started in the first of the year let us keep up and see if we can't have the page full and running over each week. The old year has gone and let us try to help everybody all we can and in all the ways we can this year. Remember—life is what we make it everyday. That is what we are put here for, to help one another. If all would remember that each day what a happy old world this would be!

Happiness is not a matter of time or of dollars; it is rather that something which dwells in our hearts that teaches us to love and appreciate the blessings and the friends around us. Today is just as good as yesterday for those who know how to use it. Yet we cannot help thinking if all of us could turn back the wheels of time for just a little while and with the spirit and enthusiasm of little children gather with father, mother, brothers and sisters, relatives and friends around the old home hearthstone. We cannot do that but we can thank God for the spirit which enables us to pause in the complexities and worries of this modern life to forget the material and remember those things of the spirit. The greatest are love and friendship.

KEEP UP GOOD WORK.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Still this wonderful weather prevails; so remarkable one cannot help speaking of it. January will soon be gone. Then when "Ground-hog" day arrives Feb. 2, it is said to indicate the sort of weather between that and spring. In the meantime keep on enjoying all of these wonderful days.

I see the Social Corner page was filled to overflowing on the first Saturday this year and that shows how many good resolutions were made. Keep up the good start for the year; also always glad to welcome new members.

Sincere thanks to the Social Corner members who sent me the pretty calendar for 1929. I appreciate it very much. "'Tis nice to be remembered."

Everyone seems to have enjoyed the holidays in all pleasant ways and write such interesting accounts it was a joy to read them.

Marjory: I think it a beautiful tribute you paid to the memory of Kitty Lou, who was such a valuable writer for our Social Corner page, and it would be very fitting to re-publish some of her helpful letters, or in some way (while the editor may think fitting) memorialize our faithful departed sister.

Was very sorry to learn through the papers that the "flu" is raging and doubly sorry when it kept coming nearer and into our city. Glad there so few cases. Sincerely hope that all recover and sent greetings and cheer to all shut-ins, and comfort and sympathy to all in trouble.

I remain with best wishes to all and health and happiness. ECLIPSE.

REMEMBERED ON CHRISTMAS

Mr. Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: First I wish you all a very happy New Year.

Recently I heard that Kitty Lou had passed away. I sympathize with her loved ones in their loss. We trust our loss is her gain. I have received a dear little calendar from a Social Corner member for which I send sincere thanks. I hope Christmas was a joyful season to you all. I received several cards besides a few other gifts, but I feel Christmas is not all giving and receiving presents. I think the fact that it is Jesus' birthday is enough to make it a joyful season to one, who loves Him and is trying to serve Him.

I suppose you remember the sister whose penname is White Dawn. I am acquainted with her and she is in poor health. Just now she is spending some time at Uncas-on-Thames. She is rather uneasy away from home. Now letters will help her I am sure. I will give her address to the editor. Please write her cheerful, sisterly letters and remember her in prayer.

Aunt Jerusha: I have not heard from you or seen a letter for a long time.

With best wishes for all,
SISTER BARBAR.

LIKES BULLETIN CALENDAR

Dear Sisters and Editor of the Social Corner: It is a long time since I have done my part, intending to write but having my time taken up in other ways. Staying with a shut-in since June I have not met with the sisters since last May and I miss the good times we always have. I do not intend to stay away always. Hoping to meet with you the next time.

I think the calendar The Bulletin put out this year is fine. It takes me back to the time I was a little girl. I went and saw the tent. If I remember right it was where the Park church is built and it was the most beautiful bull that Norwich had ever had, so I have been told.

I wonder if "Dad" Shaw who writes letters to The Bulletin remembers the dummy car that ran to Greeneville. It did not stay long. It frightened the horses, so it had to be taken off. I remember taking a ride, there were six in the car and they tried to go up what was called Schofield hill. Could not get power enough so all walked back to the city again.

Wishing all the sisters a happy New Year and also the sick and shut-ins,
ONLY A LINK.

MOTHER WATCHED FOR LETTERS.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Another new year. My it doesn't seem so, but it is over a year since I have written to the Corner. I lost my mother a year ago this month. As she lived out of town she used to watch for my letters every week and then she would write and tell me that she saw my letter. Now she cannot read them any more and I guess that is the only reason why I have not written before. It is hard to realize she is not here even after a whole year.

Was so sorry to hear of Kitty Lou's death. Had never met her but one time I wrote into the Corner for a recipe for sweet pickled onions and of all the members there are only Kitty Lou answered. I was always going to write in and thank her but never did. Now I wish I had.

Oralee: Got home that night all right about 5 o'clock and just as we got supper had relatives from Rhode Island come in, only seven of them. How's mother. Give my love to her, but don't tell her who's who. Keep her guessing. Come up some afternoon, will be looking for you. Get busy and write to the Corner. Surely if I can find time you can.

Lone Feather: You, too, get busy. Here I've been waiting for you to write and tell me how you painted your bedroom and how you fixed it. Now it must be near time for you to fix it all over again. Did you miss me last Saturday. Don't know if I will go up this week or not. If I do will stop in to see you. PALLA.

STILL REMEMBERS CORNER.

Dear Social Corner Friends: It is long time since I have written, but as some of you know my hands and heart have been "full and now the dear one is through with all trouble and pain.

I want to thank a Social Corner member for the very pretty calendar sent me; the blue birds do bring a note of cheer.

Ino: Thank you for the cards and message.

Thirty-Two: Accept my sympathy. Isn't it a blessed comfort to know that our dear ones are safe with their Heavenly Father?

Ann Tennas: I, too, enpoy Cheerio. What a lot of good they do every morning. Having you speak of him in your letters, made me try to get it, too; so you see you did some good, too. Thank you. ROBERTA (Club No. 4)

THANKS SISTERS FOR GIFTS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: The new year has arrived again and found me with my last year's work incomplete, as I have not yet acknowledged my birthday cards. Therefore I wish to take this opportunity to thank you all for them. I have been very busy, as the week before Christmas I visited in New York. Next came Christmas, and I wish to thank all for the lovely greeting cards. Since then I have been ill, so I think all my sisters will understand my neglectfulness. Lastly, I wish to all my Social Corner friends a happy and prosperous new year.
ESTEL.

DREADS THE SNOW

Dear Sisters: My! Oh my! how the wind is howling. Guess Old Man Winter means business today. Snow coming in blinding sheets. I always dread the snow as it means keep in doors. I can usually find something to keep me busy if it is only a x-word puzzle. How very thankful we should be for our cozy homes. Two kittens belonging to my neighbors are contentedly purring, nestled up on the couch. They take away the lone feeling. One man said: "Get rid of the dirty cats if yer want a home fit ter live in." I have often noticed that a man or woman who likes neither cats, dogs nor any animal is selfish and cruel and invariably a grouch and a scold.

Twice Twenty: Helps to pass my time away about dusk as we chat over the phone.

Butterfly: You must not have such windy days if you expect an old lady like me to come over.

Cady: Saw a letter from you last week. When I was in N. I thought you were too busy a woman to write. Cousin writes me she has some of the pretty bead flowers you were making.

Mrs. Dan: Come in again and stay longer. CARO.

POPULAR AS WRITER AND INDIVIDUAL

Dear Corner Friends: Some years ago there was a discussion on this page as to what made a person popular. Since Kitty Lou's death there is every evidence that she was popular, not only as an individual, but as a writer; and her popularity was based on her earnest endeavor to be helpful and of some service to all she came in contact with, even from the printed page. Her faithfulness was another virtue that merited the popularity that was due her, and in reading all the words of praise and commendation I have thought how sweet they would have been to her if she could have known, when living, that her efforts were not in vain and her contributions were appreciated. Such a few months ago the thought escaped from her pen that her letters were not appreciated. Not only the editor but her pastor spoke so beautifully of her willing, helpful life, giving so freely of her vast and varied knowledge, gained from years of personal experience. May her helpfulness and faithfulness be an example for us.

I thank a Social Corner member for the very pretty, artistic 'good luck" calendar and I hope it will remind me to write to the Corner oftener than I did the past year. We must keep the spaces all filled up and not feel ashamed of an empty-looking page. While I have been completing odd jobs, and among them mending stockings, I wondered why it was necessary to have so many runs starting from the tops, when a piece of tape could be sewed on underneath where the garter fastener came.

I thank all who sent me cards and holiday greetings.

What has become of Neighbor Everready and her pen?

Sorry to have missed your calls, Anna L. Try it again. Suppose you have put your car up for the winter.

Photographer: We haven't heard from you yet. There are so many new ones you will be overworked if you try to take them all.

Huldy: The description of your trip was very interesting. How I have enjoyed doing that work.

A happy and prosperous New Year to all and health to enjoy it.
THEODA.

CLUB NO. 6 MEETS JAN. 15

Dear Social Corner Members: My! Wasn't it good to see such a full page in our Saturday's paper.

Crimson Rambler: So sorry to hear of your trouble. Hope things are better now.

Ravena: Received my package. Think it's fine.

Tish: I see you are attending right to business.

Hope Tuesday, the 15th is a good day and we have a big crowd at Club No. 6 meeting in Mechanics' hall, Westerly. Don't forget your dishes and something good for the dinner.

Cosmos: Thought you were coming to see me right after Christmas?
E. L. M.

MIRANDA IMPROVING.

Dear Editor and Sisters: Many thanks for the nice calendar. I have been well all winter, but it seems to me it is just starting to be cold. We are glad to hear Miranda is gaining. She has such a cheerful disposition it has made her stay at the hospital much easier for her and the nurses. Mrs. Billings is having her trials, but going to live with her grandchildren will take up her mind. I think of her often. Best wishes.
ROXANNA WINCE.

THANKS MEMBER FOR CALENDAR

Dear Social Corner Friends and Editor: I wish to thank the Social Corner member for the pretty calendar that was sent to me. I have not been able to attend the meetings, but hope to be so I can soon. My sympathy goes out to all who are sick or in trouble. I want to wish all a prosperous and happy New Year.
EARLY BLUE BELLE.

MISS KITTY LOU'S LETTERS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Have to write a line to thank the sister for the very nice calendar I received last week. It surely is a nice thing to do.

And I want to pay tribute to Kitty Lou. We miss her nice letters so much, and I send my sympathy to her family and hope time will help to soften their grief.

Olga: Hope to see you down to Club No. 6 next Tuesday at Westerly.

Necia: Was sorry to hear that you had lost your sister. Hope to see you soon.

E. L. M: Have something funny to tell you next time you stop. Hope to see many at the meeting next week. And wish every one a Happy New Year. MILKY WAY (Club 6)

PLEASANT CLUB MEETING.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Wish to thank Social Corner member for pretty calendar received. Club No. 5 with visitors and guests met at Buckingham Memorial Jan. 2. A pleasant day and cheery company as usual. Ducky was a fine hostess and did her best to make it pleasant for every one. We had no program as there was a funeral service in the post room below. We missed those that were ill, and not able to be with us. The holidays are over, so now we go on to our regular routine again. Hope all the sick ones will be better, and be at our next meeting with Honydew as hostess. Best wishes to all.
WURDY BELLE.

THE STORY OF CHIPPERY DODGE

The Social Corner Editor and Readers: When a boy of nine or ten years of age, I, with my brother, spent a winter's evening around the cheerful open fire at the home of Uncle Leph Bingham, as he was called by everybody.

After listening to him playing his violin (on which he was an expert) and indulging in popped corn and apples, Uncle Leph told us the following story of an Indian, who was well known to all the neighbors in his early life. It was thought that this Indian was a renegade from some tribe, and preferred living alone, as he did in the woods quite a distance from an habitation. Some one of those who knew the Indian and was given to writing Doggerel, wrote the following, a copy given me by "Uncle Leph:"

"After the passing of the Nipmuck years ago, near Smithville lived an Indian, whether Nipmuck, Pequot, Creek or Crow, no one living there seemed to know, but Chippery Dodge was his name. He by a brook deep in the wood lived in a cabin built of logs and made baskets for a livelihood. In passing through a clearing one day he chanced to see a thrifty growing white ash tree, just the kind to make baskets of, thought he. It is a great temptation, and some day I shall cut it down without any other provocation, so one dark and stormy night no one in sight, with axe in hand, with blow on blow he laid it low upon the ground, then cut it into pieces; and on his back carried it to his woodland shack.

"The owner of the land was walking through the field one day, missed the tree, and upon the stump he chanced to see something white being moved by the wind where stood the tree. 'What can that be?' he said, going there, this verse he read: 'Chippery Dodge cut the tree and better stuff he never see.' The owner was mad, and I guess he swore and cursed that Indian o'er and o'er.

"'Watching for Chippery from behind a tree one day some distance away he saw the Indian with bow, arrow and quiver, going to the river to catch fish, no doubt. Mr. S., with a loud shout, said, 'Chippery Dodge, come here to me. What have you to say about cutting that tree?' Chippery advanced with hanging head, for well he knew what was to be said. 'Why did you cut that tree without first asking me? I saw it grow from a little whip or twig no higher than my knee; a nicer one, no one ever see.' 'Yes, I cut the tree, that I can't deny; like the "Father of my Country, "I cannot lie. It was a great temptation and I cut it down without provocation. It was so tall, straight and slim; thirty feet without knot or limb. Just the kind for basket making; it really was a prize for taking.' 'Now, Chippery, you'll pay me for the tree and pay me well. O I wish you were in—well, I won't say,' but I guess he meant the happy hunting grounds" any way.

"'I have no white man's money,' Chippery said 'and wampum you won't take, but to pay you, baskets I will make, until you say to me, you have paid me for the tree. I will do just as I agree. That timber was so straight, white and limber, I will make the baskets of the same timber!'

"'Mr. S. had a building, long and wide, soon filled with baskets; couldn't get any more inside so he told the Indian he was satisfied, that the debt was paid with the nice baskets he had made.

"'Chippery' was so pleased that the debt was paid he made a bow low to the ground and said, 'Surley, one honorable man I've found.'

"'Now to sell the baskets was another thing. I wonder how much they'll bring,' said Mr. S. His wife, who was sitting nigh, said, 'You won't know unless you try.' Next morning by the break of day he was up and well on the road with a load. Now you know that baskets are very light but his horse had to pull with all his might, up the hills; he really was afraid he'd break the thills.

"He drove with his load onto a busy street and getting down from his seat, he commenced to yell. The people all wondered what in Tophet all the noise was about. Then he commenced to shout, baskets to sell, baskets large and small; baskets short and baskets tall; baskets for almost everything. I have them with covers, striped blue and red; nice for the school children to carry luncheon in, of pie and cheese, doughnuts and bread; baskets for the farmer and the housewife, too, in which to keep her sewing work, old and new; darning cotton, needles and thread, nose baskets for the oxen, with rings on each side into which strings are tied, to hold them on their head.

His load sold out, pockets filled with chink, he went into a saloon and took a drink, then starts for home; was happy all the way. Arriving home, this is what his good wife had to say: 'What did you drink, anyway, your breath don't smell like new mown hay.' Next day another load, taking all he had, and he was very glad; he soon arrived on another street in town, and commenced to shout his wares up and down; soon the people gathered about and he quickly sold his load out.

"Proud of his success, he huries home; his daughter, just in from school, well versed in the addition rule, he asked her his money to count. Bills and change was quite an amount. She counted it over time and time again, and made it each time just the same. She surely was right, there was no doubt. 'How much did I get for the tree, haven't you found out yet?'

"'Yes. Of bills there is dollars twenty four; half dimes and dimes, seven more, and coppers thirty three; in all $31.33.

"'What?' says he, 'thirty one thirty three for that one tree? That's doing mighty well. I wish I had twenty more to sell.'

"His wife awoke from dozing in her chair and says 'Well done I do declare. Why don't you sell Chippery the big oak down by the hill?' With a moment's thought, he says, 'I guess I will.'"

So ended the story of the Indian basket maker. QUID NUNC

FRAUD SOLICITOR BEING HELD FOR HEARING AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin).

NEW LONDON, Jan. 11—Frank Ranga, 19, of 125 Orient street, Worcester, Mass., was arrested this evening charged with being a fraud. He is detained at police headquarters and will probably be in the city court tomorrow. Ragan, having on a hat to represent a military organization, tonight went to the home of Patrolman Frank Linehan and solicited money, representing that all contributions would be expended for the "American Rescue Mission." The police had been informed nearly a year ago that such solicitations were illegal and it was as a result of that information that Ranga was arrested. He said that three other solicitors were seeking contributions in the city and that each solicitor received one-third of all money collected.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Levanti of 55 Fuller street gave a party Wednesday night in honor of the birthday of Salvatore Lonaglio. The evening was spent in the enjoyment of music, after which refreshments were served.

At the meeting of the Y. W. C. A. to be held in the association building next week, Miss Julia Caper of New York, a member of the national board, will deliver an address. Her topic will be the new basis of membership. Preceding the meeting a supper will be served.

Mrs. Alexander McPhail entertained members of the Kwarterants club at her home in Montauk avenue last night at a bridge party. Prizes were won by Mrs. Leslie Harrison and Mrs. Harry Belmont Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Maillet of 652 Bank street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Mabel Marguerite, to Ella J. Gaudette, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B Gaudette of Nova Scotia. The wedding is to take place soon.

At the meeting of Semper Fidelis class of the First Baptist church last night, the annual election was held with the following result: President, Mrs. William Higgins; vice president, Miss Grace Crawford; second vice president, Mrs. Edwin G. Swanson; secretary, Mrs. Wheeler H. Vibber; treasurer, Mrs. A. J. Voelker; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Cora Lewis; superintendent of Sunday school class, Miss Eva Duboll; assistant superintendent, Mrs. F. F. Kenerson. Preceding the business meeting there was a banquet and birthday party, with about 25 members present.

DESK SERGEANT BABCOCK EXPLAINS CHIEF'S ORDERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 11—Following Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney yesterday having orders issued to all members of the department, more particularly the night members relative to their conduct in the future, due to a large measure to the recent charges and trial of Patrolman George McCaskey, accused of conduct unbecoming an officer, Desk Sergeant William Babcock acting under instructions from Captain Pinney today addressed the members of the day force. He explained the instructions of his superior as regards the department of each and every member of the department. The text of the sergeant's remarks was that every officer would be held to a strict accountability in the future for every violation of the police rules and regulations, warning the members that such infractions would result in charges being made against the offending officer.

Patrolman Walter Rehn resumed duty tonight after having been kept for several weeks at his home on Blydenburgh avenue, because of an injury to his leg. The officer had returned to duty for a few weeks when he suffered the injury. Previously he had been laid up for a year because of a fractured leg.

Charles Sullivan, New Haven railroad freight brakeman, has recovered from grip after a week's illness.

JEWETT CITY MAN'S WISH IS GRANTED BY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 11—Requesting the court to send him to jail because he was without funds or employment, Judge S. Victor Prince granted the request and sentenced Thomas Kiernan, 70, a Jewett City textile worker to two months in the workhouse. There Kiernan will be sure of obtaining proper nourishment and a warm place to sleep during the worst of the winter season. Kiernan was found trying to steal a ride on a New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad freight last night by Special Agent McGrath, who, learning Kiernan's predicament had the aged man locked up at police headquarters. This morning when in court, Kiernan told of being out of employment and without funds and pleaded to be sent to jail that he might be supplied with meals and comfort.

The only other case to claim the attention of the court was one where intoxication was charged, a resident of North Bank street having been arrested yesterday on Potter street by Patrolman Dennis Murphy. He was given suspension of judgment.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Great Spanish Artist Coming.

Since the earliest announcement, last spring, of the completed plans for the present Slater hall musical course, the committee has been much interested in noticing the growth of appreciation of the artist for the third concert of the series as shown by the public of Norwich and vicinity, an interest though markedly enthusiastic yet coming at first from only a few who were either privileged with wide musical contacts or who were following closely musical news week by week. Such reactions as the first to be heard following the announcements "Oh, you are bringing the great Segovia to Norwich?" and "Yes, I would subscribe to the course for the sake of hearing Segovia alone," were none too common at first.

However, it was with real pleasure that the committee, knowing the truly great sensation caused by his coming to America, engaged Andres Segovia, the Spanish guitarist, to come to Norwich, Friday evening, January 18th.

The fame of Segovia who had been the idol of London, Paris and Madrid and whose name had been a prominent one of late years throughout European capitals, had preceded him across the ocean and so a large audience, including many Spaniards and many more musical connoisseurs of the city, greeted him when he made his American debut in New York just a year ago this week. That recital opened wide for him the heart of musical America and was described by Lawrence Gilman, critic of the New York Herald-Tribune, as "one of the most extraordinary and engrossing recitals of music that has ever taken place in a New York concert hall."

The season then opened was phenomenal. Mr. Segovia gave twenty concerts in New York city alone, receiving tremendous ovations and marvellous criticisms. Boston's musically elect filled its music halls to capacity for several appearances last winter and equally enthusiastic audiences received him in all of the large American cities in his 1928 town.

His second season, following several intervening months of tour abroad and a vacation in his native Spain, has now opened and finds him one of the country's favorite recitalists with country-wide engagements for this winter.

Mr. Gilman also says of him, "Mr. Segovia is one of the most consummate masters of any instrument now before the public. He has made the guitar a thing to be spoken of in the same breath with the 'cello of Casals, the violin of Heifitz."

The few expressions of delight in anticipation heard by the committee, as referred to above, have now multiplied to many and are coming from quarters outside of Norwich as well as from within—all bidding fair for a very warm reception for this great artist. See adv. for further particulars.

RETAIL MERCHANTS BUREAU ELECTS AND OUTLINES PROGRAMME FOR YEAR

Cyril E. Fitch was elected president of the Norwich Retail Merchants bureau at the annual meting of the bureau held Friday evening at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Fitch succeeds Abner W. Schwartz who has held the officer for three years.

The meeting opened with a supper after which the vice president, John B. Caron, called the meeting to order in the absence of Mr. Schwartz, who was called to New York by the serious illness of a brother. The president's report was read by Secretary Walter H. Pilcher and was adopted as read. The meeting then adopted a vote of appreciation of the splendid work done by the retiring president, Mr. Schwartz during his three terms of office. The treasurer's report was read by J. Fred Flemming and adopted.

The chairman called for the report of the nominating committee which was read by the secretary as follows:

President, Cyril E. Fitch; vice president, Glen Merithew; treasurer, J. Fred Flemming. The meeting was declared open for further nominations but there were none made. The secretary, by vote of the meeting, cast one ballot in favor of the candidates named and they were declared elected.

Nominations were then made as follows for the executive committee, Herbert W. Cary, John J. Savard, Abraham Ableman, E. Arnold Smith, Joseph Pysyk, Jacob Bloch and Frank Hempstead. They were unanimously elected.

The new president, Mr. Fitch, in assuming the chair, expressed himself as much pleased with the choice of the meeting for the executive committee. He said he believed the greatest work of the bureau during the year should be to secure more cooperative work among the bureau members. He stated that he will do all in his power to carry out the wishes of the organization.

Mr. Fitch then presented a tentative programme for the coming year, including a schedule of dates for dollar days, suburban days, spring and falls openings, half holidays during the summer season, provisions for Christmas decorations next December and dates for the stores to remain open nights before Christmas. Another recommendation was that there be monthly bargain days conducted in January, April and June, as an experiment and that such bargain days be continued throughout the year if found successful. The programme was adopted and copies are to be sent to all members of the bureau.

John P. Lyston offered the suggestion that prizes be offered for the best home decorations at the Christmas season and this suggestion was adopted.

Treasurer Flemming presented the report of the finance committee, including the budget for the coming year as follows:

POETRY

To a Rumble Seat

Of all the winter sports I know,
Not one can yet compete,
With riding to and from my work,
In an open rumble seat.

I love to play at snowball,
And skating is a treat,
But all through life, I'll ne'er forget
That open rumble seat.

It stops for me each morning,
Whene'er the weather's fair,
And if the sky is pouring,
That bus is always there.

When the long, long day is ended,
And my labors all are o'er,
That rumble seat, my staunchest friend
Is waiting at the door.

I scramble in, all bundled up—
I do not mind the gale,
The chauffeur steps upon the gas,
And home we quickly sail.

It has been thus for many months,
Perhaps for many more,
I'll find this restless, smarting thing,
Still waiting at my door.

It's battered fenders, worn-out tires,
I love with all my heart,
And even if it never runs,
From it, I'll never part.

So friends of mine, be not surprised,
When on the golden street,
There, standing in a parking zone,
You'll see that rumble seat.

—B. A. McCley, in Detroit Free Press.

Clearing Off

The birds sing "Clearing Off," hopping about,
And waking us with more than usual cheer;
Into the west the wind begins to veer,
Baffling a while, then brandishing to rout
The forces of the east whose last redoubt
Surrenders as the vapors disappear
Above the fog; brigades of blue sustere
Drive at both flanks till no clouds venture out.

Within the woods the raindrops scatter and drip
As if tall timber heeded not the sky.
Because their trunks are fastened in the grip
Of boggy earth, do trees prefer, I sigh,
A dark to match their forest mood?
Still fall
The drip-drop, drip-drop, spattering over all.

COOLIDGE WAS UNABLE TO SWERVE SENATOR BINGHAM

Senator Bingham, Who Has Taken the Leadership of Kellogg Treaty Interpretations, Was Called to the White House by President Coolidge to Discuss the Situation—The Senator Stood His Ground, Insisting That a Committee Report Stating America's Position Under the Treaty Could Not Be Constituted as a Reservation to the Pact—The President Desires That No Measure of Reservation Be Attached to the Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—A blockade in the senate growing out of the treaty-cruiser row is threatening the entire legislative program of this session in congress and leaders were preparing with some anxiety today for a showdown on the situation.

The certainty that a special session will be called early in the spring for consideration of farm relief and the tariff removes those issues from house and senate dockets and is expected to go a long way in clearing up the angle.

The first move in breaking the blockade will be taken tomorrow by Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee when he will ask that further debate on the Kellogg treaty to renounce war be limited. Meanwhile opponents of the treaty who are seeking some expression in the pact to clarify American rights under the Monroe Doctrine have been busy circulating a petition for the foreign relations committee to bring in a report setting forth these rights as expressed by Senator Borah during his dicuion of the pact.

In expectation that the treaty will come to a vote on ratification some time during the week, the senate is preparing to turn to the bill for the construction of 15 cruisers which also faces some rough treatment before it will come to a vote.

Lodged behind the treaty and cruiser measures in the senate is the long list of necessary appropriation bills to provide funds for running the government during the approaching fiscal year. Only one of the nine regular supply measures has received final congressional approval and leaders intend to devote first consideration to these this week. Some steady work will clear the calendar of these and that steady work is planned along with the grind on the treaty and cruisers.

While the house takes up the war department appropriations bill, the senate will receive the first deficiency bill from its appropriations committee with a spirited controversy anticipated because of the amendment inserted in the committee providing an additional $25,000,000 for enforcement of prohibition. The increase will be opposed by the treasury department and along with the favorable report from the appropriations committee the senate is expected to have a letter from Secretary Mellon stating that the additional fund would not help to speed up the work of the prohibition bureau.

Almost simultaneously with receiving the suggestion for more money to enforce prohibition, the senate is expected to have before it a report from its judiciary committee on the Edge-Jones resolution for the appointment of a civilian committee by Herbert Hoover, after he becomes president, to make a "sweeping" investigation of prohibition conditions. The committee has heard Senators Edge of New Jersey, a wet, and Jones of Washington, a dry, both republicans, and will meet tomorrow with the hope of voting out a report on the resolution.

SENATOR BINGHAM WAS CALLED TO WHITE HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—Senator Bingham has taken the leadership in treaty interpretations and late Saturday was summoned to the white house by President Coolidge to discuss the situation. Mr. Bingham is anxious the treaty shall pass but will not relinquish his efforts to have a protective interpretation by the senate. He circulated a round robin late yesterday afternoon and secured 26 of the necessary 33 names and will continue his efforts Monday. At this moment it is predicted that interpretation in some form will result even though not a part of the treaty itself. Bingham, Moses and other interpretative leaders do not want to see the treaty defeated, but will continue to insist it shall be clarified by the senate in some form.

Senator Bingham made this clear to the president in his conference at the white house, and is in sympathy with the effort to secure peace among nations if it can be accomplished without leaving the United States in a position where it cannot honorably protect its own citizens or its property.

WHITE HOUSE PRESSURE FAILED TO BREAK DEADLOCK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—Renewed pressure from the white house failed today to break the deadlock in the senate on the Kellogg anti-war treaty row and the group demanding an interpretative declaration on the pact decided late today to hold out against any agreement setting an hour to vote on its ratification.

Apparently concerned over the circulation yesterday of a "round-robin petition" by those seeking an interpretative declaration of American rights under the treaty, President Coolidge last night summoned in Senator Bingham, republican, of Connecticut, who was passing the petition around.

The president made known his desire that no manner of reservation accompany any ratification of the treaty engineered by his secretary of state. He considers a report of the foreign relations committee declaring that the treaty does not affect America's right of self-defense and does not infringe upon the Monroe Doctrine, which is asked by the petition, would be tantamount to a resolution.

Senator Bingham stood his ground. He had in his pocket the round robin petition already bearing 24 signatures declaring for an interpretation. He insisted that a committee report stating America's position under the treaty could not be constituted as a reservation to the pact.

Another conference of the "interpretationists" today decided to fight on and as a result of that decision objection will be voiced tomorrow to the proposal which Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee intends to submit to limit debate on the treaty.

This decision throws the treaty into an indefinite future. Senator Borah, in charge of the pact, however, feels the responsibility is entirely on the "interpretationists." Almost to a man this group is strongly for the cruiser construction bill which is awaiting disposition of the anti-war pact. Treaty advocates feel, the foes will be forced by their own desire for action on the cruiser bill to give in on the demand for an interpretation and are content to accept the deadlock for the present.

But President Coolidge wants both the treaty, without reservation or interpretation, and naval construction measure. A senatorial breakfast party, a later white house conference of senate leaders and finally the Bingham conference on yesterday failed to budge the deadlock. The resultant conferences today at the capitol also got nowhere.

Senator Bingham made it clear to the president that with the exception of two or three of the 24 petition signers none wished to defeat ratification of the treaty. But he said the group was firmly of the conviction that this nation should make known, in some manner, its interpretation of the pact now rather than at some later time when such an emergency rose. He contended that under international law a mere report by a senate committee could not be constituted as a reservation to a treaty ratified by the senate. But the president doesn't see it that way and he is stubborn on the point.

The round robin petition pledges the signers not to ask even for the adoption by the senate of the report of the foreign relations committee which is requested. However, it declares that the signator will feel constrained to vote for an interpretative resolution such as has been proposed by Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, if this committee report is not forthcoming.

While he obtained only 24 signatures yesterday, Senator Bingham is confident that at least a dozen more are prepared to sign the petition. This would give the "interpretationists" more than a third of the votes which would be necessary to defeat ratification of the pact. However, any intention of defeating ratification is disclaimed by the petitioners.

Treaty advocates, still confident of an overwhelming majority, were disposed to look lightly today upon the round robin petition. They believed that many of those who had signed the petition had done so with the understanding that they would not go to extreme measures and would not stand in the way of ratification of the pact.

Wife Of "Babe" Ruth Was Burned to Death

Fire Destroyed House at Which She Was Visiting in Watertown, Mass.

WATERTOWN, Mass., Jan. 13—(AP)—Mrs. George Herman Ruth, wife of "Babe" Ruth, the home run king, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the home of Dr. Edward H. Kinder, a dentist, here Friday night, it was learned today when relatives identified the body. She was known to her neighbors as Mrs. Helen Kinder, wife of the doctor.

Two sisters of Mrs. Ruth, Catherine and Nora Woodford, of South Boston, identified the body at a local undertaking establishment. Dr. Kinder could not be located.

District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell, of Middlesex county assigned state detectives to investigate the case and ordered an autopsy of the body. Dr. George O. West, medical examiner, later said this showed death due to burns and suffocation.

"Babe" Ruth arrived in Boston today after having been called here by his friend and legal counsel, John P. Feeney, of Boston. He issued a statement in which he said that he and Mrs. Ruth had not been living together for three years.

"We had no permanent home," the "Babe" said, "and Mrs. Ruth went to South Boston to be near her mother three years ago. She had been in Boston since."

He said that his nine year old daughter, Dorothy, was at a private school in Weston, where he planned to visit her tonight.

Shortly after 10 o'clock Friday night, a pedestrian discovered a fire in the home of Dr. Kinder. When fire apparatus arrived the interior of the house was a mass of flames.

Firemen found Mrs. Ruth unconscious on the floor of a bedroom on the second floor. Apparently she had retired for the night and had been overcome while attempting to escape. She was taken to the home of neighbors, where she died a short while later.

Dr. Kinder had left the house earlier in the evening to attend a prize fight at the Boston Garden. Neighbors identified the body as that of Mrs. Kinder and it was taken to a local undertaking establishment, where it remained until today.

Last night police were informed that the body was not that of Mrs. Kinder but of Mrs. Ruth and that Dr. Kinder never had been married. An investigation was started and Mrs. Ruth's sisters summoned from South Boston.

Set Fire To Garage, Then Shot Herself

Extraordinary Suicide Method Resorted to by Chestnut Ridge Woman.

[illegible]L, Conn., Jan. 13—(AP)—After [illegible]ing kerosene over her garage [illegible] automobile, and setting fire to [illegible]h, Mrs. Mabel Stolle, 40, of Chestnut [illegible]idge, early today climbed into the car and sent a volley of shot from a rifle through her head. Her charred body was found two hours later in the ruins of the machine, after the garage had burned down.

Medical Examiner H. F. Moore attributed the extraordinary manner in which Mrs. Stolle took her life to melancholia.

Mrs. Stolle, the wife of John W. Stolle, president oif the Danbury Unbreakable Tool company and writer on hunting and fishing topics, had been sleeping with her daughter, Mabel, 17. The girl heard her mother get out of bed shortly after one o'clock and later heard her puttering in the kitchen.

Two hours afterward, Lipton Smith, a neighbor, seeing the Stolle garage ablaze, hastened to the home and wakened the family. While Stolle, his daughter and son John, 15, fought the fire, Smith summoned State Policemen Stannard and Foss. When the garage fire had been extinguished, the Stolles went off in search of Mrs. Stolle. They could not find her. The daughter, however, found a note on the kitchen table which read: "Goodbye, all. Be good, my poor kids."

While the Stolle family searched at the edge of the Chestnut Ridge reservoir, in the belief Mrs. Stolle had drowned herself, Stannard and Foss poked among the ruins of the automobile and found the body. A 44 calibre rifle, which had belonged to young John, was found alongside of it. The fire had burned Mrs. Stolle's body beyond recognition, but her family was able to identify it.

Stolle said his wife had been ill and was subject to fits of melancholia.

FIREBOUND ON 58TH FLOOR OF THE WOOLWORTH TOWER

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—A young woman and five men were marooned for ten minutes today on the 58th floor platform of the Woolworth tower when fire broke out in machinery insulation on the 55th floor.

Edward J. Link, an accountant of Sunnyside, L. I., who was accompanied by his sister-in-law, Miss Margaret Shields, of Bay City, Mich., was the first person to fight his way through the smoke and flame down the circular stairway to the 54th floor.

There he found Miss Phoebe Smith, a souvenir stand sales-woman, and several Woolworth guards. While they called firemen, Link fought his way back to the marooned party, threw his overcoat over Miss Shields and escorted her down the stairway to the 54th floor. Two of the marooned men followed.

Link then unrolled an emergency fire hose and, with the aid of several of the guards, was directing a stream of water into the heart of the blaze by the time the firemen arrived.

A crowd gathered around Park Row and Broadway to watch the cones of smoke that were visible at the tower top as the result of what fire department officials said was the highest blaze that ever occurred in the history of New York. Firemen quickly extinguished the fire. The damage was confined to the complete stripping of insulation on all wires and electric cables extending through the elevator shaft from the 55th to the 57th floors. Two elevators which had been operating to the 47th floor were damaged and were stalled at the 27th and 29th floors.

Link said that two of the original group isolated in the tower remained there until the fire had been extinguished when the tower elevator was sent up for them.

Officials of the building said they believed a short circuit ignited the insulation on the wires and caused the fire.

MRS. LINDBERGH HAS LEFT CONSTANTINOPLE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 13—(AP)—Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, mother of Colonel Charles Lindbergh, left Constantinople today as unobstrusively as she arrived last September.

She abruptly changed her plans to remain here until January 19 this morning and departed shortly afterward for Cairo, Egypt, avoiding newspapermen and calling off demonstrations by students at the American college where she has endeared herself; the students, after oriental fashion, have been most demonstrative, and literally bewail her departure.

Miss Kathryn Adams, president of the college, told the Associated Press, that Mrs. Lindbergh had from the beginning intended to remain only a half school year as visiting professor of chemistry, and that her departure at the close of the school's first semester was therefore expected. She said the college was deeply appreciative of her fine work.

GEN. ALEXANDROVITCH WAS ASSASSINATED IN MOSCOW

Former Czarist and "White" Commander Was Shot at His Home—Had Stood High in the Soviet Army Commissariat—During the Crimean Campaign Numerous Stories Were Told of His Cruelty.

MOSCOW, Jan. 13—(AP)—General Jacob Alexandrovitch Slaschoff, former czarist and "white" commander, and high in the soviet army commissariat during the past six years, was assassinated in his home here this morning.

Komsomolskaya Pravada in reporting the murders says that an unknown person entered and fired at the general killing him; he fled before witnesses reached him.

Krasnaya Zvedda (Red Star), chief organ of the soviet army, in announcing the death says that the assassination was prompted by motives of personal revenge.

Since 1922 when General Slaschoff returned to Russia from Constantinople, where he fled after the collapse of the white cause. With General Wrangel he has headed the general tactics courses of the soviet general staff. Notwithstanding numerous stories of his cruelty while with General Denekine in the Crimean campaign, he was entrusted during the last six years with various military tasks which he fulfilled conscientiously.

General Slaschoff began his service with the czar's army in 1902. In 1916 he commanded the Moscow guards regiment, and thereafter was prominent in the "white" circles which opposed the bolshevists for a while.

Recently he published an important military work which he called "General Tactics."

In commenting on the assassination Red Star says it was a "purposeless and politically unjustified act of personal revenge."

BOY SCOUTS HONORED FOR OUTSTANDING HEROISM

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—For outstanding heroism in rescuing four persons from dwoning at the risk of their own lives, three Boy Scouts have been awarded the gold honor medal of the Boy Scouts of America by the National Court of Honor.

The boys voted this highest award in scouting are: Edward A. Bush, Brooklyn; Theodore Antonich, 1807 Black Eagle Smelter avenue, Great Falls, Mont.; Joseph Erlenwein, 388 Lechner avenue, Columbus Ohio.

A certificate of heroism for demonstrating the use of scout training in saving the lives of another was awarded to John Sandstrom, Middletown, Conn.,

The major award went to Scout Erlenwein for his rescue in Buckeye Lake, Ohio, in July, 1927, of Mrs. Clifford Lewis and Miss Gladys Anderson, both of Columbus. Mrs. Lewis was teaching Miss Anderson to swim when the girl became frightened and obtained a strangle hold on her teacher. Both went under, but the scout reached them and brought them to shore. Erlenwein said nothing of the accident and only the casual remarks of witnesses months later brought about the reward.

Antonich pulled Arthur Norgard from the Missouri river on June 28, 1928, when a rope on which Norgard was swinging broke and he fell into the swift stream.

Bush rescued a woman who had attempted to drown herself in New York bay.

FRANCES ST. JOHN SMITH DISAPPEARED YEAR AGO

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—The first anniversary of the disappearance of Frances St. John Smith from Smith college finds her parents and college authorities just as much in the dark regarding her whereabouts or fate as they were on Jan. 13, 1928, when she vanished. An international search costing thousands of dollars has been carried on for her but without avail. St. John Smith, a retired banker and father of the missing girl, is in Aiken, S. C., broken in health from worry over his daughter. Her mother is confined to her home in this city.

Mrs. Anna W. Gramm, the girl's aunt, explained today that the family is still doing everything in its power to solve the mystery. They remain confident that the girl was not killed but fell a victim to amnesia. The $10,000 reward for Miss Smith's return still holds good, Mrs. Gramm said.

SCAFFOLDING AFIRE ON THIRTIETH STORY

CHICAGO, Jan. 13—(AP)—Fire broke out tonight 30 stories above LaSalle street in the scaffolding of the uncompleted Foreman Bank building, a 44-story skyscraper.

Blazing timbers were showered upon nearby buildings and imperiled firemen, who were powerless to reach the flames. Handicapped by power inadequate to carry a stream of water to the 30th floor and by a ten-below zero temperature accentuated by a northwest wind, the fire fighters were forced to limit their efforts to protecting adjoining buildings.

The flames quickly licked their way up the wooden scaffolding to the top, while sparks flew far over the "Loop" section.

O. G. HANKS, SILK MANUFACTURER IS DEAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 13—Ozro G. Hanks, 71, descendant of the pioneer silk manufacturers in the United States and senior member of the state central democratic committee in point of service, died at his home on Hanks' Hill, town of Mansfield, early Saturday evening.

He was born in Mansfield, January 27, 1857, a son of Philo G. and Orsina M. Phillips. Surviving him are: His wife, Jeanette Macfarlane Hanks, one daughter, Mrs. George N. Phillips and one son, Harry G. Hanks, both of Hartford; and two grandchildren, Gurdon Hanks of South Willington and Donald N. Phillips of Hartford.

Ozro G. Hanks, during a useful lifetime, carried on the pioneer silk industry established as the first in this country by his great-grandfather, Rodney Hanks. The business, which was first started in a small frame building which has been moved from its original site near a brook on Hanks' Hill to a location near one of the present mill ponds where it still stands, has been continued by four successive generations. Following the death of Rodney Hanks the plant was operated through the succeeding years by George R. Hanks, Philo G. Hanks and Ozro G. Hanks. Philo G. Hanks erected the larger wooden building in which the business is now located. While in the original days when silk was secured from cocoons raised by many of the farmers of Mansfield who fed the worms on mulberry plants, the plant manufactured silk thread and did a quantity of dyeing, the mill is now operated as a silk throwster plant. The business was founded in 1810 or 119 years ago. Whether the picturesque little plant will be continued as a manufactory has not as yet been determined by the survivors. Situated on the summit of Hanks' Hill which has an elevation of several hundred feet, the little mill, painted in brilliant white, is most attractively set on a spacious green lawn. Flanking the old country road which leads to the mill and its neighboring residences are two reservoirs of sparkling water which furnished the motive power for the industry. It is the only factory within miles of rugged farm country and the only remaining evidence that Mansfield led the way for America in what is now a tremendous industry.

Ozro Hanks was always actively interested in politics and was a staunch democrat. He had attended several of the national conventions of his party, the last being the convention at Houston, Texas last year, where he went as a delegate.

He was sergeant-at-arms at the New York convention in 1924 when John W. Davis was nominated. He served the town of Mansfield in various offices including two terms as selectman. At the time of his death, which followed an illness of some three weeks with a heart ailment, he was jury commissioner for Tolland county. His record as senior member of the democratic state central committee, 35th district, was highly commended Saturday night by Democratic National Committeeman Thomas J. Spellacy who characterized Mr. Hanks as a staunch democrat and a splendid citizen who would be sorely missed by the committee and the party at large.

CAPT. MCLEAN'S CASE TO BE HEARD TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 13—Captain Frank P. McLean of the police department will be given a hearing before the common council following the regular January meeting Monday night on a charge of conduct unbecoming an officer. The hearing, which comes at the end of the legal three-day suspension imposed upon Captain McLean by Mayor Charles A. Gates Saturday, is the aftermath of the arraignment of the police captain in the Bolton town court Friday night on charges of assault and breach of the peace. McLean was fined $5 and costs on each count by Justice of the peace James A. Connors after a spectacular trial in Justice Connors' dining room.

Captain McLean, who did not testify at the town court trial and took an appeal to the superior court upon conviction, plans to waive the formality of a special meeting of the council and submit to a hearing Monday night. He will probably be represented by counsel. The charges against the captain followed an altercation in which he figured at Rainbow Inn, town of Bolton, Christmas eve. McLean states that he went to the inn to run down an allegation that his wife, Edna McLean, had been a frequenter of the place. The proprietor, Charles Pinney ran for Constable, Samuel Woodward. McLean alleges that the latter attempted to make an arrest without displaying his badge of authority and he (McLean) struck Woodward. The common council hearing will be based on McLean's actions in Bolton and on an infraction of the rules of the department in that he left the city on that occasion without securing permission of his superior.

Captain McLean has served nearly 13 years on the department, having been lieutenant for three years and captain for the past two years. Lieutenant Edward P. Leahy is acting captain pending the outcome of the hearing and Sergeant Grant Bombria is acting lieutenant.

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 13—Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hayward of 224 Newbury street, Hartford had what many consider a miraculous escape from severe injury about 1 o'clock Saturday morning when the new eight-cylinder Studebaker sedan which Mr. Hayward was driving crashed through the wooden guard fence of the railroad span at Phelps' Crossing on the North Windham road and dove some 30 feet through space onto the New Haven railroad tracks below. The couple were taken to St. Joseph's hospital. Mrs. Hayward had sustained cuts about the mouth, a bruised jaw, abrasions on one leg and a slight concussion of the brain. It was reported at the hospital today that she was recovering and would leave the institution within a few days. Mr. Hayward escaped with a severe laceration of the left ear. He was not detained at the hospital. Mr. Hayward told Officer Pierre Marrotte of the police department who investigated the accident that snow and sleet had made visibility through the windshield poor and that he was not aware of the extreme danger of the sharp turn onto the narrow wooden structure.

Bill of Danielson. Mrs. Mazzola, who has been suffering from a shock sustained when she found the body of her slain mother upon returning from work at noon on the day of the murder, will be the principal witness at the inquest Monday. Several new witnesses who have been brought into the case as a result of the investigation being conducted by County Detective William E. Jackson and Police Officer Arthur M. Hurley, have also been summoned to appear at the inquest. Thomas Mazzola continued to be held under guard at police headquarters as a suspect in the case. It was not determined today whether he would be further examined by the coroner. Meanwhile Attorneys William A. King and Samuel B. Harvey who have been retained as counsel by Mazzola are making initial preparation to defend the suspect should matters proceed to a grand jury indictment.

The annual report of City Health Officer Dr. W. P. S. Keating filed over the week end with the state board of health, indicates that Willimantic was free of epidemics during 1928. With the exception of the latter part of December when several chicken pox, mumps and measles cases were prevalent among the children, the report shows but comparatively few of the ordinary diseases. Whooping cough cases are decreasing, the report for December showing but two of these cases.

Dixon Van Zandt returned today from New York city where Saturday night, he attended a banquet of the Explorer's club, of which he is a member, in the Hotel Astor. Excellent lectures were given by several world travelers including Carveth Wells, on Coldest Africa; Roy Chapman Andrews, My Latest Exploration in Mongolia; James L. In skidding on the icy street, one of the New England Transportation company passenger coaches, driven by William Miner, service man at the company garage on Center street, crashed into the electric light standard at the corner of Union and Center streets about 8 o'clock this morning, demolishing the standard. Arrangements were made to settle for the damage.

The police are attempting to locate a certain party to determine whether he or she "knows their groceries." Morris Keefe of Hebron came to police headquarters Saturday night carrying a burlap bag filled with miscellaneous groceries. He said that the bag had been left in his car while it was parked on the street.

Despite the fact that Summit street hill has been properly sanded at the junction with Jackson street and made eligible for coasting, numerous children took advantage of good conditions Saturday and today and placed themselves in danger by sliding on various street hills about the city. A timely warning by a pedestrian averted an accident between a boy coaster and an automobile at the junction of Prospect and Jackson streets Saturday afternoon and still others were avoided by mere chance. The police started a drive against this practice this morning and children disobeying the ruling will be held responsible.

DANIELSON

SLIPPERY HIGHWAY CAUSES MANY MINOR ACCIDENTS SAT.

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 13—These should be halcyon days for the garage men who live in this section of the county. During the early hours of Saturday morning some snow came, and by the time the sun came up state highways were a glare of ice and the boys who were driving cars over them began to have their difficulties. Up to this Sunday afternoon hunters after news heard of so many cars that got into one jam or another, most of them unimportant, that it would be out of the question to attempt to list them. Yet with all the skidding and crashing, no one had been hurt up to the time this was written. This does not eliminate the fact that owners of various cars are called upon to pay for the repair of broken fenders, axles and what not as the result of being thrown one way or another by treacherous highway surfaces. Without exception, persons seated back of steering wheels had the hardest experience of the winter during Saturday, and there was no improvement in driving conditions today. This may appear strange to people living a comparatively few miles to the south of Danielson, for drivers come north from Norwich reported that the state highways down that way were comparatively free of ice and snow over the week end.

To mention a few of the accidents record may be made of the fact that a kerosene tank truck operated by Frank J. Gorman of Cottage street was damaged when a car operated by Jewett H. Collins of New Haven slid into it on the Brooklyn side of the Quinebaug bridge. Collins was headed into Danielson at the time of the accident, and the slippery highway is charged for responsibility. Both machines were considerably damaged in this crash.

Icy highways also may be charged with being to blame for a Packard car that Jack Kerouack of Danielson was driving, the machine owned by Earl Wood of Cottage street, going wrong near the Westfield Congregational church and smashing into one thing and another that was in the way until it came to a stop. The Packard was somewhat damaged, but not badly, in this mixup. Another crash had the vicinity of Quinebaug bridge for its setting. In this smash also due to slippery road surface, a Chevrolet sedan owned and operated by Ralph H. Grover of Attleboro, Mass., was in a mixup with a truck operated by Ovila Chapdelaine of Danielson.

While all the sliding about of cars was underway, the state highway department men assigned to this territory were not idle. Trucks, with crews of men, were being operated on all trunk lines out of Danielson and were sanding the slippery roads liberally. The service they performed was noteworthy and without doubt served to reduce the number of accidents.

Parish Financial Statement

This morning at all of the masses at St. James' church Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., read his annual parish financial statement. In all of the more than half a century of the history of St. James' parish no such successful report of administration has been listened to by the parishioners. The past year was not the most wonderful one that can be recalled, insofar as the capacity to earn and give money is concerned, but it was a year, it is now established, in which Rev. Fr. Mollard, as pastor, received wonderful co-operation from the upwards of 3,000 people who are affiliated with the church here in Danielson or in its missions in outlying territory The parish not only discharged all its financial obligations, including the maintenance of the parochial school with more than 500 pupils, but also was enabled to set aside an important sum for its reserve, eventually to go toward the cost of construction of a new parochial school, to cost well in excess of $100,000.

St. James' parish is free of debt. Its objective now is the construction of a new school building to replace the present school, on Franklin street, built in 1887.

It should be made a part of the record that Rev. Fr. Mollard surprised all of his parishioners this morning, and surprised them in a most pleasing manner, with his annual report. They had not hoped for so much.

In giving his report the pastor said before closing his remarks that whatever his parishioners did, in the way of giving, they were doing for the church, and not for him personally. On the other side of the picture, one finds a very special love among his parishioners for Rev. Fr. Mollard, and a deep appreciation of the really splendid work he is doing, with the aid of his able assistants. The parish today more than ever before is sensible of the fact that it is blessed with superior administration as well as the most conscious spiritual oversight.

New State Officer

State Officer John Murphy, whose home is in Pomfret, has been added to the personnel of officers stationed at the Danielson barracks. Officer Murphy has been in the department for seven months, and prior to coming here was stationed at the state barracks in Westport.

Danielson May Leave League

At the week end efforts were being made by officials of the Southern New England basketball league to adjust differences arising from the alleged rough playing of Jack Cronin, big time football star whose home is in Putnam and who has been playing with the Headquarters team of that city, and the Armory Five of Danielson, an organization that has threatened to leave the league because of "too much Cronin." The fact is sensed here that Cronin, a marvelous athlete, is just a bit too strong for a small town circuit. The point that Danielson makes, Danielson meaning those interested in basketball and the Armory Five, is that the big boy, being the great attraction and box office asset that he is, should not be too strenuous in wading through what patently is not extraordinarily hard opposition. In a word, the Boston college boy could be everything that he is to the league, and that means really a high class asset, without wrecking the machine by turning himself loose.

League officials are anxious to have the Armory Five stay in the league. It may be said also that Danielson would like to have Cronin on the Headquarters team of Putnam, but he is such a rugged youngster and so inclined to rip things up, on the strength of his showing in two games of the past week, that he has started a flurry that is not nice, to say the least.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Young and daughter, Ruth, were with Mrs. Young's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Preston over the week end, coming here from Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Aldei Lamothe and Mrs. Francis X. Ducharme were guests of friends in Southbridge today.

George A. St. Clair of Wonsocket was here over the week end.

Rev. Albert Abbott was the speaker this afternoon at a meeting of men at the Nazarene church. Several churches were represented at the meeting.

While motorists were skidding around in this vicinity over the week end, there was little snow or ice on the state highways a dozen or 15 miles south of here.

Reports indicate that very few pupils in the schools of Killingly and Brooklyn heeded advise to be vaccinated during the holiday vacation.

To date there have been very few chimney fires in Danielson during the cold weather season. Usually such fires are reported from day to day during the winter season.

The Uses of Adversity will be the subject of the first of a series of addresses next Thursday evening at the mid-week service at the Westfield Congregational church.

STONINGTON

LOCAL BRIDGE CHAMPIONS TO COMPETE AT NEW LONDON

The Eastern Shore Bridge whist tournament came to a close last week, with the John Winthrop club of New London in first place. Mistuxet club of Stonington second and the Cycle club of Westerly third. This (Monday) evening all the contestants and friends will hold a banquet at the Mohican hotel after which there will be a bridge whist match, with prizes awarded the winners.

J. Edward Fairbrother of Philadelphia visited here at the home of his parents during the week.

The three Stonington companies responded Friday evening to a call from Box 5 for a stubborn chimney fire at the home of Andrew W. Perry of Main street.

Manuel King was a visitor in Hartford Friday.

The Mothers' Circle of the Second Congregational church held a meeting in the church parlors followed by a social hour recently.

The program at the last weekly assembly of Stonington high school was given by the sophomore girls of Room 19 taught by Mrs. Lucy. It was a mock trial entitled "Bad English." The judge was Miss Geraldine Coon. A Spanish costume dance was given by Misses Frances Lord and Helen Haas.

The Athletic association also held a meeting and made plans to sell season tickets for the eight basketball games scheduled.

The funeral services for Maurice R. Edward, 16, were held at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. William Hammond, Saturday afternoon. Burial was in the North cemetery. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Annie H. Edmond and a brother.

The meeting of the library board was held at the library Monday afternoon.

The Harmony club met with Mrs. Charles Burnham Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Pearl attended the State Grange meetings held in Bridgeport last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie L. Burnham attended the governor's ball in Hartford.

There are to be two all-day meetings in Hampton, Jan. 17 and Feb. 7 for the purpose of constructing service-wagons and remodeling old clothes. These meetings are to be under the direction of Miss Alice Billings of the Windham County Farmers' association as home demonstrator, with the assistance of the extension of the Connecticut agricultural college.

The chaplain of congress will soon take a look at the body—and then pray for the country.

PUTNAM

MRS. DEMERS BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT SAT.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 13—Mrs. Yvonne Demers, 31 year old mother who abandoned her six weeks old baby boy in Thompson Wednesday evening, was arraigned before Justice P. P. Toutelotte of North Grosvernordale in town court Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Demers was technically charged with abandonment of a child under the age of six weeks. She was without counsel. She entered a plea of guilty to the charge, and after considering the facts concerning the case, Judge Tourtellotte ordered that the woman be bound over to the criminal session of superior court, now sitting in this city. She could have obtained her temporary liberty upon $500 bail, but since she was unable to produce the money she will remain confined until arraigned in superior court upon a bench warrant Tuesday.

Mrs. Demers was taken into custody in Southbridge, late Friday evening, following a search of 48 hours, which was conducted by Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart and officers of Danielson state police barracks. The state police followed clues on the abandonment into Webster, Mass., to Worcester, where a check-up of hospitals in that city revealed that the child had been born in a private hospital. Numbers inscribed on the infant's clothes compared with those on file at the private institution, sending the police to Southbridge, where the mother was found.

Mrs. Demers made no effort to deny motherhood of the child. She gave the police a confession of her crime, and assumed full responsibility for the abandonment. She named the father of the child as being Edward Lussier of Southbridge.

The prompt and efficient work of the state officers under Lieut. Urquhart at Danielson barracks is deserving of much praise and credit in the manner in which they found the mother of the child, who had so carefully concealed all means of her identification with her baby.

The baby is now at the Day Kimball hospital in this city and is reported to be in a healthy condition and gaining each day.

PUTNAM POLICE ON LOOKOUT FOR ALLEGED SLAYER OF DR.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 13—Putnam police were asked Saturday evening to assist in locating Frank Weeden, escaped lunatic from the Rhode Island state hospital for mental diseases in Providence and suspected slayer of Dr. Ransom H. Sartwell, who was murdered at his home Friday evening.

Weeden has been missing from his home in Warwick, for the past 24 hours and was thought by police to have made his escape in the direction of northern Connecticut. Police alarms were dispatched throughout southern Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut last evening, which brought police vigilance along the highways in this vicinity. State officers at Danielson barracks kept a sharp lookout for the maniacal fugitive, as did police of this city.

The Rhode Island authorities believed that Weeden might have resorted to stealing rides on railroad freight trains running over the New Haven road, since this was his hobby several years previous to his insanity. The New Haven railroad police cooperated with the civic authorities and were patrolling the roads, maintaining close guard throughout the day.

Until a late hour this afternoon, the lunatic was still at large, despite the efforts of the systematic manhunt that has taken place for the past 48 hours in an attempt to bring him into custody.

TWO BOYS SEVERELY HURT WHILE COASTING SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 13—The season's first snowfall came at an early hour Saturday morning and found youngsters throughout the city taking advantage of the scant bit of snow provided by King Winter for their enjoyment. The arrival of the snow also brought two accidents, when Richard Reardon, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Reardon Jr., of North Grosvernordale, while coasting near his home misguided his sled and crashed into the side of a building, sustaining a severe gash in the scalp and face. The boy was taken to the Day Kimball hospital in this city where he was given medical attention. He was discharged from the hospital today in an improved condition.

Another coasting victim, George Chneil of Wauregan, is at the hospital in this city today, suffering from a compound fracture of the left leg. Chneil, while coasting Saturday, struck a building and was thrown from his sled to the highway, breaking several bones in his leg. He was reported today as being in a restful condition, though the bones in his leg were shattered in such a manner that it will necessitate several weeks confinement before they will knit together again.

Boys and girls of all ages indulged in coasting Saturday on the hills and dales within the city limits, yet no serious catastrophes occurred during the day. Several hills in the city which are part of the state highway, and other thoroughfares used extensively by vehicular traffic are to be restricted to the use of coasters by police action, it was said this afternoon.

To Testify In Norwich Today

Officers Joseph Page and Benoni Durand of the local police are in Norwich today (Monday) testifying at a hearing for Joseph Larrow of this city in the matter of restoring his operator's license, suspended several months ago, when he was found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Officer Page will testify in behalf of Larrow, while Officer Durand has been summoned to present facts concerning the arrest of another violator of the motor vehicle-liquor law.

Gave Annual Report

Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church, submitted to parishioners at the church at all the masses today his annual report of activities, both social and financial, which have taken place during the past year. The report of the parish priest contained many features that indicated the parish had increased during 1928. During the past 12 months of Father Bellerose's pastorate, he has accomplished much in the betterment of the parochial property, the most noteworthy being the converting of the basement of the church into a beautiful and spacious hall which is now used by the church organizations for social functions and the construction of fire exits in the front of the large church.

Plans for the coming year as announced by Father Belleross this morning include new heating arrangements for the church, rectory and school, and the installation of a drainage system in St. Mary's cemetery, to convey waste water into the sewers. Water at the cemetery now settles in the lows and passes into the street in the event of heavy rainfalls.

Lester G. Herlihy of North Chelmsford, Mass., spent Sunday with relatives in this city.

William McCoy of Woonsocket spent the week end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. McCoy on Ring street.

Employes of the state highway department of the Putnam division were out with apparatus today sanding the highways in this section.

Officer Alpherie Sponcey of the local police has returned to duty after a two weeks' vacation spent in New York state.

Miss Judith Sabin of School street, a student at Brown university, spent the week end at the home of her parents in this city.

Capt. Jarvis of the local police is now in possession of a 1929 automobile marker, found this week and bearing the inscription, Conn. Z-4977. The plate may be had by its owner, upon application at the police station.

Owner In Possession of Coat

A detective agency has returned to Mrs. T. Morris Murray of Pomfret and Boston a mink coat, valued at $6,000, which was stolen from her about a year ago, while Mrs. Murray was attending a party at the home of Francis Higginson. She reported the incident to police and later turned the case over to a private detective agency. Mrs. Murray claims that the coat is the one stolen, although the thief obtained much wear from it. Mrs. Murray said that the detective agency gave her no information as to where they found the coat.

COLUMBIA

MINISTER'S WIFE WRITES OF RECENT MOTOR TRIP

A letter received recently from Portugal from Mrs. Duane Wain, gives an account of a recent motor trip she took, contrasting traffic they met with what they would have here. She says, "We couldn't help joking about the traffic we met in four hours on a Saturday afternoon, as compared to what it is at home. We met one bus, two trucks, one touring car, several ox carts, a couple of donkeys carrying oil cans strapped to them, and large numbers of women carrying loads on their heads. Many of the women were carrying their washing home. Can you imagine taking your washing a mile or so in a basket on your head, then standing in the cold water while you washed it, then if the weather is good, spreading it out on the rocks and bushes to dry and if the weather isn't good, carrying it back the mile, probably most of the way up hill—wet? These women surely have more strength than we."

Harvey Collins went to New York Tuesday to attend the Automobile show.

Hubert Collins, representative from Columbia, accompanied by Mrs. Collins, went to Hartford Wednesday to attend the inauguration of Governor Trumbull.

There are two cases of scarlet fever reported during the week, Irene Siegel, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Siegel, and Frank Tolokin of the Old Hop River district. The two cases are in no way related, and it is thought the disease was contracted elsewhere during the Christmas vacation.

Mrs. Kate Fuller, 64, widow of John Fuller, who died at her home here Monday afternoon, after a long illness, is survived by her sister, Mrs. Eugene Winter, of Columbia, and a brother, Burdett W Downer, of Hartford. The funeral services were held at her home Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Deeter of Hebron officiating. Mrs. Fuller had been a life-long resident of Columbia.

Mrs. Donald Greene, who has been spending a week with Mrs. Eugene Lafleur, returned, Monday night, to Meriden.

The town schools were closed Tuesday afternoon that the teachers might attend a teachers' meeting in South Coventry.

CANTERBURY GREEN

These were: Deacon Hale Bennett, clerk; Deacon Nathan Exley, treasurer of the church society; Charles Hart, superintendent, and Marion Safford, secretary of the Sunday school, and Mrs. Lillian Frink, secretary of the Ladies' Aid society. Charles Hart was re-elected superintendent of Sunday school and Malcolm Wibberly was elected deacon for three years to fill the vacancy caused by the absence of James Towne. The Ladies' Aid society met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. H. B. Brown.

JEWETT CITY

CALL FOR MUSICIANS TO ORGANIZE A BAND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 13.—It is planned to hold a meeting in the town hall Monday evening for the purpost of organizing a Jewett City band. Everybody interested in this matter is eligible to attend. As there are as many as 35 in this vicinity familiar with some instrument, it is believed the attempt to get together and organize will meet with success. In the last 45 years there have been in existence in this town no less than a dozen bands. Many of these musical organizations have been of the best, and with no lack of enthusiasm at the start; but after varied periods of existence, all have faded away. Just died naturally from various diseases.

VAGARIES OF STORM WHICH STRUCK THE BOROUGH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 13.—At 10 minutes before 5 Sunday afternoon the local weather man threw over the "freak blizzard" lever. Without waits or delays, a heavy black cloud that had formed rapidly in the north, did its stuff with a proper whew! The air was straightway filled with whirling snow as fine as meal, driven by a cutting blast that came from no quarter in particular. Within the space of 20 minutes the mercury dropped 10 degrees and three inches of snow landed from somewhere in a hurry. Motorists on the state road slowed down or stopped entirely, not being able to count on visibility through the flying clouds. Pedestrians dodged into doorways as an absolute safety method to keep clear of flying objects, as everything moveable was surg on its way.

Blew Scales Off Fish.

Three parties of ice fishermen were on Tadpole pond, and as darkness came on quickly they were taking up their gear when the squall struck. The gale came down the pond from the north, with nothing to break its force and one of the men reporting the incident in the borough declared that they were literally "and no fooling," blown off the pond, while tilt-ups, bait pails and grub kits were scattered to the four winds. One party had seven pickerel with no scales on them.

Several men on the corner were overheard arguing about the singular circumstance of a pickerel, scaleless and smooth as an eel, when one of the men volunteered the startling information, which might well have been the truth, that the "wind blew the scales off them as they hung on a string tied to the limb of a tree on the border of the pond."

Last call, personal tax 1928. Extra $1 after today. May be mailed. T. E. Shea, col.—adv.

The committee of arrangements appointed for the coming firemen's ball is Ex-Chief Lionel E. Boucher, Chief Walter (Bert) Field, Francis H. Driscoll and Moses Loranger.

A Whale Of a Freight.

Saturday afternoon the longest freight train ever to pass over the local iron, went north with two of the big freighters and 120 cars.

Allowing for 32 foot cars and three feet for the shackle, exclusive of the two locomotives, the train stretched out 4200 feet, well over three-quarters of a mile. When the head engine was opposite the Aspinook dam, the tail end was an ordinary train length below the lower Quinebaug bridge.

Mrs. E. H. Hiscox is away on a three days' visit with her brother, Arthur E. Swift of Providence.

During the blinding baby blizzard Sunday afternoon a motorist went down the state road at a good clip, with one fastening of the front fender broken, with the steel straps trailing underneath the machine.

Ice measurements Sunday by fishermen on Tadpole pond showed 6 inches. Last year at this date Dorrville fields were frozen, but as a result of a 12-hour southeaster, an inch or more of water and slush was over all the frozen surface.

Several local radio owners report that sets which had been working with exceptionally clear reception all day, went on the war path with a great sputtering, during the squall that struck the town at 4.50 p. m. Sunday.

GOOD PERFORMANCE WITH ECONOMY

THE new Ford is more than a new automobile. It is the expression of an ideal—an ideal that looks to bringing the benefits of modern transportation to all the people.

Because of this purpose, the price is low and great care has been taken to insure economy of operation and up-keep. Few features are of greater importance to millions of motorists.

Conservative figures show that the new Ford averages 20 miles per gallon of gasoline, with many Ford owners reporting greater mileage on long trips. Oil consumption is also low per hundred miles. There is a considerable saving on tires due to the balance of the car, ease of steering and perfected wheel design.

All tires used on new Ford cars and recommended for replacement are specially built by leading tire manufacturers according to specifications laid down by the Ford Motor Company. Mechanical up-keep is low because of simplicity of design and the enduring quality that has been built into every part.

The new Ford Tudor Sedan. A splendid family car because of its economy, comfort, safety, reliability, speed, power, acceleration and ease of operation and control. Finished in a choice of beautiful two-tone color harmonies. Richly upholstered. All appointments fully nickeled.

The new Ford Coupe is a particularly good example of beauty and utility. Built to serve you faithfully and well for many thousands of miles. Equipped with Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield and four Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers.

Large corporations have proved Ford economy

Definite evidence of the economy of the new Ford is shown in the repeated and growing purchases by Federal and city governments, by police departments, and by large industrial companies which keep day-by-day cost records.

The new Ford has been chosen only after exhaustive tests covering every feature of automobile value and performance—from the time of purchase to the final trade-in. Here the Ford policy of not making yearly changes serves to protect and maintain the investment of every Ford owner. All improvements in the new Ford are made so that present owners may take advantage of them quickly and at low cost.

The economy of good service at a fair price

The availability of Ford dealers throughout the world and close factory supervision of all service are additional reasons for the economy of the new Ford.

It has always been our belief that a sale does not complete the transaction between us and the buyer but establishes a new obligation on us to see that his car gives him service. We are as much interested in his economical operation of the car as he is in our economical manufacture of it.

For that reason we have installed a system of controlled service to take care of all Ford car needs in an economical and improved manner. We wish all Ford owners to know what they are entitled to in this respect so that they may readily avail themselves of this service.

Ford service more important than sales

This service begins with proper instruction when you buy the car and includes a free inspection at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles. It continues as long as you are a Ford owner.

No matter where you live or where you go, you will never be very far from a Ford dealer who has been specially trained and equipped to give you courteous, intelligent, economical service. The cost of new parts is low because of the established Ford policy of doing business at a small margin of profit.

The purpose of Ford service is identical with that for which the car itself was built—to help you get many thousands of miles of pleasant, enjoyable motoring at a minimum of trouble and expense. "Good performance with economy" is the reason for the unusual value that is brought to you in the new Ford.

LICENSING DRIVERS.

It seems a bit strange in a state where licenses for drivers of automobiles are necessary that there are states where no such requirement exists. As might be expected such states are unable to exercise the control over the drivers that they should, or would like to.

We find for instance, according to the Indianapolis News, that "In Indiana, anybody, regardless of his physical or mental condition, can obtain a certificate of title to a car and that gives him the privilege of driving. He must demonstrate his unfitness before being told that he cannot drive."

Indiana is talking about the enactment of a driver's license law at the present session. There is a demand for authority to keep reckless drivers from the wheel of an automobile, and it is natural that the advocates of such legislation should look about and note what other states have done in that respect and use that as a guide.

Indiana has apparently witnessed the development of the automobile business and the crowding of the highways with autos without providing that legislation which other states have long since found necessary. It is not alone in this situation but it has come to realize that existing conditions need attention. It is coming to the realization that fitness to be a driver ought to be demonstrated before an accident rather than after. That will not mean the elimination of all accidents but it carries with it the authority on the part of the motor vehicle department in this state to revoke licenses, which drivers are bound to bear in mind.

But in addition to knowing how to drive before getting a license, the recommendation has been made to the Connecticut legislature at the present session that all drivers submit to a test every three years in order to make certain that their condition physically and mentally, is such as to justify the continuance of their driving licenses. This clearly indicates the demands of the times in the interest of safety and that Indiana is farther behind in safety provisions than it may have realized.

CIRCLING THE GLOBE

Because the crew of the Question Mark has been able to keep that plane in the air for more than 150 hours doesn't mean that there has been assurance given that others can remain in the air indefinitely or even exceed that record. It doesn't mean that an endurance flight made over California makes it certain that the same result would be attained in covering distance.

Unquestionably great encouragement has been obtained from the fact that the fliers are able to refuel their machines in the air. This means that sooner or later the time that a machine can be kept in the air will depend chiefly upon the performance of the motors. If they can be kept functioning there should be no question about the distance that can be covered.

It was a fine performance at Los Angeles, but there is a question whether it justifies at this time the plans which are being made for non-stop flights around the world. That involves something more than flying over and near landing fields under most favorable conditions. It may be possible to arrange in advance for the refueling of a round the world plane at fixed points along the route to be covered by the endurance flight, but it is certain that a variety of weather conditions will be encountered that will present their own particular problems.

Still Goebel is among the leaders in announcing his plan. He will have eight or nine months to make his arrangements and get his machine ready. He will get plenty of publicity and he will start with the best of wishes, but there will be no surprise if he is forced down most anywhere. If he reaches his goal it will be a remarkable accomplishment. It is not difficult to theorize and to insist that if the Question Mark was in the air 150 hours some other machine ought to fly twice as long and twice as long ought to complete the circuit of the globe.

It is an ambitious undertaking, than which there is probably none greater than the circling of the globe in the other direction so as to fly over both poles.

TAXING THE VISITORS.

It is not a new contention that the United States ought to take the initiative in lowering the visa fees so that other countries will be encouraged to do likewise.

These fees bother those who visit other countries if they are maintained at a high figure. They are collected by all countries but the amount varies. Where there was the time when all charged $10 there have now been agreements reached where they run as low as $1. Countries have come to an understanding so that their fees are alike. This means the lifting of what those who do much traveling have come to regard as a burden.

These fees are exacted for approving passports and when an American goes across the water and takes in all the countries of Europe he has to pay fee every time he crosses a border. That in Europe is quite frequently and it means a sizeable amount before the trip is concluded if the $10 fee is charged by all of them.

It is possible for this country to make the same charge, and it does, but it is not to be overlooked that when visitors from Europe come here there is but one or two countries that he is likely to visit. He may be content to "do" the United States, in which case he pays but one fee. If he wants to go to Canada, or possibly to Mexico, that would not mean more than two or three fees at the most, while it might easily be a dozen for the American in Europe without covering as much territory as the European visitor to this country.

Efforts to bring about a uniformity in these fees and place them at $1 have succeeded in some instances, but not in all. Complaint is registered that those countries which are the most frequently visited by Americans continue to keep their fees high. They are aware of the great number of visitors, they know all Americans are rich and they are not going to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs. They realize that the situation is all in their favor, that they are profiting handsomely from it without burdening those of their own subjects who come to this side of the Atlantic. They haven't yet reached the decision that even though the present tourist business is good the lowering of the fees would make it better.

GETTING CANADA'S HELP.

There is nothing like trying and those who went to Canada for the purpose of getting the dominion to assist in the enforcing of the prohibition laws can claim they have tried even though it is found that they have not succeeded.

The conference at Ottawa between officials of the two governments has actually accomplished nothing except an exchange of views and the promise of the Canadians to take up the matter with the dominion government.

It was a conference that got none too much support in advance in Canada. There was a feeling that the United States was asking Canada to aid in enforcing prohibition. The desire was for Canada to refuse clearance papers to ships that were about to carry liquor to this country. It would thus be checking what this country regards as illegal traffic. It would be placing a big check upon what is considered to be a big smuggling business, with Canada as the base.

This was sought as a matter of neighborly cooperation, but views in Canada in regard to liquor differ from the dry laws of this country. Canada has its restrictions, almost all of the provinces favoring the sale of liquor under government control, but it isn't dry and if the attitude of the Canadian commissioners can be judged they are not enthusiastic over the proposal from this country, however much such an arrangement might cut down the smuggling.

The final answer will come from the Canadian parliament, but much sentiment in Canada is known to be against it. That may be wet sentiment but it has much influence in our neighbor to the north.

THOSE ALREADY WITHIN.

While there are still strong demands for the maintenance of the restrictions upon immigration, even to the extent of putting the bars up higher, there are also pleas for the elimination of what are regarded as injustices suffered by those who are here and anxious in many instances to become citizens, but unable to do so because they are unable to furnish the data that the government demands.

A bill to correct this situation has been placed before congress by which those who entered the country prior to June 3, 1921, who have since resided here and are of good character may have their entrance legalized. That would meet the requirements of the government in connection with the making of citizens.

There was a time when there were no restrictions, or very few, upon the entrance of aliens. Those who came in under those conditions may or may not have obtained and preserved certificates showing when and how they arrived. They may have demonstrated in the meantime that they are good residents, worthy of becoming citizens, but they are prevented from so doing because that which they must prove is not to be obtained. They have forgotten certain things, or they have lost any documents they may have had. Because the law required such entrance papers they are looked upon as having come in illegally.

Such people are probably due to remain here, and that being the case the question arises as to whether they should be encouraged to become citizens or to remain part of an alien group. The backers of the legislation believe that it is for the best interests of the country that the restrictions which prevail in that respect be lifted and encouragement be given them to become citizens and not solely residents.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Chopped nutmeats improve the steamed pudding.

Finnan haddie is good creamed with green peppers.

Dry the nickel work around sinks and wash basins each time they are used and it will remain bright.

Butter will keep hard without ice if the dish containing it is set in cold salt water.

Keep a tea kettle of water on the pilot burner of the gas range and you always will have hot water.

Sweet oil rubbed on damp shoes will prevent them from cracking.

Serve horseradish sauce with roast veal.

A piece of linoleum, thoroughly waxed, makes a good cover for the kitchen table.

Ventilate your cellar at night. Keep it closed during the day.

Watch your refrigerator carefully. Wipe up anything that is stilled, at the time it is spilled, using a cloth wrung from warm water.

To keep fish, wrap it in heavy wax paper and put it directly on the ice.

Flannel cloths are best for wiping paint.

All cloths used for dish washing an dother kitchen purposes should be of an absorbent material.

Use one level teaspoon of baking powder to each cup of flour.

Use one tablespoon of butter and one of flour to each half pint of liquid for a sauce.

In cake making, remember that four tablespoons of shortening, a cup of sugar, one egg and a cup of liquid require two cups of cake flour for thickening.

Use a half teaspoon of baking soda to each cup of thick sour milk.

Use a half teaspoon of salt to each half pint of liquid in seasoning. A saltspoon of salt is enough for a quart of milk for custard or milk toast. A saltspoon of white or black pepper is enough for two quarts of soup.

OLD CHICKENS PLUMP, TENDER

The age of the maturest bird will rouse no suspicions in the mind of the most fastidious gourmet if it is subjected to the following culinary treatment:

Soak the chicken, duly cleaned and singed, for a full hour in cold water. This constitutes the "plumping-up" process. The next step is to put inside the fowl an onion, some celery and salt, and over it squeeze a few drops of lemon juice to take off the "feather taste." Place the bird on the bars of a steaming pan and cover it with a wet cheesecloth. Pour into the pan about one cup of cold water to start the steam. Cover the pan and place in a slow oven.

The steaming process performs a sort of miracle. It renders the chicken tender as a young bird.

The cooking can then be completed in any way desired—by roasting, boiling or stewing.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

To prevent backaches, adjust sinks and washtubs to the right height.

It is tremendously refreshing after a hard day on one's feet to soak thm in hot bran and soda water, dry and rub with alcohol.

A paste of starch and water covered thickly over the bruised skin will prevent the bruise from turning black.

Reducing baths deserve a space all their own, for there seems no subject so close to the heart of women as figure reduction. A reducing bath calls for one pound of epsom salts to a tub of hot water. Stay in for half an hour and then roll up in a blanket and encourage the perspiration to flow freely.

DUST TO DUST

Whether dusting proves to be a systematic housekeeping measure or a waste of time depends largely upon the dust cloth. Some dust cloths merely waft the dust from one object to another—others absorb the tiny particles until they are washed or shaken out.

To make an absorbent or "dustless" duster, immerse a large square of cheesecloth in a basin of strong hot soapsuds. Let it soak for a while, then wring out and dry. Use in the regular way to dust and polish. When the cloth becomes soiled, it can be washed and retreated.

WHEN WOOD WANTS WASHING

It's all right to touch wood if you think it will prevent bad luck, but you've got to exert a little more effort than that to keep your wooden kitchen utensils in good condition. Such articles as salad forks, rolling pins, bowls and mixing spoons are likely to become musty and discolored unless they receive extra attention occasionally. Scrub the wooden pieces with hot soapsuds, to which a little washing soda has been added, rinse in clear water and dry thoroughly. Next time you roll a pie-crust with a fresh and spotless rolling pin, see if your luck in baking doesn't improve.

TO CARAMELIZE SUGAR

To caramelize sugar, place one cup of sugar in an iron frying pan, heat very slowly and stir constantly with a wooden spoon until the mixture becomes a rich deep brown color. Add one cup of water and boil for three minutes. Cool and pour into a bottle or jar and store in the icebox. When a cake, cooky or custard recipe calls for caramel, it is ready for use.

THE YEAST CAKE

A fresh yeast cake will keep for several days in a dry corner of the refrigerator. Never put it directly on the ice and be sure to keep it wrapped in the tinfoil. If the yeast is too soft to handle, it is not good to use.

PAPER TOWELS

By keeping paper towels on hand in the kitchen, much work can be saved. Use them to wipe up spilled grease, to clean up the stove, to put on the table before peeling vegetables, and to wipe your hands on.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Powder blue is the newest color, used very little, but this face gives it an air of importance.

The knitted helmet is the smartest winter sports cap for protecting the ears, but it helps around the chin as well.

Padding the edges of coats into rope effect and adding diagon trimming to accentuate the rope theme is a novelty.

Flowered prints of rather large designs on black backgrounds are not only stunning but quite smart for daytime wear.

For sports at resorts and for later spring wear is the sheer jersey frock of white with beret of the same fabric and color.

An attractive combination used in the envelope bag is the tri-color, which includes blue, red and beige as well as other harmonious tri's of color.

A long midship reefer of knitted chevlot is one of those very new deas which has arrived in the shops now full of fascinating fashions of post-holiday type.

Very chic are suede shoes which combine two other leathers as trimming. A suede shoe, for instance, will have a buckle of patent leather and a piping of snakeskin.

Fancy pins and brooches are used in various places on dresses. They can be worn either on the shoulder, center of belt, side of belt or at the end of a lengthy and flowing collar.

Luxurious comfort for the motorist consists of blanket, pillow and foot-warmer of broadcloth and plush. If desired a stunning monogram of cut-out letters may be appliqued to each piece.

Unique this season are bags made of fur, American broadtail, beaver or caracul, which are mounted upon the side of small muffs. Others have a large tortoiseshell ring which is slipped over the arm.

Abbreviations of the familiar length in bloomers are models that fit low on the hip and high on the leg. These are said to be far more comfortable and are more atractive than the variety having voluminous shirrings at both waistline and knee.

Delightful for debutante wear are cream colored taffeta frocks made with very long skirt completely covered with small ruffles of the taffeta pinked upon the edges. The waist has a little embroidery in crystal beads.

FUR UNDER COATS

Every cloud may have a silver lining but the main thing that makes the outlook brighter these days is for every coat to have a fur lining. The smartest women are wearing their fur linings independent of the coat itself. The fur is usually rabbit or coney or beaver or squirrel and may be lined or unlined. It is without sleeves and is slipped on underneath the woolen coat. It has no collar and the lines are slim and straight.

THICK AND THIN

Combinations of materials are as frequent today in dress as combinations in colors. One of the alliances most favored is between moire silk and net. One is thick and somewhat stiff. The other is light, transparent and flexible. The combination lends itself wonderfully to the tight bodice and flaring skirt of the modern evening dress.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Olive oil, added to the water in which you wash chamois gloves, keeps them from getting stiff and hard. Use only a teaspoonful.

An ironing board covered alike on both sides is handy in that light, fine materials may always be ironed on one side and the opposite side used for suits and woolens and things liable to run. The cover may be joined with heavy cotton along each side of the board.

The most satisfactory cloth to use for pressing suits or dresses of wool is one made of wool, or part wool, as it will ward off that shiny appearance for some time.

DARK CLOTHING BRIGHTENED WITH FRESH COLLARS

Light collars, vestees and cuffs add a chic and becoming touch to many a somber-colored winter garment, provided, of course, that they are kept spotlessly clean. It is an expensive matter to send a garment to the cleaner's every time these portions become soiled and a nuisance to remove the soiled parts and sew them back into place after they have been laundered.

As a matter of fact, it is not necessary to go to so much trouble. Any young woman who is careful can launder these extra pieces successfully without detaching them from the garment.

Cover your ironing board with a towel or some other absorbent material, lay the garment flat on the board and apply lukewarm soapsuds to the soiled portions with a soft brush or a clean piece of cotn. Go over the surface with clear warm water, then place between two dry towels in order to absorb as much of the moisture as possible. Iron while still damp.

While you are working place a blotter, or, if necessary, two blotters on the darker material, close against the joining place. This will help to keep the water from spreading and prevent stray drops from spotting the garment.

MATTINGS

If you sweep matting with a broom, sweep with the grain. A soft brush is the better implement to use, and you can sweep across the grain with that—this precaution will lengthen the service of the matting.

After sweeping wash with a weak solution of borax water, being careful not to saturate the matting, and wipe off dry with an extra cloth.

When buying matting select the reversible types for good service. Those in natural color are usually of better quality than the dyed variety. Of course, the closer and finer the weave the better the matting will wear. It is economy to buy the best quality when selecting matting.

FUNNELS TO ORDER

Often we are in need of a small funnel to fill salt and pepper boxes. This can easily be made by cutting off the tip of the corner of an envelope and using that corner as a funnel.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Mme. Suzanne Grinberg, France's first woman lawyer, makes a specialty of divorces.

Many young girls in Tokio, Japan, are finding employment as motorbus conductors.

Practically 50 per cent of the total number of voters in the United States are women.

Thirty-four women lawyers were recently admitted to the bar in Massachusetts.

England now has eight women representatives in Westminster for the 14,000,000 women voters of the country.

Ireland's oldest inhabitant, the Hon. Miss Catherine Plunkett, recently celebrated her 108th birthday in Dublin.

Mrs. Helen E. Sherry of Baltimore is the first woman lawyer to argue before the Maryland court of appeals.

There are 21 women ministers preaching the gospel in non-conformist churches throughout Great Britain every Sunday.

OILCLOTH

If you accidentally cut the new oilcloth on the kitchen table or dresser place a strip of adhesive tape underneath and press it flat. It will hold as long as the cloth lasts.

WASHING WINDOWS

A lump of starch dissolved in the water when washing windows will give them a brilliant shine.

RECIPES

Vegetable Salad: 3-4 cup diced cooked macaroni, 1-2 cup diced celery, 1-4 cup French peas (or fresh), 1-2 cup cooked carrot straw, 1-4 cup string beans, 1 hard-cooked egg—cut in cubes, 2 tablespoons snappy cheese—cut in bits.

Sprinkle lightly with salt and paprika. Moisten with Russian salad dressing. Blend in one raw tomota cut in pieces. Heap in mounds on a salad platter and surround with border of lettuce and dressing. Sprinkle half with chopped parsley and the other half with chopped hard-cooked egg.

Russian Dressing: 3-4 cup thick mayonnaise, 2 canned pimentos, chopped, 1 tablespoon cloves, chopped, 2 tablespoons tomato catsup, 2 tablespoons chopped chow-chow, 1-4 cup whipped cream.

Mix all together thoroughly.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—What the ultimate, practical effect of President-elect Hoover's goodwill tour in Latin-America will be is, of course, purely a matter of speculation. It takes a mere glance at the treatment accorded the subject by the press in each sister republic of the Pan-American family, however, to disclose the great potential significance attached to the event in those countries.

By way of illustration, La Nacion, Buenos Aires, in its issue of December 13 is a striking example. A 12 page supplement to the regular issue of the paper has reached Washington showing the extraordinary lengths to which it went to do justice to the event.

The news of Mr. Hoover's comings and goings was handled in the regular news columns but in the supplement readers of La Nacion were provided an amazingly complete review of the Hoover history, personal and public, a pen picture of Mrs. Hoover, extensive discussion of relations betwen Argentina and the United States, judicial, economic and cultural, and a wide assortment of other similar "background" matter on the Hoover visit.

Easy for Non-Linguist

Even a non-Spanish reading American would feel at home on looking over the supplement. At least, he could tell from the headlines what it was all about. Sketches of Mr. Hoover's great predecessors in the white house, Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln, were included.

The history of commerce between the two nations was charted and tabulated. One special article was headed "Monroe vs. Metternich"; another devoted a page, including a 10-out illustration layout, to Leland Stanford, Jr., university as Hoover's alma mater.

The supplement also shows extensive advertising by American automobile concerns and even hat makers. It does not appear to be entirely a business office proposition, however. On the contrary, it shows an extraordinary degree of newspaper research and enterprise bought to bear on what the editors clearly regarded as an event of possible great importance to Argentina.

Pleasing to Hoover

No doubt this was all very satisfactory to Mr. Hoover. His trip clearly had meaning and purpose quite outside the escape it afforded him from the army of federal job seekers, high and low, with whom he must deal sooner or later.

And it should not be forgotten that in Latin-American eyes his tour must be looked upon as assurance in advance of the continuance of the policy of rapproachement with southern neighbors so markedly turned its attention in the last two years.

YOUR HEALTH

The Aching Tooth No Longer Tolerated; Good Teeth Yield Cumulative Dividends

By Manuel Leo Adler, D. D. S.
New York City

New York city demands a satisfactory set of teeth of their policemen and firemen. A policeman doesn't arrest a criminal with his teeth, nor does a fireman fight a fire with his teeth. But the city authorities know that a policeman or a fireman can't be physically fit and efficient with poor teeth.

The authorities want them to be in the pink of condition so that in the hour of need they can be on hand faithfully to discharge their duties instead of being at home on sick leave, tortured by an excruciating toothache or by the ill effects of a sick body caused by bad teeth.

A great many industrial organizations have found that too many employes were absent from work on account of toothaches, or continuing half-heartedly at work suffering with toothaches, with the attendant slowing down of the work of the organization. Large industrial organizations have therefore become interested in the welfare of their employes, and see to it that their teeth are kept in a satisfactory condition. They have spent thousands of dollars to conduct dental departments. Such a dental department has proved invaluable because the standard of efficiency of employes has been raised. Absence from duty because of dental trouble and illness due to bad teeth has practically been eliminated. Good teeth pay industrial dividends!

My point is this: If concerns gladly spend thousands of dollars to see to it that their employes have good teeth so that the organization machinery runs smoothly and uninterruptedly, then, surely, an individual should spend a little money to see to it that he keeps physically fit via good teeth so that he may always be healthy and enjoy his wages. Besides, not everyone is so situated that his pay goes on even though he is home suffering with a toothache. Some people lose pay for time off.

No one is any good at his job with an aching tooth. This is the age of efficiency, and time and progress wait for no sick man.

There is no excuse today for neglecting your teeth. Modern dentistry is now within the reach of everyone. Most dentists are glad to arrange convenient terms to please.

Good teeth yield cumulative dividends of good health. They are preferred as to good appearance. They are convertible into good speech. They earn satisfaction and are a safe and wise investment.

You, as an individual, should keep yourself physically fit via good teeth to insure a 100 per cent working and earning power.

If you are an employer or member of an employes' association you should interest the employes in the industrial value of good teeth. Do it as an investment in their health and it will pay dividends in greater efficiency and less loss of time from work. It will be forging additional links of appreciation, interest and cooperation in the chain of your organization strength.

It pays to have good teeth!

Stories That Recall Others

Professional Perquisities.

The fifth grade children were rehearsing a Christmas play and one of the boys objected to the part that had been assigned to him although I had only a few lines and a gorgeous costume.

Being pressed for his reasons for objecting, he finally muttered: "Heck, all the other kids got to eat candy and nuts in the feast and I am not in that scene!"

Just Like Football.

Little Morton returning from a visit to a farm was telling of the many things that interested him in describing a hen and chickens he told his mother: "And, mother, when the little chicks get cold they all do a huddle with the old mother hen just like the boys that play football out on the playground do."

CHILD TRAINING

ABSENT TRAINING

Mary Starck Kerr

Mrs. Blank was the mother of one boy. She had a really good system of child training and had followed it for several years. The boy seemed an ideal child, so Mrs. Blank felt safe, now, in taking a position outside of her home. It was not absolutely necessary for her to go out to work, but the money would enable the family to buy many things for which they had longed.

But with the duties of the new position there was not much time for home life left. Before Teddy's school time, his mother was gone, leaving directions for him to follow when he arrived at home. But there was no one to see that the directions were carried out. Teddy played with the neighbors' children, and Mrs. Blank had no way of knowing that some of the neighbors' children had been learning many wrong and injurious habits. She did not know that, now Teddy was also learning these same habits. She had followed her child training system, and as it had worked out beautifully so far, she trusted it to go on working in her absence.

Mrs. Blank had forgotten that a system of child training is at best only a tool, and cannot work without the owner's hand back of it. One cannot press a button to start the machinery running in the morning, and then expect it to go on running smoothly all day.

The right kind of a tool will work wonders when someone is present to use it skillfully, but it accomplishes nothing when it lies at home without the trained hand to employ it. It was a terrible shock to Mrs. Blank when she heard of some things her son had been doing. Her eyes were opened to the fact that she was needed at home. The money she was earning at the office was buying useful and beautiful things for the home, and helping to pay off the mortgage, but Mrs. Blank decided that it would be better to be satisfied with the plainest of furniture and take longer to pay for the home.

It took some time to undo the harm that had resulted from neglect, but the first step was a heart to heart talk with the boy. He had imbibed a wrong idea of the value of money as compared with other things, by seeing his mother so eager to secure it. When he saw her give up her salary for the sake of doing her duty at home, it did him more good than any amount of lecturing could have done. When his mother and father ceased to spend money or "fine clothes," cosmetics and tobacco, then the boy began to see something bigger and better than a quest for money to spend for toys and candy. The tool worked again when its owner came home and took it in her own hand.

If a mother is obliged to be away from home, some other competent person should be left to care for her child. She must not expect her knowledge of child training to be effective during her continued absence.

If a man is ignorant he soon publishes the fact.

Place also survives her. There are living fourteen grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

The Place family has always been a rarely united family and Mrs. Place was a wonderful mother to them all. They were always coming home to see her and every holiday found them all together. Mrs. Place was a true home-maker, setting anyone at ease who came into her home and always welcoming any visitors, even a chance comer. She was a spendid neighbor. "Her children rise up and call her blessed; her husband also and he praiseth her."

The funeral services were held at her late residence on the Plainfield Pike. Rev. F. M. Buker of Knotty Oak church, Washington officiated. The house was crowded and many could not find room. Frederick H. Bushnell

One of Norwich Town's most esteemed residents, Frederick H. Bushnell, 70, died Sunday morning at 9:30, at the home of his brother, Frank B. Bushnell, of Occum, where he had made his home since the death of his wife, Marietta Rose Bushnell. September 13th, 1928, just four months to a day. The end came peacefully while he was seated in his chair. Mr. Bushnell has been in failing health for the past year or more, though his condition, due to shocks and a weak heart, had continued to grow worse rapidly through grief since the death of his wife. He was the son of Frederick and Hanna Benjamin Bushnell, for years residents of Norwich, in Preston and Greeneville section. He was born in 1858. When a young man he lived on a farm, though for about 40 years had taught school. He was principal during these years in four different schools, Preston, before it was taken into Norwich; Voluntown, the old West Town street school in Norwich Town, and in later years at Yantic. At the Rose homestead on Wauwecus Hill, July 30th, 1884, he was united in marriage with Marietta Rose, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Frederick D. Baker, then pastor of the Norwich Town Methodist church. For many years their home was on Huntington avenue. Mr. Bushnell is survived by his brother, Frank B. Bushnell and by a nephew, Howard Bushnell of Occum. His cousins are: Second Selectman Charles P. Bushnell, Nathan Bushnell, Mrs. Mary Webb, Frank B. Ray, Mrs. Stewart Greenman, all of Norwich Town and Mrs. Harriet Steere, of Fairmount street, Norwich, also by others in the Benjamin family on his mother's side. He was one of the outstanding members and active workers of Norwich Town Methodist church for nearly half a century. He served in various offices in the church and for 44 years was its faithful superintendent of the Sunday school. In speaking of his loyalty and fidelity a former pastor, Rev. William F. Crawford, said on one occasion: "We have in our community one who has indelibly impressed his value upon our church for many years." It was at this time that an enlarged photograph of Mr. Bushnell was presented the Sunday school and handsomely framed, it still hangs on the wall in the vestry. In the same household in a period of just four months, this is the third death, that of Mrs. Bushnell, September 13th last, her mother, Mrs. Reuben P. Rose, who occupied the upper part of the Bushnell home, died Thursday last, and now the passing of Mr. Bushnell, although he died at his brother's home, was for years a prominent official at Willimantic camp ground, known to many hundreds of attendants.

Australia's population averages a little more than two people a square mile.

RAYMOND GEER FATALLY SHOT WITH HIS OWN GUN WHILE AFTER SQUIRREL

Shot with the gun he was about to use to get a squirrel at his home on Scotland road, Norwich Town, Sunday afternoon about 1 o'clock, Raymond J. Geer, 26, son of Adelbert E. Geer, died about 3:30 at Backus hospital from loss of blood. The charge from the shotgun tore a gaping hole through his diaphram and spleen, causing such profuse hemorrhage in the abdominal cavity that there was little hope for him from the first, although he was rushed with all the speed possible to the Backus hospital where Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve operated to check the flow of blood by removing the spleen and sewing up the wound in the diaphram.

Geer was conscious when brought to the hospital, but was in such a weakened and collapsed condition that he was able to give but little information about the shooting except to say that it was accidental.

According to what Coroner E. G. McKay and Medical Examiner Gildersleeve learned in an investigation at the Geer home Sunday night, the young man came home about 1 o'clock and upon coming into the house said he had seen a squirrel and thought he would go and get it. He spoke to his grandmother and his step-mother, inquired about one of his brothers, and said he wanted to take the gun. As the young man was loading the gun, his father told him it wouldn't be any use as the squirrel would be gone before he got there, but Raymond went out of the house and down across the lawn. When he had reached a point between the house and the barn and the shed, the family heard a shot and rushed out to find him on the ground, terribly wounded.

Dr. Gildersleeve, who was reached by telephone at his office, responded at once and summoned the ambulance as soon as he saw the desperate condition of the wounded man and had him taken to the hospital.

While the coroner and the medical examiner were at the Geer house Sunday night, a chimney fire broke out there and they joined the family in a fire fighting brigade to check the flames and save the house from destruction. Coroner McKay brought the shotgun to police headquarters and left it there. Only one barrel had been discharged.

Young Geer had been employed in farm work and also as a taxi driver and had lately driven a motor truck. Besides his father and a sister he is survived by his step-mother and several half-brothers and sisters.

STOECKEL MAKES SUGGESTION FOR SPECIAL INVESTIGATORS

The creation of a small force of special investigators within the state motor vehicle department is proposed in the annual report of Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel submitted to Gov. John H. Trumbull today. This new organization would augment the services given by members of the department of state police, now assigned to inspection with the motor vehicle department.

"Admittedly, the state police department is undermanned," says the report. "There is insufficient policing of the highways and lack of an adequate force of examiners and investigators in connection with the licensing of operators, registration of vehicles, and consideration of matters outside ordinary routine.

"The state police should be greatly increased so as to admit of the regular assignment of more men to this department, and a special inspection force should be organized in this department to handle at least a part of the work in question."

Both proposals, an increase in police personnel and the organization of an investigation division, will possibly be among the matters submitted for consideraiton to the present general assembly.

Additional comment in the report on the need for increased service points out that during the past few years large amounts have been spent upon extension and improvements in the highway system, but "there has not been commensurate expenditure of state funds upon adequate regulation of the traffic these highways accommodate.

"Until there is a change of policy in this matter," the report continues, "with resulting adequate provision made for examinations of various kinds before the granting of licenses and the constant supervision and regulation after such licenses are in effect, it does no seem likely that the greatest possible degree of public safety will be attained."

Clarification of the statutes relative to the duties of the department in regard to dealers in motor vehicles and several classes of public service owners and operators is also considered a "pressing need." Much difficulty is now experienced in reaching clear, fair interpretations and establishment of workable regulations. "If satisfactory clarification be out of the question," the report recommends "a change in the policy of the state to the end of simplifying the classification and regulation of such operations."

The report also calls attention to a situation created by delay in making reports of court determinations and remitting of fines. "The relations of many courts with this department," it says, "in the matter of prompt reporting of determinations of cases coming before them and the remitting of fines imposed by them, in connection with motor vehicle law violations, are not as satisfactory as they might be and frequently entail needless delay and correspondence."

An outline of "administration difficulties" presents interstate bus operation as still a "problem," because the status of such operation has remained unchanged since the last report. It is advanced that there is some likelihood of ultimate solution of the problem through federal regulation.

Specific state border line problems, which have improved because of reciprocal legislation in various states, are dealt with in detail. The trend of present day legislation is found to be toward the liberalizing of reciprocal privileges and this has allowed the elimination of much friction to the benefit of travelling motorists.

An increase in the net revenue collected by the department, during the biennium which the report covers, July 1, 1926, to June 30, 1928, of $4,723,641 is reported. This increase was brought about chiefly by normal increase in vehicle registration and the licensing of operators. Also the fuel or gasoline tax was levied at the rate of two cents a gallon during all of the period while in one-half of the previous biennium the rate was only one cent a gallon.

There is also discussion in the report of the general administration matters, changes in laws effective during the period, and figures on the traffic and accident situations. Charts graphs and statistical tables illustrate and explain situations, progress or needs as visualized by department heads.

The place occupied by the department as a result of its research work has brought special mention in the report. "There has been an increase in requests for information from authorities of other states and countries where there has been little or no systematic accumulation of such information. These requests have pertained especially to motor vehicle accident causes and means suggested for prevention. They have been received from practically every state, and from many other countries, such as Japan, Cuba and Holland. The research departments of many colleges and national safety and accident prevention organizations have also sought much information.

HENS AT STORRS KEEPING UP RECORD

Even though weather conditions for the past week have been very unfavorable for egg production, yet the hens in the laying contest at Storrs produced the most eggs since the contest started last November. They laid 4139 eggs or a production of 59.1 per cent. This makes a grand total to date of 38,119 eggs, which is an average of a little better than 38 eggs per bird. A few pens have been affected with bronchitis and unless weather conditions improve, it is anticipated that further outbreak may occur, although everything possible is being done to avert this catastrophe.

With a production of 69 eggs Charlescote's Rhode Island Reds from Sherborn, Mass., won the week. This is a yield of almost 99 per cent. For the last three weeks this pen has been either first or tied for first. At the rate these birds have been going it is apparent that they will appear amongst the leaders in the Red class before many weeks.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties:

Barred Rocks—R. C. Cobb, Old Pickard farm, Littleton, Mass., 547; R. Walter Bishop, Guilford, Conn., 529; Hawes Bros., Union, Maine, 442.

"BANKRUPTCY" SHORTAGE MAY RUN AS HIGH AS $70,000,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—Federal and legal authorities marshalled their forces today for a concerted campaign against the New York "bankruptcy ring," investigation of which already has led to the indictment of two lawyers and a suicide attempt by a relative of one. Officials estimate the shortages may run as high as $70,000,000.

Charles Evans Hughes, president of the New York Bar association, has promised the co-operation of that organization in helping Charles H. Tuttle, United States attorney for this district, investigate the activities of receivers in bankruptcies. Discovery of the alleged peculations of one of whom led to the inquiry.

Mr. Tuttle plans tomorrow to open two safe deposit boxes belonging to David Steinhardt, fugitive lawyer and receiver in 127 bankruptcies, and Max Pinner, Steinhardt's distant cousin. Pinner is in a critical condition in Bellevue hospital after having slashed his throat with a pen knife in an effort to commit suicide. Merrill E. Gates, Jr., also an attorney and receiver, is the second man under indictment.

Y. M. C. A. SENIORS LOSE TO FAST MIDDLETOWN QUINTET IN CLOSE GAME

The Y Seniors lost their third straight game Saturday night at the Y gym, bowing before the last minute attack of Middletown, 34 to 28. The visitors snatched victory in the last five minutes coming from behind while holding the locals scoreless in that time.

The game was one of the most stubbornly contested of the year. The score was tied several times and when it wasn't, the margin was still close. In fact, the only time anybody broke away was in the closing moments of the game when the visitors sewed up the contest. This victory evened the series for Middletown, the Norwich team having a 30 to 24 decision early in the season.

The Y's regular five that won six straight games before starting on this losing streak on New Year's day, was broken up when Jim Kelly, guard, reported with a leg injury. Al Grebe was inserted in his place and did very well, in fact, played practically as good a game as Kelly usually does. And better than Jim did when he replaced Grebe in the last quarter. However, it may be that the absence of Kelly hurt the Y's teamwork just enough to lose the decision.

Wilcox and Hanson put on a brilliant exhibition of long distance shooting. It was their work with this form of play that won the game. They dropped them in from all angles and going at top speed.

The first quarter ended, 8 to 6, the second 15 to 13, both times the Seniors having the edge. The finish of the third period was a deadlock and from the tapoff in the final stanza the real fireworks began. Norwich led for a few minutes but once the visitors found the range they scored easily while the Norwich shots, a couple of very easy ones, were not forthcoming. Towards the end, the locals began to throw the ball around wildly and consequently gave Middletown more and more chances.

This game did not have any bearing on the state Y championship. It is probable that a third game will be arranged between Norwich and Middletown before the title chase begins. This rubber should draw a good crowd if any basketball game would draw in Norwich. Saturday night there were about 30 paid admissions for a real good game.

In the preliminary the Y Emps took a 37 to 24 decision from the Baltic Bantams. Economous ran wild, scoring 18 points, while A. Dishon led Baltic with 12 points. The Emps presented a revamped lineup that went through the game in good shape.

PLENTY OF COMPETITION FOR NURMI AT BOSTON

BOSTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—Paavo Nurmi, the phantom Finn, probably will meet with the stiffest opposition of this year's track campaign, when he comes here on January 26 to run in the two mile event in the Knights of Columbus games at the Boston Garden.

The meet officials have already obtained the services of Leo Lermond, of Boston, who is about the best two miler in the country, and are trying to induce three other stars to enter the event, which has been called the Leo Larrivee special, in honor of the late Holy Cross star. Lermond, who recently rejoined Coach Jack Ryder's Boston A. A. track squad, is said to be in remarkable form. The Boston runner, who provided one of the greatest thrills at the Amsterdam Olympic games when he raced against Willie Ritola, Nurmi and Edvin Wide of Sweden and finished fourth in the 5,000 meters final, has been anxious to try to outstep the Finn again ever since he saw him almost collapse after trailing Ritola to the finish line.

Ryder has always claimed that Lermond had enough stuff to win the Olympic 5,000 meters race. He blamed Lermond's lack of arm drive during the last 150 yards for his finish in fourth place.

The K of C track officials would like to start MacCauley Smith against Nurmi and Lermond, as the former Yale star also placed in the Olympic 5,000 meters final but cracked about two laps from the finish line.

BRADDOCK TO FIGHT LOMSKI FRIDAY NIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—They seem to go into the west to get opposition for James J. Braddock, the Jersey City light-heavyweight.

James, who helped Gene Tunney train for his match against Tom Heeney last summer, battles Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen Assassin, at Madison Square Garden Friday night in the week's banner attraction in metropolitan rings. It will be the Jersey City slugger's first bout since he knocked out Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City sensation, in two rounds at the Garden on Nov. 30.

Lomski has been idle for about four months. He beate Pete Latzo at Detroit early in September and then went to Aberdeen, Wash., his home, to rest up. Lomski undoubtedly will be the favorite on Friday night despite Braddock's sensational victory over the highly-touted Griffiths. The fight is for ten rounds.

Nando Tassi, New York Italian light - heavyweight, meets Charley Belanger, the Canadian, in the ten-round semi-final.

ACADEMY PLAYS PRATT HIGH AT THE Y GYM THIS EVENING

PROBABLE LINEUPS

N. F. A.		Pratt High
Stevens	lf	Loyeski
Fagan	rf	Baroni
Dickerman	c	Peterson
LaCroix	lg	Dradeen
Barber	rg	Wind

Game starts at 8:15 p. m.

The Academy's basketball team has three games this week, all of which can be considered as tough assignments for the green Wildcat five. Two are at home and that may help some.

Tonight at the Y gym the locals open their home season, playing Pratt High of Essex, a scrappy little five that will give them a lot of trouble. Friday night, also at the Y gym, the Red and White meets Bryant-Stratton five of Providence and then on Saturday night Torrington High is the opponent, this game at Torrington.

Pratt High is just what the locals are equal to at this stage of the season. The Academy has an even chance with the invaders, even though this is only their second game and the down-state boys have been playing for a month or more. In losing to Putnam Friday night, no doubt the Academy got a lot of valuable experience and in tonight's game will strive to correct some of the faults evident up against the Noyes outfit.

The Academy, of course, will be more at home over on the Y surface, having practiced there for about three weeks. Coach Courtland C. Whitney did not definitely announce his lineup last night but it is expected to be pretty much the same as that which started in Putnam.

Pratt has not been going so good so far this season but is quite apt to reach top form in time for tonight's tussle. The Academy's defense has not tightened sufficiently as yet to allow a prophesy of victory over the Essex team and the game really looks like a close affair.

There will be no preliminary game tonight and there will be a reduction in admission charge. The game will start at 8:15.

A large turnout of students is expected for the clash to welcome the boys to the home court.

MGR. MURPHY REPLIES TO ATTACK ON CRONIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 13—When interviewed regarding an article in The Bulletin last week attacking the sportsmanship of John "Jack" Cronin, popular Putnam football star, Manager F. H. Murphy of the Headquarters Co. quintet of Putnam, expressed his surprise at the actions of the unknown Danielson spokesman. "I hardly believe that the article was sanctioned by proper officials from our neighboring town," continued Murphy. "The Danielson executives are known to be gentlemen and would not approve or instigate the attack on Cronin's character or sportsmanship in an unsigned article. Undoubtedly the contribution is the offering of some over-zealous man influenced by the strained feeling at the time," said Mr. Murphy.

"I have nothing to say regarding th game in question, as differences seemed to have been met when the league president, A. Fulkerson, issued a call for an early board meeting to settle the Danielson protest. The Headquarters Co. in any case follow the decision handed down by the board in the event of a proper investigation. I think that the several team managers will agree that this is the only method of settling the legality of the protest of the recent contest."

PLAINFIELD BUDDIES QUIT SOUTHERN N. E. LEAGUE

Owing to the treatment the Plainfield Buddies received at the hands of the Woodstock team they have withdrawn from the Southern New England basketball league, not only for the benefit of the Plainfield team, but other teams in the league as well. To play such a game as was played on Friday night would not only cause bodily injury to the players, but also cause ill feeling among the different teams.

A team would have to be comprised of two or more Cronins to win a basketball game away from home. It was not only the roughness of the game but the manner the game was handled. The second half was played under protest resulting from a foul called on a Plainfield man, one of the few during the game, which numbered four in all. The Plainfield Buddies were the Southern New England basketball champs last year, 1927-28 and would like to arrange games with any teams in the league but refused to continue as a member. The Buddies have already won ten out of twelve games played this season. So teams wishing games write Plainfield Community House or telephone Moosup, 42-3.

In the second half Plainfield came back strong and tied the score on nice shots by Disainger and Tisdale, and it was nip and tuck until the final five minutes when Bristol pulled away from Plainfield never to be threatened again. WINDHAM BEATS PUTNAM FOR LEAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 13—Windham high assumed undisputed leadership of the Eastern Connecticut - Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league here Saturday night at the Y gym by trimming Putnam high, 35 to 22. Friday night Putnam beat Norwich Free Academy. This was only Putnam's second defeat of the season and halted a five game winning streak.

With Artie Meikie and Captain Mason leading the way the local boys swept on to an impressive victory. It was their opening league encounter.

At half time the Callaghan charges had a 27 to 7 lead but when three Windham men were forced out late in the third quarter, Lamson with an injured foot and Monast and Luciani on fouls, it gave Putnam a chance to close the gap a trifle. However, the substitutes held the fort and Windham finished with a 13-point margin.

Leo was Putnam's best man.

In the preliminary the Putnam second team took a close victory from Windham's seconds, 15 to 13. Summary:

MACDONALD SMITH WINS $10,000 LOS ANGELES OPEN WITH CARD OF 285

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13—(AP)—As a curtain of darkness rolled over picturesque Santa Monica Canyon tonight, MacDonald Smith, product of the windswept plains of Carnoustie, strode to a two-time victory in the great $10,000 Los Angeles open golf tournament. The tournament is being played over the links of the Riviera Country club in west Los Angeles.

Play that was always steady turned back the brilliancy of Tommy Armour, Washington, D. C., professional, who had led the tournament until the 54 hole mark and gave Smith a 72 hole score of 71-71-70-73—285.

With his triumph, the lean Scot, who now claims Great Neck, Long Island, N. Y., as his home, carried off a first prize of $3,500.

It was a crown that he already had worn for a year that Smith retained in the fact of the strongest competition that golfing circles of the west coast ever have been assembled.

Smith, with a never-faltering pace came from behind in the final 36 holes of the tournament to wipe out a seven stroke lead that Armour had piled up in two sub-par rounds. Smith stroked his way over links which had wrecked the golf of Walter Hagen, Leo Diegel, and George Von Elm, and his aggregate for the gruelling 72 hole play was but a single stroke above perfect figures.

Popular champion that the venerable MacDonald Smith is, the gallery never lost hope until the final few holes, that the slender wartorn figure of Armour, would sit in the Los Angeles open throne. Their hopes had been raised high by golf such as this course never had seen before in his two first rounds of 68 and 67 respectively, three and four strokes under par.

But hopes that the Washington pro would continue that pace, were shattered today when Armour fell five strokes over par on his morning round and was six strokes behind perfect figures when he left off at the 17th because of darkness on the final 18 holes.

Armour when he picked upon the 17th had to make a four par on the final hole to give him a 288. He will play the last hole tomorrow at 1 p. m., at which time it will be known whether he takes second place and prize money of $1,750. The long first hole, a par five, 470 yard affair, proved the nemesis of Armour. On both rounds today he took seven strokes before he could hole out. Again on the 440 yard fifth with a par of 4, he hit trouble in the afternoon and chalked up another seven. He was consistently slicing and hooking today and his putting was bad.

The youthful Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., was in third place tonight but his position was insecure. Leo Diegel of the Agua Caliente Country club in Mexico and national professional champion, had a chance to nose him out, while George Von Elm, amateur from Detroit and national amateur king in 1927, could tie him. Smith completed the 36 holes with a card of 71-75-72-76—294.

Diegel left off play on the 16th, because of the darkness, with a 63 for that distance. By finishing in par, a five on the 17th and a four on the final hole, he would have an aggregate of 292. His previous rounds were 77-69-74—220. Von Elm picked up on the 17th at which time he had 70 strokes. A par on the 18th would give him 294, and a tie for third place. The amateur stroked 71-73-76—220 the first three times around the hazardous Riviera layout.

POETRY

On Rebellion

(This poem, written by one who had suffered much under affliction, was further inspired by a letter from a young woman friend whose nerves had given way under the strain of long care for an invalid mother and who felt the rebellious spirit.)

"Rebellious!" Sad confession,
But so honestly proclaimed.
Acknowledged with an aching heart,
But is she to be blamed?
The flesh has limitations,
The hand, the back, the heart
All weary with excessive strain
Beneath life's hurt and smart
And then the lips squiver
Give utterance to cries,
And tears, hot, scalding tears will flow
And redden tell-tale eyes!
And words that seem like heated coals
Escape the guarding lips
To plague the calmer memory
Like ghost-infested ships!
But somehow God Himself is there
Like Jesus on the sea,
To comfort every burdened heart
With saving sympathy!
He says, "I know how you rebel,
But, child, I do not blame.
Were I of flesh and flesh alone
I'd do the very same!
But trust in Me. Believe! Rejoice!
The end not yet in sight.
The end of life's hard discipline
Will bring you pure delight!
When pain and anguish fade away
In yonder home above,
The cross becomes a golden crown,
Rebellion turns to love!"
YES! When the clouds have scudded,
And skies at last are clear,
Rebellion turns to gladness,
And joy is everywhere!

—By Rev. Wm. Wood.

The Torrent

I found a torrent falling in a glen
Where the sun's light shone silvered and leaf-split;
The boom, the foam, and the mad flash of it
All made a magic symphony; but when
I thought upon the coming of hard men
To cut those patriarchal trees away,
And turn to gold the silver of that spray,
I shuddered. Yet a gladness now and then
Did wake me to myself till I was glad
In earnest, and was welcoming the time
For screaming saws to sound above the chime
Of idle waters, and for me to know
The jealous visionings that I had had
Were steps to the great place where trees and torrents go.

—Edwin Arlington Robinson, in "Sonnets."

WESTERLY

SHOT SUPERINTENDENT—FRANK WEEDEN CAPTURED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 13—Westerly police under Lieut. George H Champlin and New Haven railroad police under Lieut. David Marks of New London, together with a Rhode Island state trooper visiting in Westerly, were engaged Saturday night and Sunday morning with other Rhode Island authorities in a hunt for Frank Weeden, colored, with only his left eye of use, an escaped inmate of the State Hospital for Mental Diseases, sought as the alleged murderer of Dr. Ransom H. Shartwell, superintendent of the hospital. As told in The Bulletin telegraph news Saturday, the latter was killed about 10:30 o'clock Friday evening when a shot gun was poked through a window and the shot from both barrels entered his body, killing him instantly. At an early hour Saturday morning a message was sent to Westerly by police authorities for Dr. John Champlin, Jr., whose father, Dr. John Champlin, of Westerly is chairman of the Rhode Island state board of public welfare in charge of all the state institutions. Dr. Champlin at present is on a trip to Florida. About 4 a. m., Sunday, Westerly police were notified that Weeden had been apprehended by Warwick police.

April 19, 1926, word was received by Westerly police that Weeden, after one of his sensational escapes from the state institutions, had been recognized boarding the morning accommodation train of the New Haven railroad as it left the Davisville, R. I., station for New London. Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Officer Michael Curtin went to the Westerly waiting station and when the train came to a stop Weeden was found to be in the rear coach of the train, crouched down in a seat near the end of the car with a cap pulled down over his head and his face buried in a newspaper. Chief Brown entered one end of the car and Officer Curtin the other. Chief Brown seized the handcuffs of Officer Curtin and snapped them on Weeden's wrist. He was then taken in an auto to the Westerly police station, lodged in a cell and the state authorities notified. At the police station Weeden talked freely of where he had been and described how he had dug up a box in the woods where he had previously hidden money. Weeden complained of treatment accorded him by Dr Harrington at the state institution, claimed that he had done nothing for which he could be locked up and stated that he was as sane as anyone, and a great inventor.

On Jan. 4, Basil B. Wood of Amherst, Mass., sold to Alexander C. Thompson of Westerly land approximately 33.200 acres, on the northerly side of River View avenue, off Beach street, together with buildings and improvements.

Hoxie and George L. Stillman, crossing intervening lands of one Havens.

COMMUNITY CLUB ELECTS THE SAME OFFICERS FOR 1929

The January meeting of the Community club was held Wednesday evening with an attendance of 120. This was the time designated when the club was organized in August for holding the annual business meeting. The officers elected at that time to serve until January were re-elected, as follows: President, Harry L. Hull; first vice-president, Mrs. Adam Leupold; second vice-president, Mrs. G. A. Ross; secretary, Clara S. Hyde; treasurer, Mrs. Frank A. Mell. The program, in charge of Richard Krauss and Gustave Kaempffe, was given by six young men from Blissville and Taftville. Harmonica and vocal duets by Arthur Tellier and Arthur Trembiay were heartily encored. "Georgie," the clown, impersonated by George Hermann, kept the audience in a gale of laughter with his clean, wholesome fun. The Tumbling Trio, Herman Krauss, Alfred Puchta and Frank Hargraves, put on an exceptionally fine gymnastic act. There was a song by the six entertainers followed by another song by Tellier, Tremblay and "Georgie." Refreshments were served by Miss Clara Hyde, Mrs. Richard Krauss and Mrs. Elbert Rist. The program committee for the February meeting is to be Miss Ruth Greenstein, Miss Ruth Allen and Edwin B. Floyd.

Mrs. Mary Dodd of White Plains, N. Y., is the guest of Mrs. C. A. Mell.

Rev. W. J. Reynolds attended the ministers' meeting in New London Tuesday.

Sunday's downpour caused several washouts on the town roads.

F. J. Burr and Ralph Fitch were in New York this week to attend the automobile show.

METAL TRADES LED THE ADVANCE IN TRADE AND INDUSTRY LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—Trade and industry generally made fair headway during the first week of the year. The metal trades led the advance, with steel showing exceptional vigor. The wave of influenza, however, retarded activity in some sections.

Steel mill operations at Buffalo and Chicago were stepped up to 87 per cent of capacity and held at about 85 per cent at Pittsburgh. Of particular significance was the United States Steel Corp.'s unfilled tonnage report, showing an increase in unfilled orders of nearly 304,000 tons during December, the largest increase in a year. While December has shown even larger increases in recent years, the 1928 increase was remarkable in that output reached the largest total ever recorded for December.

Automobile production was further accelerated, and public reception of the new models, particularly at the New York show, was generally regarded as gratifying. Prospects for 1929 profits, however, seemed somewhat cloudy as extraordinarily keen competition loomed. Detroit employment figures rose about 10,000 to 278,900, in contrast to 213,000 in the like week of last year.

Metal prices were generally firmer during the week, particularly steel scrap and crude steel. In the nonferrous metals, advances in brass ingots reflected the recent increases in copper. In addition to the automotive trade, the railways were heavy takers of steel. It was estimated that railway equipment manufacturers now have orders to keep them busy for four months. Machinery and farm implement manufacturers also showed increasing activity.

The oil industry was further unsettled by another gain in domestic production despite the seasonal falling off of consumption. Considerable concern was expressed at the persistent gains in output from the mid-continent area, and the optimism of last fall, when voluntary production control seemed near achievement, has largely waned. Standard Oil of New Jersey purchased the Beacon Oil Co., of Massachusetts, thus entering what was originally the marketing territory of the Standard Oil of New York. This was regarded as a definite breaking down of the "gentlemen's agreement" by which the Standard companies divided marketing territory when the parent company was dissolved.

Wheat prices fell off to the lowest since 1924, but rallied later on heavy speculative buying. Corn improved, under the heaviest export demand for this season in years. Lumber prices strengthened, reflecting the curtailed production. Crude rubber futures spurted forward on the New York rubber exchange late in the week, on heavy buying, particularly from Europe. Cotton sagged early in the week, but rallied later on a decrease in the visible supply.

Credit conditions eased somewhat with the return of year-end payment checks to the banks, but rates remained abnormally high for this time of year. New bond offerings during the week fell off to the lowest level since August. Fears of a rise in the New York Federal Reserve bank's rediscount rate proved ungrounded for the present. It was reported, however, that increases in its bankers' acceptance rates the previous week had failed to induce the member banks to shoulder more of the burden of carrying this form of commercial credit, and further increases were talked of.

A striking development in the merger movement was the announcement of the formation of the United Corp., a utilities holding company, under Morgan sponsorship, which is regarded as the forerunner of a huge combination of public utilities in the east.

Latest reports on railway freight traffic disclosed a falling off, in the last week of 1928, under the like weeks of the past three years, but total car loadings for the entire year closely approximated those for 1927, despite the slump during the early months of 1928. Total gross operating income for the railroads is indicated as somewhat under 1927, but the indicated net is considerably better, owing to more efficient operation.

The insolvency record reflected the year-end credit strain, with R. G. Dun & Co. reporting 635 failures, as compared to 623 in the like week of last year.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES.

Bird Trades.

The swallow is a mason,
And underneath the eaves
He builds a nest and plasters it
With mud and hay and leaves.

Of all the weavers that I know
The oriole is the best,
High on the branches of the tree
She hangs her cozy nest.

The woodpecker is hard at work—
A carpenter is he—
And you may hear him hammering
His nest high up a tree.

Some little birds are miners:
Some build upon the ground;
And busy little tailors, too,
Among the birds are found

Western Tanager

Flaming
In the silver fir,
The exotic
Tanager,

Crimson-crested,
Dressed in yellow,
Song a cadence
Honey-mellow.

Like an orchid
The wind tosses
It among
The Duid mosses.
—Ethel Romig Fuller.

Wake, little birdling, the morning is calling;
Up from the marshes the mist vapors creep;
Over the meadows the sunbeams are falling,
Waking wee birds from their sleep,
Down in the woodland the blackbirds are crying,
Up in the elm-tree the oriole singe,
Time to be up and take lessons in flying—
Trying those little new wings!
—Boston Globe.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

The dog has played an important part in the exploration of the far north, so important, in fact, that without this sturdy animal's aid the known geographical limits of the earth would be much narrower than they are now. Dogs were used by such famous explorers as Amundsen, Peary, Scott and Shackleton.

The dog is, as a rule, a gentle animal, but the dogs of the far north have been made vicious and irritable by the cruel treatment given them by the Indian and the Eskimo. To the people of the north the dog is an absolute necessity. Without them the people of the snows could not exist very long. Three or four dogs are capable of hauling their master with an added load of deer, seal or bear meat hundreds of miles, and often with little food, their rations being one or two fish of two or three pounds in weight, frozen or dried, each evening. If deer or moose is plentiful, he may share parts not desired by his master.

Among the more civilized Indians and Eskimos in the vicinity of the Mackenzie Delta above the Arctic Circle, the logs used for the construction of shacks are all drawn from the woods in winter by the dogs. The Eskimo dog, a splendid, heavy-haired animal, is capable of drawing his master 20 or 30 miles a day over the smoothly frozen Arctic snows. The running of the sled is made easy by coating its runners with ice, which is done by pouring upon the running parts water, which freezes immediately.

This story is recorded by a whaling captain who was very fond of dogs. On his first voyage he wintered near Herschel Island, Arctic ocean. Buying from the Delta Eskimos five splendid specimens, he thought he would better serve them by building a warm dog-house on the deck of his ship. The mercury often went as low as 54 below zero, and blinding snow-storms buried everything under gigantic drifts. So the captain ordered his mate to see that his dogs were comfortably housed inside their new structure. With much difficulty they were driven into the new quarters which had been made more habitable by the contents of a straw mattress that the mate had torn open and with which he had made a soft place for the animals. A stout piece of canvas at the door served as a protection from the wind and the drifting snow.

Content that they had done a humane act, the captain and the mate turned in for the night. To their astonishment they found in the morning that the dogs, or as many as could be accommodated, were sleeping peacefully upon the roof of their house, buried under three or four feet of snow and the others were scattered about the deck in the most exposed places possible, apparently as comfortable as if they were basking on an August day at Palm Beach.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES.

When I Went Sliding.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day last winter after school I went out coasting. I had a sled named 'The Coaster King." As it was recently new I was anxious to try it out.

I went out on a hill near my house and coasted down once and thought it great fun.

I wanted to hurry back up the hill again to try it over. I was thinking how nice it would be if as soon as one slid down one side of a hill it would turn and then find a hill to slide down again.

I started to run as I did I jerked the sled against my heel and cut it deep.

Of course it was impossible to walk comfortably. I hopped around the house wishing I could go back to school

I was glad when I could walk again and didn't coast much that winter again as there wasn't much snow.

Hope everyone had a merry Christmas and will have a happy New Year.
MARIAN ALDRICH, Age 14.

Our Invention.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my fourth story. I hope you will enjoy reading it. The name of my story is Making a Victrola.

One day a few cousins from Florida came to my house. They wanted an adventure. We decided we would make a victrola. We got some lumber and made a victrola. We needed some dark red paint. We asked the janitor. He gave us a can of dark red paint. We painted the victrola. Then we made the horn. My mother had some needles. She gave them to us. We broke the needles in half. We had a few mama dolls. We broke the dolls. We took the things out that say "mama." We put it in the victrola. The victrola would only say mama. We took the victrola apart and took out the things. We put it together again. We bought a few records and the victrola worked O. K.

The next day there was a fair. The one who had the best thing would win ten dollars. Early that morning we took our car and put our victrola in and took it down to the fair. A manager came around and inspected our things. They said that we won the ten dollars.

My First Attempt At Cooking.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you and the Wide-Awake circle. One Saturday when I was through helping mother, I planned to cook some parsnip fritters which I never tried before. I asked mother if I might try my luck. Mother said I might and that she would help me, but I said I would like to try myself.

When mother gave me permission, I went to the pantry and got what I needed, and then started to make them. It took me about half an hour to fry them, and when they were done, I put them on the supper table. I enjoyed looking at my mother and sisters eating them, so I joined them, and helped to finish them up.

This was my first attempt in cooking and I think the best. All wanted me to make some more but I was too tired, and told them that I will make some more next week.

My Dream

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter. I wish to write you about a dream I had last week. I will call it "My Gypsy Dream." One summer day my cousin and I went to the woods for blackberries. While we were in the woods, we saw a small wagon. We wanted to know what was in it. We climbed into the wagon and while we were looking on the queer things in the wagon a gypsy came in. The gypsy tied us up and rode off. After a while we came to a small pond. The gypsy threw us in.

All of a sudden I jumped up in bed and found it was only a dream.

Winter Sport

Dear Uncle Jed: I am telling you about some fun I have on holidays. "Come on," said my chum. "Let's go skating. I have some new shoe skates I got from my uncle." I was willing to go although I had no new shoe skates.

I took my skates, put on my tam and jacket and hurried after my chum. We cut across the lots and we were soon at the pond.

The pond is very large, and much of it is surrounded by trees. At one end there is a large ice house and it is here that many of the children put on their skates. The pond was frozen over very solid and it was very smooth. After skating awhile we gathered together a group of girls and we played Snap the Whip. We skated around the pond until we were tired and then we sat down to rest.

The pond is so large that if you skate around it twice you have skated a mile. I skated nearly all the morning and at half-past eleven I removed my skates and went home.

At one o'clock I ate my dinner. At quarter of two I again went skating. It was four o'clock when I returned home.

To me skating is the best winter sport, especially when there are races.

Made a Mistake.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you. I am going to tell you about the big mistake I made. One day when I was on my uncle's farm, my friend and I were taking a walk in the woods when we saw a cow drinking from a brook. We ran back and told my uncle that a cow went out the pasture. He went with us to the place where we saw the cow. When we came there the cow was still there. When we showed the cow to my uncle he just laughed and said it was a deer. And since then I can tell the difference between a deer and a cow.

Saved by "Brave."

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to you already and I enjoy writing to you. I am going to tell you how Brave saved me. One cold morning after breakfast I thought I would go for a walk. My dog Brave came along with me.

The snow had lightly fallen. As I was walking along I heard ice cracking under my feet. I felt myself falling. I soon remembered that there was a well around near here. And the snow had covered the thin ice. And I did not know the well was there and I was now falling in the ice cold water of the well. Brave seeing me fall ran back to the house and seeing my father he started pulling him to the place where I fell in. My father realized that something happened and followed Brave.

All this while I was screaming. When my father came nearer he heard me screaming and he ran toward the well. As the well was not very deep he soon had me out, and took me straight home. I had a cold but was over it in a while. I always remembered Brave. My father said that he thought that was the right name for him. THELMA GOLDBERG, Age 11.

Is Seven Years Old.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a little boy seven years old. I like to go to school. When I come from school I go out in the fresh air and play with my sister. We have lots of fun. After supper I study my lessons and then go to bed early, so to be ready for the next day.

We had a nice big Christmas tree and I got lots of toys. I have a nice big wagon I got for Christmas.

Wishing you a happy New Year.
HARRY CHAPMAN, Age 7.

At Our School.

Dear Uncle Jed: In the Lisbon Center school the boys and girls of grades five and six are going to join the Red Cross. We each brought two cents for a Red Cross pin.

We have decided to help the sick children in the hospitals. We are making picture books, poem and story books and quite a few things. We are also sending them letters for I know that they enjoy reading them.

We are going to send the things to the Red Cross and they will give them to the sick children.

We think it is great fun to help them. When we are sick we like to get things, too.

I hope that you and the Wide-Awakes have enjoyed a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Myself.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I hope you will like my letter. I am going to describe myself.

I am dark and my hair is black. I have brown eyes and my teeth are uneven. I am wearing today a green and black dress. I have a green tie. My stockings are brown and so are my shoes.

I have a cat and a dog. The cat's name is Feety because his feet are so big. The dog's name is Peggy. I have two brothers.
VIRGINIA KORAP, Age 9.

My Pet Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my pet dog. This is my first story to you. I am age 12, grade 5. My dog is brown and when she came here she was a little pup. She plays with the cat but the cat don't like her. She spits at the dog. She will sit up and beg. She hurts the cat sometimes. This morning she was between the cat's paws, but the cat didn't hurt her. I want to tell the Wide-Awakes and Uncle Jed to have a nice New Year's.

My Sewing Club

Dear Uncle Jed: In my first letter to you I am going to tell you about my sewing class I belong to. We elected for president, Elsie Sorrel; vice president, Sylvia Seger; secretary, Stella Prowsky; treasurer, Thelma Goldberg. Most of the members live on the same street so we go home together.

We had a Christmas party and picked names for giving presents. After the party we sang songs and some of the girls said their Christmas poems.

For some of our club work we made dust cloths, pussy cats, and now we are making towels.

His First Letter

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you. I am going to tell you about the little birds that come around my house every morning and I love to feed them bread and some corn. One morning when I was playing I saw a bird and two little ones. I ran in the house and I got some bread and I threw it to the birds and I went in the barn and got some corn. I got a pan and put some water in it and the little birds drank the water and ate the bread and corn.

A Tobacco Farm

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written many letters to you and I have enjoyed writing them. I thought I would write to you again and hope you enjoy it.

One day I went with my father to visit a tobacco farm. We enjoyed the ride there very much. When we arrived there the owner of the farm took us to his tobacco barn. We went in and there we saw many leaves of tobacco hanging on long poles which ran from one wall to the other. On the other side of the barn all the machinery such as plows, tobacco wagons, a tractor and many other machines were kept. He showed us his fields. Near the field there ran a little brook. He took us to the house and showed us a little box. In the box there were many arrowheads. There were black ones and white ones. In the middle of the box there was an Indian hoe. The man said he found them when he plowed his field. When I got home I told my brothers what I had seen.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Reddy Fox Loses a Toe

You'll find the careless always pay;
It's just as well it is that way.
—Old Mother Nature.

Reddy Fox is not given to carelessness. If he were, he wouldn't have lived as long as he has. Little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows who are often careless seldom live long. One of the very first things they learn when they are little is that carelessness is costly.

But there are times when even the most careful forget, or become absent-minded, and so are careless. It is so with Reddy Fox. Even Old Granny Fox, with all her wisdom, is careless once in a great while. I doubt if there is any one who, at some time or other, is not careless.

The storm that had driven Peter Rabbit and little Mrs. Rabbit to the shelter of the old woodchuck hole in the heart of the dear Old Briar-patch was over. All the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows who were not sleeping the winter away were out looking for something to eat. They must eat or they cannot live. So it is that there is always a great deal of activity right after big storms. While the storms last the little people can't eat. Therefore, just as soon as a storm stops, they are out hunting for food.

Reddy Fox was hungrier than usual. You see, he had had little to eat before the storm. His stomach had been almost empty then. By the time the storm was over it seemed to him that the walls of his stomach met. Just as soon as it stopped snowing Reddy was out hunting.

Now it happened that, unknown to Farmer Brown's Boy or to Farmer Brown, a neighbor had visited the old pasture late in the afternoon before the storm and there he had set a trap, a steel trap, for Reddy Fox. He had set that trap very artfully, for he knew just how difficult it is to fool Ready Fox. He had set it where he knew that Reddy Fox frequently passed. He had studied Reddy and his ways. He knew that Reddy, like most people, is more or less a creature of habits. He knew that no traps ha been set in the Old Pasture for a long, long time, for Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy would not allow it. So, when he set that trap, he sneaked over there in a roundabout way, so that he would not be seen.

The trap and chain he had artfully covered with damp leaves and over these he had swept a little snow. When he was through you would not have suspected that a trap was there.

"If that doesn't catch him, then I'm no trapper," declared the man with an evil leer, as he made his way home.

Then came the storm. The wind howled and blew. It piled the snow in some places and it blew away the snow in other places. It uncovered the trap. It blew all the leaves away. Finally the trap was again partly covered by snow, but not wholly so, as Rough North Wind stopped his blowing.

When Reddy Fox left his home he was in a hurry to reach his hunting grounds. He wanted to get over to the Green forest. So he was careless as he hurried along a path he had used many, many times. So it was that he didn't see that trap until just as he was about to step in it. In fact, he was too late; he did step in it. But a little snow had packed under the pan of the trap and it was slow in springing. The result was that Reddy was actually taking his foot out when the wicked jaws of that trap came together with a snap. Reddy's foot was almost clear, but not quite. That trap caught him by one toe. My, how it hurt! Instantly Reddy started to pull away, but the trap was fastened and he was held a prisoner by one toe. Reddy knew what it meant. He knew what would happen if that trapper should find him there. That trap had pinched that toe nearly off. Reddy gave a frantic leap and was free. His toe, however, was in the trap.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Conn. College Concert.

The principal instrument of the set of viols used by the Society of Ancient Instruments which will be heard in New London next Thursday evening is the viola d'amore.

Its uniqueness consists primarily in the sympathetic strings of fine steel or brass, seven in number, which pass through small holes in the bridge and under the finger-board. These, with the seven gut strings that are played, make necessary 14 tuning pegs. The vibrating strings are tuned to the chord of D major, the lowest note being the tonic below middle C, and the highest two octaves above. Singularly beautiful and attractive, yet its inherent difficulties of execution preclude its use by any other than a master for every forte note produces a perfect shower of concords and harmonies so that all notes not conforming to the major chord require to be lightly touched and delicately sounded.

It is a member of the mediaeval fiddle family that flourished between the 15th and 18th centuries, a family that included the viol de gamba, viola de bracio, viola pomposa, quinton, etc. Its origin is unknown but can be traced back to the ancient Hindoos of the 14th century and probably was invented by some amateur musician interested in acoustical experiments. Its big neck, closely lying strings, wide finger-board and small playing space for the bow, render it a difficult and uninviting instrument but in the hands of an expert, the instrument takes on an undreamed-of fascination and in company with others of its kind, fairly captivates the listener accustomed to the modern string quintet which lacks the charm and daintiness of these antiquarian relics.

Segovia And His Instrument.

A guitar recital is scarcely a usual thing in our halls of music. In fact, when Andres Segovia, the Spanish artist who is to give the third concert of the Slater Hall series next Friday evening, January 18th, made his American debut a year ago he probably gave the first guitar recital ever given in New York city. Before that recital had hardly begun, however, his audience felt very certain that it would be far from the last to be given by him.

In the upper musical circles the guitar has been perhaps looked upon more or less patronisingly as an instrument of somewhat less than full-fledged musical dignity, but under Segovia's fingers it ceases to be the sentimental vehicle of the serenade and becomes, when its master wills, the voice of grave and noble loveliness. Such versatility on the guitar, such adjustment of musical taste to plucked and stroked strings instead of bowed, such tone elongation, proclaim a rare genius. Segovia has raised the guitar into the class of musical instruments and demonstrated its capability for varied and sonorous emission. It seems to have no limitation when played with his delicate musical perceptions, his refinement, his reserve and sense of rythym.

Samuel Chotzinoff, critic for the New York World, says: "Mr. Segovia must be heard to be believed."

And the London Daily Telegraph's comment was, "Here is an artist who without doubt stands in relations to the instrument of his choice as Casals does to the violincello, or Kreisler to the violin."

To Lecture For Women's Club.

Through arrangements made by Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn, Dr. George H. Nettleton, head of the department of English at Yale, has been secured to lecture before the Woman's City club on Tuesday evening. His lecture will be upon two poets of the World war period, Rupert Brooke and Allan Seeger. Dr. Nettleton is well known to many Norwich people and is the establisher of a course of lectures which is given yearly in many cities in the state and the club members feel themselves fortunate in the opportunity to hear him.

Arnold was walking along State street, corner of Main when a pint bottle of whiskey that he was carrying between his trousers and underclothing, held in place at the waist line, slipped through the trousers leg to the sidewalk and was smashed. The bottle dropped almost in front of Patrolman Elwood Bailey. He searched Arnold and the sailor had two other pints on his person. Arnold was taken to police headquarters and declared that the whiskey had been supplied him by Campo and that the latter obtained the liquor at the Fort Neck section. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Maytag Sponsors Radio Program.

Radio audiences in all sections of the country are getting new thrills of delight due to the introduction of an entirely new type of radio broadcasting by The Maytag company, washer manufacturers of Newton, Iowa. The introductory program broadcast recently from KDKA, Pittsburgh, and KYW, Chicago, were so successfully presented and so enthusiastically received that the new system bids fair to revolutionize present broadcasting methods.

The new type of radio broadcasting, perfected after two years of study and experimentation, is known as the So-A-Tonic process, and is exclusively controlled by National Radio Advertising, Inc., of Chicago. The new process permits the assembling of talent in the largest cities where a transcription is made by electrical reproduction and transported to the various stations elected to broadcast the Maytag programs. Some idea of the importance of the new process is indicated by the fact that certain rulings by the Federal Radio commission were necessary before it could be used.

The 1929 radio program for th Maytag company calls for broadcasting under the So-A-Tonic process from over 50 of the principal stations throughout the United States and Canada. This constitutes the largest independent radio schedule in the world. The appointment of stations and hours of broadcasting will be announced in newspapers from time to time. Watch the radio announcements and be ready to listen in when your favorite station begin to broadcast the Maytag programs.

The initial broadcast was a dramatization of "The Yellow Streak," a thrilling written exclusively for the Maytag company program by Courtney Ryley Cooper, nationally known writer of circus storise. A circus band furnishes the musical background. The second program dramatized "The Kiss," a story with collegiate atmosphere and a distinctive musical setting, written by Pat Barnes, popular radio announcer. Mr. Barnes also directed the production of his story and acted a prominent part in the play.

Broadway Theater.

The most beautiful scenery, the most interesting characters, the most thrilling adventures and the most amazing love story ever filmed.

Thus reviewers everywhere are characterizing Metro-Goldwkn-Mayer's "White Shadows in the South seas" which opened yesterday at the Broadway theater, and the reviewers have not been far wrong.

If ever a picture has been filmed that has everything—a locale never photographed before, actors who never before have been seen on the screen, a plot that is new and almost radical—this picture has them all.

The story is laid in the South Seas, that amazing mystery place of waving palm trees, soft southern winds and eccentric scenery. It concerns the fate of a primitive race, the native Polynesians who, as every schoolboy has been taught, are rapidly dying out and within a few years will have vanished from the earth.

It opens with a sequence which shows what terrible hardships the whites have and are inflicting on these simple natives—how, led on by the white man's greed for pearls, they dive to terrific depths in search of the jewels; how their bodies are crushed by the tremendous depths and their souls by the white man's indifference.

With this opening, the story goes into an amazing adventure of Dr. Lloyd (Monte Blue), a beachcomber physician who earns the enmity of the whites by his friendship with the natives and who is shanghaied from the island aboard a pest ship.

How he is shipwrecked on an undiscovered island and meets love in the shape of a Polynesian princess who has never before seen a white man and how eventually the white man's shadow—greed—leads him to betray the princess and her people is one of the strongest stories ever brought to the screen.

Monte Blue performs excellently with the role of the doctor, Raquel Torres is equally good with Fayaway, and Director W. S. Van Dyke has produced a perfect screen picture.

Palace Theater.

"West of Zanzibar," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, which Lon Chaney brings his strangest gifts of bizarre makeups and sinister mystery to the screen, and which is now playing at the Palace theater, is so startlingly different from the usual drama that it almost baffles description.

Set in a surrounding of stark terror, its dramatic story of a terrible revenge that, like a Frankenstein, devours its creator, the play has elements never before seen in the screen. Weird and fantastic rites of voodoo devil-worshippers in the heart of an African jungle; the strange spell of a sinister, paralyzed "white voodoo" who, with tricks and illusions, rules tribes of superstitious and savage natives; a grim chase through the Dark Continent on a relentless mission of revenge; these are the dramatic highlights against which a wonderful love story is told.

Chaney plays "Dead Legs Flint," former stage magician, who, paralyzed in a fight with the man who stole the love of his wife, sets out to trail him through the wilds where his quarry has taken refuge as an ivory trader. Lionel Barrymore plays "Johnson," the enemy in the story, and Mary Nolan, who will be remembered as the heroine of "Sorrel and Son," appears as the heroine, daughter of the revenge-crazed magician. Warner Baxter plays the renegade physician whose love for the girl leads him to ultimate regeneration, and Jan Daly is seen as the erring wife. Other roles are filled adequately, by Kalla Pasha, Roscoe Ward and others of note.

Tod Browning, who directed Chaney in "The Unholy Three," "The Road to Mandalay," "London After Midnight" and other successes, wielded the megaphone on the present picture. The Chaney-Browning combination is at its best in grim mystery and primitive emotions; and Browning's deft touches, embellishing this or that point in the mystery, are continually apparent in the new picture.

The settings are spectacular, including the lagoon, and tropic jungle with its parrots, cockatoos, monkeys, gorillas and crocodiles. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer gave the production one of the most extensive settings ever designed for a production.

Ten years ago relatives of A. K Kimberly of Neenah, Wis., shipped to him in France, where he was serving with the American army, a box of food and smokes. Mr. Kimberly has just received the package. He found it on his doorstep one morning, unopened. The postal officials of Neenah however, said they had no record of its ever having been delivered through the postoffice there

SNOWY STREETS PRODUCE CROP OF SKIDDING AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

Slippery driving conditions, which resulted late Sunday afternoon, when snow fell on the frozen streets and road, brought a crop of automobile accidents from skidding machines. There was a light fall of snow between 4 and 5 o'clock which was just enough to make the wheeling uncertain, but about 4:30 the sky in the north suddenly turned black and snow fell in a blinding sheet that was whirled about by a sharp wind which made it almost impossible to see ten feet ahead of a machine.

One of the earliest accidents of the afternoon occurred about 4 o'clock just above the Yantic bridge on the road to Willimantic. A machine driven by Clay Collins of Jewett City, which was coming towards this city, was in collision with a car driven by Joseph Cadeaux who was on his way home to Springfield, accompanied by his wife and friends. The Springfield car went through the fence on the westerly side of the road and came to a stop with the left wheel hanging over the offset wall. The Jewett City car came to a stop in the middle of the road and had to be pushed out of the way by the driver and passengers of a bus which came along. Mr. Cadeaux received a cut on the back of his neck and Mr. Collins' mother-in-law, who was in the back of his machine sustained cuts in the face.

George Geer who was driving down West Main street towards Thames square, lost control of his car when it turned around and landed against the traffic beacon, which it moved about 6 feet, breaking the light wires and putting the beacon out of condition.

After one man's car had come down Laurel Hill sideways, a policeman was stationed at the top of the hill to keep cars off until street department employes could spread sand on the slope. After that automobiles negotiated the hill with care and in safety.

Machines driven by Stanley Dziedzieck of 9 School street, Mystic, and Maxine Daigneault of 19 Treadway avenue were in collision on Broad street near the Broad street school. The Mystic man's car was reported to have sustained about $50 worth of damage to windshield and steering gear.

Hector Richards of 59 Prospect street sustained a cut over one eye when the machine he was driving skidded on the curve at Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town, and went off the bank into the lot below. It rolled over onto its side and Richards and a young man with him, who was unhurt, crawled out through a window. Richards had his cut treated at the Backus hospital.

Driving conditions were the worst possible for the operators of automobiles who were caught out on the road without chains and a Norwich Town man who had come home from Stonington reported having seen over 100 cars in the ditch on the way, one of them a big sedan which had turned upside down.

GLIDDEN INDICTED FOR BOSTON AUTOMOBILE THEFTS

Horace B. Glidden of Manchester, N. H., brother of Richard Glidden, Groton, was indicted by the Suffolk county grand jury in Boston Friday on charges of stealing automobiles and was held in bonds of $30,000 for trial at a later date. Glidden is alleged to be the head of a ring that operated extensively throughout Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island. He is also suspected of having operated in this section, and this phase of the case is being thoroughly investigated by Lieut. Henry J. Albright, commandant of the Groton state police barracks.

Glidden's brother, Richard, is now at liberty under bonds, awaiting trial in the New London county superior court on a charge of stealing an automobile. Glidden was arrested several months ago when state troopers from the Groton barracks and Detective Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh of New London uncovered an automobile theft ring that had been operating on an extensive basis throughout New London county.

Two submarine base sailors, Stephen Huval and Stephen Burka, are now serving sentences imposed in the superior court for this county after they had been convicted as members of this ring. The car Richard Glidden was driving at the time of his arrest was found to have been stolen in Providence, but the accused had a bill of sale for the car from his brother, and it is believed that the latter had knowledge of the theft of the vehicle.

NAT'L. PRESIDENT TO ATTEND CLARA BARTON TENT

Mrs. Lillian E. Brewster, secretary of the Connecticut Department, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil war, received a telegram from National President Miss Hazel L. Riley of Chicago, Ill., saying she would meet the department president, Mrs. Jennie S. Newbury in Norwich Tuesday, January 15, and would attend the meeting and installation of officers of Clara Barton Tent, No. 7, on that date. The department and the tent feel very highly honored, as a visit from a national president is a rare occasion. This is the first time a national president has visited Norwich.

LIQUOR SELLING CHARGE AGAINST CLIFF ST. WOMAN

Charged with making two sales of liquor, Catherine Froscello was arrested Saturday afternoon at her home at the corner of Cliff and Elm street, and is to appear in the city court this (Monday) morning to answer to the charge of violation of the liquor law. A quantity of what is alleged to be home-brew beer was seized by the police party which included State Policemen Webber and King and Officers P. Murphy and Crary of the local force.

Thomas Anderson and Edward J. Fitzgerald, who were found in the place, were arrested on intoxication charges.

SMASHED GLASSWARE IN STREET AT TAFTVILLE

Elmer P. Bailey of Jewett City was arrested at Taftville Saturday afternoon by State Policeman John Smith and is charged with breaking glass in the highway.

Bailey, it is claimed, came out of a place in Taftville carying a jug or bottle supposed to have contained liquor. As he came out into the street, he caught sight of the state policeman and at once smashed the receptacle in the highway.

CONTINUANCE IN COURT FOR TWO ON THEFT CHARGE

In the city court Saturday morning the theft cases against Raymond Thompson, 28, and James V. Barry, 24, both of this city, were continued until Monday morning. They are each in bonds of $500.

Thompson and Barry were arrested Friday night by the local police following a complaint from Robert Knight of Boston that someone had stolen a pocketbook containing $70 from his rooms at the Columbian house. Fifty dollars of the missing money was recovered by the police, $48 from Barry and $3.61 from Thompson.

NO MODERN CONCEPT OF GOD IS NEEDED, SAYS PRIEST

Following literally the narration of man's creation as simply told in the Scriptures, there is no need of any modern concept of the Creator, declared Rev. John J. Reilly, preaching Sunday at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church to a congregation filling auditory and galleries. Father Reilly was continuing his series of sermons on creation, considering man as more lofty and noble than any other of God's created things, the true lord of all creation. If God did not make man some other intellect must; yet how impotent any Darwin, Spencer, Burbank to actually create the simplest thing.

Man is a creature composed of body and soul. As to body, he is as much an animal as anything in stable or jungle; in common with all other animals eventually weakens, sickens, dies, falls apart. Some animals surpass man as far as body goes—the ox in its strength, the deer in its swiftness, et al. But man has a rational soul, lifting him above all animals, even to the plane of the angels, teaching him to aspire to God Himself.

Nothing of man's invention or creation can do two things at once, as for example, go forward and backward at the same time. But the soul can do two things at once and the preacher took up that state of union of body and soul which creates another gift of the spiritual state, that life of grace of which St. Paul speaks, which comes to an end when body and soul are joined to God. Reflection upon this is well calculated to stir up gratitude to God. Outside the church there may be the need of a modern concept of God; but the Catholic knows there is no God like our God, realizes to the full what his God is. All things pray to God by being beautiful. A beautiful soul even in a body not wholly beautiful physically, can give this homage of prayer and adoration to its Creator.

At the offertory, Miss Mary Lynch, of the Junior choir sang the hymn "Jesus is Coming to Me Today" with childlike fervor and genuine sweetness, having the sympathtic accompaniment of the organist, Henry J. LaFontaine. After holy communion had bee nadministered by Rev. Myles P. Galvin and Rev. Father Reilly to a great number of penitents the choir sang "Divine Praises."

ADVOCATE ADDITION TO COAST GUARD ACADEMY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—(AP)—Argument for the Hoch bill to provide $1,750,000 for acquisition of a site and construction of buildings for the United States Coast Guard academy at New London, Conn., were heard today by a house interstate commerce subcommittee.

Senator Bingham, Admiral Frederick C. Billard, commandant of the Coast Guard, Representative Freeman, republican, Connecticut, Captain H. G. Hamlet, superintendent of the Coast Guard academy and former Mayor Waldo Clark of New London appeared as witnesses in suport of the measure.

There were no opposing witnesses. Senator Bingham and Admiral Billard said the academy's physical equipment was in deplorable and dilapidated condition and a disgrace to the government. They and other witnesses stressed the need for building and equipment in view of the growth of the Coast Guard and the fact that little improvement had been made in the institution in many years.

The bill is to go before the full committee next Tuesday.

Members of posts and auxiliaries in New Haven, Meriden, Bridgeport, Middletown, Waterbury, New London and Westerly, were among those present.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Dwight Stanton

Following serious illness since New Year's, when she took to her bed, Mrs. Eliza J. Mott, 82, widow of Dwight Stanton, died Sunday at the home of her niece, Mrs. Everett Rogers, on Wauwecus street, where she had resided at intervals for the past ten years. She was born in Lebanon, May 12, 1846, the daughter of Morgan and Harriet McNeil Mott. More than 50 years ago she was united in marriage with Dwight Stanton. For many years her home was in West Barrington, R. I., though previously much of her life was spent in Bozrahville, Conn.

Mrs. Stanton suffered a shock in October, but her condition became critical only about two weeks ago. She was devotedly cared for by her relatives with whom she lived. Surviving her is a sister, Mrs. F. S. Fargo, and her niece, Mrs. Everett Rogers of Norwich Town, also several other nieces and nephews and a sister-in-law, who was very close to her, Mrs. Ada Stoddard, of New London. An adopted son, Benjamin Weir, made his home with her until the World war, when he left to go overseas. He also survives. At this time, Mrs. Stanton broke up her home in West Barrington. She was a member of the Methodist church of Griswold. Of a cheerful disposition, she made friends with both old and young wherever she was and her passing will be mourned by many friends.

SCOUTS SHOW INTEREST IN EFFICIENCY CONTEST

The interest in the efficency contest of the Boy Scouts connected with the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church is growing steadily, as shown by the changes in the scores Friday night. Clayton Rose again took the lead with a score of 608 leading Arthur Bennett, who held first place last week, by only 8 points. Edward Eccleston is in third place with a score of 595 and Donald Waterman is in fourth place with a score of 580. The meeting was opened by the scoutmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter. Assistant Scoutmaster Ralph Smith led in an inter-patrol contest of games and stunts. The Scouts who took the 14 mile hike Saturday gave interesting reports. Scoutmaster Potter announced that a new award was to be given each Scout in the form of a service bar pin for certain requirements. This award was suggested by Assistant Scoutmaster Smith. Patrol meetings were held in charge of the patrol leaders. Scout Albert Phillips passed the test on knife and axe and Patrol Leader Waterman passed the safety first test. Scouts Donald Olsen and George Hardenbrook passed the complete Tenderfoot test. Assistant Scoutmaster Smith led in a game period. Scout Robert Ringland was appointed bugler for the next meeting. There was an attendance of 17.

The stories told to the children at the morning service of the Methodist Episcopal church by Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter have become a regular and much enjoyed part of the worship service. In view of the fact that so many adults have expressed their appreciation of the stories, Mrs. Potter is to give a story hour for adults at the evening service Sunday, in place of the usual sermon.

IRON-STEEL MAGNATES ASK MORE TARIFF PROTECTION

Representatives of Capital Employing More Than 1,500,000 Men Add Their Plea to Those of Smaller Business For Higher Tariff—Vice President Topping of the American Iron and Steel Institute Contends That Higher Duties Are Needed to Maintain Present Wages and to Further Stabilize the Business.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—The iron and steel industry, representing a capital investment of four and three quarter billions of dollars and employing more than 1,500,000 men, today added its plea to those of smaller business for increased tariff protection.

Appearing on behalf of 95 per cent. of the iron and steel producers, John A. Topping, vice president of the American Iron and Steel institute, declared before the house ways and means committee considering tariff revision that the industry had borne an annual additional cost of $24,000,000 under the existing law and that higher duties were needed to maintain present wages and to further stabilize the business.

While no rates were proposed by the industry in general, several witnesses representing companies which are members of the institute requested that duties on pig iron, the basic product of the industry, to be raised from $1 12 1-2 to $3 a ton. They contended imports were having a depressing effect on the domestic market.

In a brief Topping declared a complete new schedule of duties would be filed later as the industry had not had time to determine exact duties desired to the period elapsing since announcement of the hearings on the metals schedule.

The new schedules, however, he said, would provide for increased protection and would be based as far as practicable upon specific rates of duty. Where advalorem rates were found necessary, he added, American wholesale prices at ports of entry would be proposed as the basis for the duties. Foreign valuations now are used.

Topping contended that high taxes, wages, and freight rates justified the proposal for higher steel duties and under cross examination declared that although only one tenth of one per cent. of domestic consumption was imported this was sufficient to affect the entire price structure of the United States.

He placed the production of steel ingots last year at 50,000,000 tons, or 20 per cent. in excess of demand and listed wage rates in the trade at 12 per cent. higher than the average hourly rate in all other industries.

Steel bars, one of the principal products of the industry, Topping said, could be laid down at New York from Belgium and France at $1.80 a 100 pounds compared with $2.24 1-2 on domestic bars.

As a result of improvement in process and devices, with the cooperation of labor in speeding up production, Topping declared, the industry has returned to investors modest profits but earnings insufficient to provide large enough returns to insure its future growth and development.

STORY OF HYDROPHOBIA SCARE IN SOUTH WINDHAM

SOUTH WINDHAM, Jan. 14—(AP)—A hydrophobia scare went through this town today and spread as far as Willimantic—and before the day was over nine persons, two of them Willimantic medical men, had subjected themselves to anti-toxin treatment.

The cause was a mad dog, now dead, which up to five days ago, was a mild playful little field spaniel.

Last Thursday, Dr Nathan Spector, of Willimantic, was called to the home of Abraham Silverstein here to treat Silverstein's nine year old son Jacob for a cold. Dr. Spector playfully patted the spaniel, the pet of Jacob and his brother and sister. The dog bit the doctor on the left hand.

Silverstein called in Dr. P. K. Dow, a Willimantic veterinarian, who, while examining the animal, was bitten on the thumb of the right hand. Dr. Dow ordered the spaniel tied up. During the night the pet lashed about its house and in the morning was found strangled to death. It had inadvertently committed suicide.

Dr. Frederick E. Wilcox, town physician, summoned Chief Deputy Inspector Howard A. Elliott of the state department of domestic animals, Hartford, who severed the dog's head and sent it, for examination, to the state department of health. A report was returned to Dr. Wilcox saying the young spaniel had suffered from a passive case of hydrophobia. At the same time the department of health sent the Pasteur anti-toxin serum.

Immediately, Drs. Spector and Dow, the three Silverstein children, Jacob Hollin, a relative of the Silversteins, and Michael Shaminsky, an employe of the Silverstein's went to Dr. Wilcox and received injections. The seven not bitten gave as their reasons for asking anti-toxin treatment the fact that they had petted the dog.

TENTATIVE SOLUTION OF THE ROMAN QUESTION

ROME, Italy, Jan. 14—(AP)—It appears that the vexed Roman question is really about to be solved. There is no doubt that negotiators, who worked with full knowledge of the Holy See and the Italian government if without full authority, have reached an agreement on territorial as well as financial conditions. The question now is in the hands of the pope and premier to accept these conclusions and decide the time and means of carrying them out.

The agreement is based on the cession by Italy to the Holy See of a small extension of territory lying southeast of the Vatican gardens, including the villas of Bameleck and Doria-Pampalli, with extra-territorial rights.

There would also be payment of an indemnity of one billion lira gold, which at the present rate of exchange amounts to about $52,631,600. This would compensate for church properties taken by the Italian government in 1870 by annexation of the papal states.

The negotiators were Monsignor Borgongini Duca, secretary of extraordinary affairs at the Vatican, and Monsignor Pacelli, brother of the papal nuncio at Berlin, on the one side, and Professor Gianinni and Domenico Barone, the latter, until his death recently, on the other.

SECOND AUTOPSY ORDERED ON THE BODY OF MRS. RUTH

WATERTOWN, Mass., Jan. 14—(AP)—Dr. Edward H. Kinder, Boston dentist, was questioned for nearly four hours here late today by Watertown police concerning his relations with Mrs. George Herman Ruth, wife of Babe Ruth. Mrs. Ruth was burned to death in Dr. Kinder's home here last Friday night. She had been known to neighbors as Mrs. Helen Kinder.

Kinder hurried away with his attorney, James H. Vasey, immediately after the interview, but Chief of Police John F. Milmore revealed that Kinder said he had never married Mrs. Ruth, although he had lived with her at intervals since 1927.

"Dr. Kinder told us," said Chief Milmore, "that on Saturday night he walked the streets in distraction, fearing the story was coming out. He remained in seclusion on Sunday on the advice of his father, who told him there was plenty of time in which to come forward and that there was nothing to fear."

The chief said that he was satisfied with Kinder's statement and that the case as far as the local police are concerned, is closed.

Meanwhile, District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell ordered a second autopsy on the body of Mrs. Ruth, although he said he was satisfied there was no evidence that Mrs. Ruth died by other than by accidental causes.

QUESTION MARK MAY MAKE NON-STOP REFUELING FLIGHT

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 14—(AP)—Probability that the Question Mark, famous record smashing army endurance plane, will make a non-stop refueling flight across the continent to Washington, was expressed here today by Major Carl Spatz, commanding officer.

The Question Mark, which will be accompanied by Refueling Ship No. 1, piloted by Captain Ross G. Hoyt, would attempt the first non-stop trans-continental refueling flight in history, if the plan is carried out.

Major Spatz said that final decision would be withheld until Captain Ira C. Eaker, chief pilot in its epochal flight of more than 150 hours at Los Angeles last week, returned from Texas. Captain Eaker was called to his mother's home near San Angelo where she was seriously ill.

"In compliance with our orders to return to Washington as direct and speedily as possible" Major Spatz said, "We may find it advisable to save time and make mileage by pushing the Question Mark through a 'round the clock' flight without landing and refueling as we go."

WAUKESHA, Wis., Jan. 14—(AP)—Gilda Gray, who rose from entertainer at a cheap Milwaukee cafe to movie actress and dancer, today ended her second matrimonial venture, when she was granted a divorce decree against Gil Boag, her manager.

At 17, before she became known as the originator of the "shimmy" dance, she married Martin Gorecki, a bartender. They were divorced and in 1924, Miss Gray married Boag.

Under Wisconsin laws she is not permitted to remarry within a year. But this restriction meant little to her she said, because she has "neither the time nor inclination to think of such things as love and marriage."

REPARATIONS COMMISSION AWAITS NEWS FROM AMERICA

PARIS, Jan. 14—(AP)—The reparations commission tonight was awaiting news from Washington concerning the Americans, who will serve on the special committee to revise the Dawes plan in order that formal invitations may be sent to them.

The matter has been placed in the hands of the British ambassador at Washington who was to consult with the other ambassadors concerned including the German and Japanese.

The British ambassador will report first to his government and then London will inform the reparations committee. A meeting of this latter body is expected about the end of the week.

No official confirmation has been received here of the appointment and acceptance of J. P. Morgan, Owen D. Yuogn and Thomas Nelson Perkins, whose names are all contained in dispatches received from the United States. Despite this, it is taken for granted by the French press that Mr. Morgan and Mr. Young will serve as the two chief American delegates with Mr. Perkins as alternate.

The French papers have commented favorably on all three men, Mr. Morgan especially, because of his prestige in international finance.

DEFINITE ACTION BY THE SALVATION ARMY TODAY

LONDON, Jan. 14—(AP)—Definite action on the continuance in office of General Bramwell Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, probably will come tomorrow, in the opinion of leaders of both factions of the organization. They agreed on this high council that he retire had been delivered late today at Sunbury-on-Thames.

Both sides said they were completely in the dark as to whether the aged leader would make a counter move against retirement when the high council reassembles. The reform element said, however, that if he has declined to retire, the council would at once proceed to vote on his physical fitness to continue his duties.

They predicted that the ballot, if the case came to that, would be overwhelmingly in favor of a new head of the army and reform in its basic organizations.

Senator Reed, democrat of Missouri, the chairman of the campaign funds committee which inquired into Vare's primary contest that year and later into charges of fraud in his election, detailed the committee's first report in a letter to Mr. Vare, it notified the senator-elect that the committee was through and anxious to act on Vare's case and would wait only for the hearing now offered the senator-elect who is ill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—Operators of air transport lines today agreed that a chain of aeronautical radio stations should be established upon a "co-operative basis" to maintain communication with planes in the air and handle other matters not provided through regular government aids.

The move on the part of air line operators, made after a day of conferences, is expected to unscramble the problems of radio communication with airplanes, which experts testified was headed toward the same chaotic state experienced by the broadcasting industry.

Marshal Foch Suffers From Heart Attack

Resting, But in a Rather Exhausted State—Another Attack Feared.

PARIS, Jan. 14—(AP)—Ferdinand Foch, marshal of France and commander-in-chief of the allied armies in the closing stages of the World war, tonight was holding a slight advantage in his most critical engagement, the winner of many gigantic contests was fighting for his own life against a heart attack suffered early this morning while he was lighting the cigar which habitually follows his morning coffee.

The marshal was resting this evening but was in a rather exhausted state. Intermittent sinking spells during the day, followed by courageous recoveries, had six doctors much worried. At one stage his two daughters were called to the bedside with their mother and many expected that the end was near. But the medical men upon leaving the house this evening said that the condition of their patient was fairly satisfactory and that they would not return until tomorrow morning.

The doctors issued this brief bulletin: "The marshal is suffering from a heart attack, necessitating complete rest."

They said his great spirit alone had carried him past the crisis. Yet they were none too optimistic and then explained that M. Foch was enjoying what probably would be only a temporary truce. The probability of another attack was regarded with the gravest forebodings.

Marshal Foch caught a cold on Armistice day which settled in his bronchial tubes, causing a hacking cough and affecting the action of the heart. He continued work in his office until Saturday, when severe pains in his side forced him to remain home.

REV. BATEMAN CONVICTED OF CRIMINAL LIBEL

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 14—(AP)—The Rev. Elmo L. Bateman, deposed pastor of Hilton Christian church of Maplewood, was convicted of criminal libel by a jury in Judge Walter D. Van Riper's court late today. The minister was charged with publication and circulation of a false Knights of Columbus oath during the presidential campaign. He will be sentenced January 28.

When first cross-examined by Assistant Prosecutor Fisch, Bateman declared he believed the oath was true. Later when he was shown a copy of the order's ritual he retracted the statement. He claimed on direct examination that he had copied the oath from The Congressional Record.

The pastor admitted he had not sent the oaths out under his own name, because he was connected with the International Publishing company and the money collected went to the company. He said he owned the majority of the stock of the concern and put out the pamphlet containing the oath on his own initiative.

Snow And Cold Wave In The Middle West

Chicago Police Stations Are Sheltering Hundreds of Homeless Persons.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—(AP)—The middle west was locked tonight in the icy grip of one of the most severe cold waves and the worst snow storm in recent years.

Sub-zero temperatures that yesterday broke records of 40 years were followed today by a snow storm that continued from dawn until dark and was expected to last until tomorrow when weather almost as cold as that of the last three days was predicted.

The storm and cold tonight had succeeded in accounting for the death of half a dozen persons and suffering for thousands of others, had blocked main highways in half a dozen states, hampered rail transportation and tied wire communication facilities into a snarl that threatened to become worse.

The weather bureau held out little hope of immediate relief either from the cold or the snow. For the most part snow was predicted tonight for the entire area from the Mississippi to the Ohio river valleys with a new cold wave on Tuesday expected to be almost as severe as that of yesterday when the mercury ranged from zero to more than 20 below.

In Chicago with a temperature yesterday of 9 below zero and readings today of a few points above, hundreds of men labored to keep the city streets cleared of snow. Hundreds of homeless persons found shelter in police stations or welfare institutions and four deaths were attributed to the cold with several persons reported frozen so seriously they may die.

One high school was closed because it was impossible to provide enough heat.

A Chicago and Northwestern railroad engineer was killed by a snow plow at Minnesota Junction, Wisconsin, and fears were expressed for the safety of two parties of fishermen, one of which drifted into Lake Superior, near Isle Royale Saturday and the other of which put out from Charlevoix, Mich. Searching parties are looking for each of them.

HOOVER TO RETURN TO WASHINGTON IN FEBRUARY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—President-elect Hoover is expected to return to Washington well in advance of his inauguration. Rather definite information to this effect was received today as the next president continued the series of conferences he has been holding with republican party leaders since his return from the South American tour.

It also became known today that Speaker Longworth had been won over to the move for an extra early session of the new congress to enact farm relief and tariff legislation and that he was co-operating wholeheartedly in this proposal.

The word that Mr. Hoover would return to the capitol the latter part of February to renew his conversations with republican party leaders on major appointments and other matters left the question of his contemplated good-will tour of the West Indies before March 4, in greater doubt than ever.

Since the next president has delayed his departure for Florida and altered his original plan to return here on the eve of inauguration, there would scarcely be time for the accomplishment of such a mission, as he has yet to prepare his inaugural address and must of necessity hold quite a number of conferences while he is in the south.

After a long luncheon conference with Mr. Hoover, Speaker Longworth said he presumed an extra session of the new congress, the 71st, would be called as early as possible.

B. J. DUKE LEFT MORE THAN $1,000,000 TO CHARITY

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Benjamin N. Duke, retired tobacco manufacturer and philanthropist, who died January 8, left more than $1,000,000 to charitable organizations, most of which are in North Carolina, his native state.

The bulk of the estate, the value of which was once estimated at from $50,000,000 to $200,000,000, goes to Mrs. A. J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., of New York, a daughter. The Angier B. Duke Memorial, Inc., at Durham, N. C., an educational corporation founded in memory of the capitalist's son who was drowned in 1923, receives $580,000, while $585,000 is divided among southern religious and charitable organizations, chiefly Methodist institutions. Mr. Duke and his father and brother were credited with having given $90,000,000 in philanthropies during their lifetime.

Mrs. Sarah P. Duke of New York, the widow, receives the life use of two homes, one on Fifth avenue here and another at Durham, and after her death the property goes to Mrs. Biddle. Duke said in his will that his wife's bequest was no larger because of the "ample manner" in which he had provided for her previously.

The document provided for the disinheritance of any beneficiary who attempted to break the will, and reversion of that person's bequest to the Angier B. Duke Memorial.

DEADLOCK IN SENATE ON KELLOGG PACT TIGHTENS

Republican "Interpretationist" Leaders, Bingham and Moses, Are Ready to Agree to a Vote on the Treaty Provided the Foreign Relations Committee Submits a Report Embodying Views Expressed by Chairman Borah of the Treaty's Construction—Senator Bingham Read the "Round Robin."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—Senators favoring an interpretation of the Kellogg anti-war treaty today frustrated another proposal to limit debate on the pact by the senate and this resulted in an effort to straighten out the situation.

The "interpretationist" took the offensive during the day with Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, offering a resolution directing the foreign relations committee to submit a report embodying the views expressed on the floor of the senate by Chairman Borah of the treaty's construction.

Until he can get definite assurance of a vote on that resolution Senator Reed is holding out against the limitation of debate sought by Senator Borah. Senators Reed, Moses, republican, New Hampshire, and Bingham, republican, Connecticut, who are leading the fight for a committee report on the treaty, said they were ready to agree to a vote on the treaty provided they could obtain a vote on Reed's resolution.

After two hours of bickering on the floor for an agreement during which Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, took sides with President Coolidge in an effort to break the deadlock, Senators Borah and Reed finally did some plain talking on their differences over an interpretative statement.

Senator Borah said that at one time Secretary Kellogg and himself had agreed to the drafting of a report by the foreign relations committee embodying the expressed view of Borah that the treaty did not infringe upon the Monroe Doctrine nor upon this nation's right of self-defense. Then, he said, it was proposed that this report be transmitted to the other powers and to that the secretary and himself had objected and would continue to object.

Senator Reed then disclosed that he had polled the democratic members and Senator Moses had polled the republican members and had obtained pledges from virtually the entire membership that no motion would be made to have the proposed committee report adopted and sent to the other powers.

Senator Borah, however, contended that publication in the meantime of the story of the negotiations had created an understanding in the minds of other governments that any manner of construction on the treaty by the senate rest its foreign relations committee would amount to a reservation. For that reason, he said he could not assent even to the drafting of the committee report which is all that the "interpretationists" now ask.

Content that the 24 signatures received to their "round robin petition" had clearly shown a distinct sentiment in the senate for a committee interpretation of the treaty, the Reed-Moses-Bingham group made no further effort today on this score. They insist that their purpose was not to defeat ratification of the treaty and that therefore it was immaterial whether the one-third votes necessary to accomplish that end were enrolled on their petition.

Senator Robinson entered a vigorous plea to break the deadlock during the squabble, arguing that agreements be entered providing for votes both on the treaty and the pending cruiser construction bill. His effort was about as futile as that by President Coolidge who conferred several times on Saturday with the senate leaders and today had another senatorial breakfast party.

One of the last events of today's discussion of the treaty was the reading by Senator Bingham of the "round robin."

"We believe," it said, "in the purpose and objective of the Kellogg multilateral treaty. We believe clarity of understanding regarding its inherent and declared functions is vital to its usefulness at home and abroad. To avoid reservations we believe the foreign relations committee should report its official interpretation."

Just before Bingham began reading, Senator Robinson asked him if he intended to "put the names of the signers into the record." Bingham replied he had "no such authority."

Before adjournment Senator Fess, taking up a discussion he had set aside so that Borah could ask for consent to limit debate, declared he favored the treaty without reservations and said he believed the Monroe Doctrine needed no additional safeguard in the treaty than the understanding that a country has the right to defend itself.

FENN BILL PROGRESSES; KELLOGG PACT ACTIVITIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—The Fenn census bill was favorably reported by the commerce committee today which indicates it will pass the senate at an early date. Senator Bingham is following up his round robin program against the Kellogg treaty, but it is doubtful if the necessary number of signatures can be obtained.

A new phase today was the introduction of the Reed resolution which is less drastic than the Moses resolution, although along the same line, and may result in Bingham winning a point by forcing Borah to make an official statement.

Neither Bingham nor Moses are willing to have a filibuster on the treaty block a vote on the cruiser bill which they want passed this session.

FEMININE BODIES BACK KELLOGG ANTI-WAR TREATY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—A march upon the capitol to present 10,000 resolutions of women's organizations to senators endorsing the ratification of the Kellogg anti-war treaty is planned tomorrow by representatives of ten national feminine bodies, gathered here for the fourth conference on the cause and cure of war.

Called to discuss the problem of national armament reduction, the conference delegates under the leadership of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, a former suffrage leader, tonight completed plans for their move in support of the pact's ratification. "We are determined to use every resource," Mrs. Catt said, "within our power to obtain its ratification by the senate.

"Over 10,000 meetings held in 48 states," she added, "show that national feeling is squarely back of the treaty. There is no other measure before congress on which there has been such a definite expression of public opinion."

Besides the treaty and the disarmament question, the delegates to the conference numbering about 1,000 women, will study during the three-day gathering the American foreign policy in Latin America and the "possible menace to world peace inherent in airplane and naval construction programs."

EFFORTS TO REVIVE THE COTTON TEXTILE INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Development of the foreign market through greater concentration under the Webb-Pomerene act or through ordinary processes of joint representations today was recommended to the cotton textile industry by Walker D. Hines, president of the Cotton Textile institute.

Announcing results of a special study just completed under his direction, Mr. Hines suggested that such concentration would strengthen the American export trade in cotton goods by eliminating unnecessary cut-price competition among American exporters, promoting more comprehensive research and planning, utilizing the restricted personnel which has necessary training and experience, eliminating unnecessary cost and attracting the best type of banking accommodation.

Mr. Hines said the Webb-Pomerene act affords a wide choice of means of combining, even to the extent of eliminating price and other competition in the export business. He warned, however, that nothing can substitute for such essentials to success in foreign trade as efficient organization, specially trained and experienced personnel and facilities for studying and adequately serving selected markets.

"Combination without necessary business background, experience and training can promise nothing but disappointment," he said. "In fact, one of the leading reasons for greater combination is to get the maximum use of the too restricted amount of export talent and experience now available. Our study indicates we are well situated as to bank facilities and that our most experienced export interests, whose credit problems are of the most trustworthy character, have little if any complaint that other countries have any substantial advantages in this respect."

INVESTIGATING OFFICE OF GOV. JOHNSON OF OKLA.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 14—(AP)—Investigation of the office of Governor Henry S. Johnston by a committee of the house of representatives was started late today with an inquiry into a pardon granted last December to Dewey Crosthwaite, convicted murdered.

The first witness before the investigating committee was R. G. Lovejoy of Oklahoma City, brother of Thelma Lovejoy, young school teacher, who was killed by Crosthwaite in 1918.

Crosthwaite was listed as an escaped convict at the state penitentiary, having failed to return after the expiration of a leave of absence granted him in 1923 by J. C. Walton, who was impeached and removed from the governor's office that year.

Lovejoy testified that he had protested against clemency for Crosthwaite at that time and that when he learned the convicted slayer had been pardoned by Governor Johnston, he visited the governor's mansion to protest again.

"After the governor listened to my story he said it was the first time he had heard all the facts, had been deceived and that the pardon was the worst mistake he had ever made," Lovejoy testified. "He said he would do all possible to right the wrong."

RESCUE SUB READY FOR A SUBMARINE TEST

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 14—(AP)—The naval salvage vessel Mallard steamed into port here early this morning in preparation for a submerging test of the rescue submarine Defender. The Mallard was commanded by Lieut. Comdr. Palmer H. Dunbar, who is in charge of submarine rescue experimentation off New London.

The Defender was towed from its dock out to where the Mallard lay at anchor about a quarter mile off shore in the harbor this afternoon. The submarine was tied alongside the Mallard, and was inspected by navy officials. Capt. Sloan Dannehower and Simon Lake, inventors of the escape door fitted in the bow of the submarine, worked late into the night checking final arrangements for a submerging test to be made alongside the Mallard tomorrow morning.

DEATH OF WYATT EARP, CHARACTER OF OLD WEST

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14—(AP)—Another of the old west's links with its glamorous past is gone in the passing here of Wyatt Earp, gun fighter, whose blazing six-shooters, notched a dozen times, were for most of his life allied on the side of law and order.

Although Earp majored in gun-fighting and adventuring his one contact with pugilism brought him unforgettable renown. Earp's so-called "raw" decision in the Bob Fitzsimmons-Tom Sharkey fight at San Francisco, Dec. 2, 1896, when he awarded the fight to Sharkey on a foul in the eighth round, caused a roar that reverberated through the boxing world for years, and excited as much comment on its day as the long count given Gene Tunney at Chicago in 1927.

MRS. MAZZOLA COLLAPSES IN TESTIFYING BEFORE CORONER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 14—The evidence of seven additional witnesses were taken at the resumption of the inquest by Coroner Arthur G. Bill into the death of Mrs. Rosario Lorella, today. The continued inquest was opened at 10.30 o'clock and was concluded during the noon hour. At the close of the hearing Coroner Bill stated that another session of the inquest would be held provided that new witnesses were brought into the case by the investigators.

Mrs. Angelina Mazzola, wife of Thomas Mazzola who is being held as a suspect in the case, and a daughter of the slain woman was the outstanding witness. She had been unable to appear at the first session of the inquest one week ago Monday owing to illness which followed a shock sustained when she discovered the body of her mother a few hours after the murder. It is believed that her testimony to the coroner was confined mainly to preliminary statements she has made to the police. She had told the authorities that her husband left for work first and then she and her daughter went to their employment at the Windham Silk plant leaving her mother, Mrs. Lorella, alone in the Mazzola tenement. When she returned at noon she found the body. Mrs. Mazzola was in a highly nervous state today and during the questioning she collapsed, being revived with water and sent to her home in an automobile.

Mazzola was seen walking easterly on Main street, a short distance from Arnold's Lane where his home is located, about 6.45 o'clock on the morning of the crime, according to information given the coroner today by William Mathieu of Columbia, retail milk dealer. Mathieu stated that he supplies milk for the Mazzola family and that he had frequently seen Mazzola walking down to work in the morning. He made a casual note of having seen him on the morning in question. Mathieu said that he delivered milk to the Mazzola home on that morning and at the time he saw the suspect, walking down Main street he was driving employes of the American Thread Company to their work.

John Nasin Sr., of North Windham Road testified that he was in the vicinity of Maple avenue on the morning of the crime and that he saw Mazzola walking down the thoroughfare about 8.20 o'clock. This has led to the belief that Mazzola had taken some side street from Main to Maple avenue and from there he cut across the Natchaug school grounds to the section tool shack near the railroad crossing at Milk street where he was to join the section crew.

Joseph Piscetelo of 528 Jackson street an employe of the city sewer department also testified that he saw Mazzola on that morning. Piscetelo reports for work at the city yard on West Main street at 7 o'clock and he is believed to have seen Mazzola at an hour corresponding with that testified to by Mathieu.

The police are believed to have scored heavily in the testimony of Emanuel Russo, eighth grade pupil at the Model school and considered an unusually intelligent youngster. The boy is the son of Frank Russo of 40 Brick Row at whose home Mazzola said he visited during the time when he left his home for work and reported to the section foreman on the morning of the murder.

Young Russo, whose testimony was substantiated by that of Mrs. Libera Revenuto of 1197 West Main street with whom the boy has made his home for several years, gave evidence to show that his father, Frank Russo was not at 40 Brick Row on the fatal morning. The elder Russo left late that forenoon for New York where he embarked later in the day for Italy where he is to be married.

Mrs. Revenuto and Clarence Goss, a grammar school pupil and resident of 49 Brick Row were the other witnesses. James Demarco was interpreter for the Italian-speaking witnesses.

Coroner's Warrant for Mazzola.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill today issued a warrant naming Thomas Mazzola, son-in-law of Mrs. Rosaria Lorella, who was strangled to death in the Mazzola home on the morning of Thursday, January 3, as a suspect in the crime. The warrant was handed to County Detective William E. Jackson, who with Police Officer Arthur M. Hurley is conducting the investigation. Detective Jackson stated today that Mazzola would be transferred from the local cell room Tuesday forenoon to the county jail at Brooklyn where he will be held pending the outcome of the inquest. Mazzola has been under guard at police headquarters since Saturday night, January 5, when his arrest was ordered by Coroner Bill.

McLean. The annual appointment of a city engineer was not made tonight, but action on the matter may be taken up Thursday, according to Mayor Charles A. Gates. The death of City Engineer Robert E. Mitchell some months ago caused a vacancy in that office for the first time in many years. Mayor Gates stated tonight that the council was conducting a thorough investigation into the advisability of making a change in the nature of the appointment in the hope of curtailing some of the expense that has been involved in that office in past years. The position is now held by Acting City Engineer John F. Collins.

It was indicated that the appointment might be made on a permanent salary basis.

TRAFFIC ON WEST SIDE OF CHURCH PROHIBITED

The annual meeting of the Westminister Ecclesiastical society was held at the church Jan. 7. The society committee elected is A. T. McLold, A. H. Pellet, Arthur Edmond. It was voted to stop traffic on the west side of the church and sheds. People who used the church land for a thoroughfare are not satisfied with one set of ruts but have nine ruts started. The people who use the common for a short cut have been requested to use the road on the east side of the church.

Residents of Moscow who own dogs can no longer expect to have letters delivered at their doors unless they keep their pets leashed. Some time ago the postoffice supplied all letter-carriers with whips to protect themselves, but this proved insufficient as a safeguard.

FIGHT flu this simple way

Remove germs from hands often with this purifying toilet soap

THE grip of influenza is firm upon the nation. In one week alone, officials reported a million and a quarter new cases.

No one should take needless risks now, health authorities advise—fight flu constantly, they urge. Take every precaution, even if the malady appears to be mild in your community. And, in safeguarding yourself, bear in mind that hands may spread flu, just as they carry and spread the germs of other serious diseases.

Our hands gather germs everywhere. Money, telephones, carstraps, doorknobs—and many more things, that we must daily touch in common with others, may leave the hands germ-laden. This explains why all authorities attach so much importance to clean hands.

A real safeguard

The Life Extension Institute has established seven protective measures to help you guard yourself and family. See panel at right, particularly Rule 2—keep hands germ-free. A vital precaution, yet so simple to carry out. Just have everyone in your family wash often with Lifebuoy—the purifying toilet soap that removes germs as well as dirt.

The doorknobs your hands must touch daily make ideal transfer stations for disease germs.

For health's sake, make Lifebuoy a regular habit. Remove germs from hands often, not only in times of epidemics, but always—just as doctors do to protect themselves and patients.

Don't fear Flu —fight it these seven ways

Rules established by the LIFE EXTENSION INSTITUTE

1 Keep out of crowds all you can.
½ Remove germs from hands as often as possible.
3 Get plenty of rest, sleep, exercise, fresh air and nourishing food.
4 Avoid exposure to chill and wet, especially when tired.
5 Fortify yourself to resist the flu by having a health examination.
6 If you have the real flu don't take "some remedies"—call a doctor.
7 Be careful in convalescence. It is a danger period.

Millions love its clean scent

The same delightful, mild and antiseptic Lifebuoy lather that guards health by removing germs—keeps skins fresh and clear by purifying pores. Prevents embarrassing body odors, too.

Lifebuoy's pleasant, extra-clean scent, which vanishes as you rinse, tells you it gives greater protection. Start using Lifebuoy today as a common sense health measure.

DANIELSON

SEVERAL CARS DAMAGED IN SKIDDING ACCIDENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 14—More cars were damaged today by going out of control and skidding on icy highways. As was the case yesterday, there were no accidents in which anyone was seriously injured. A great many cars were being operated without chains. Drivers of some of these found difficulty in getting up hills or grades on account of lack of traction. Borough streets were in some cases harder to negotiate than the state highways, for these streets have not been sanded.

A Boston firm of attorneys is seeking to locate one Myles Nearing, who is said to have lived somewhere in the town of Killingly 35 to 40 years ago. It is understood that a legacy awaits Nearing, who, it appears, has not been heard from in years. Nearing is said to have been employed in mills here and possibly in neighboring towns. Inquiry in various quarters here today failed to bring to light any information pertaining to Nearing or the location of anyone who recalls him

There is no great improvement of the general health of Danielson as a new week opens. Scores and scores of people are ill with colds or grip, but very few serious cases of illness have been reported. However, there are economic losses aplenty, in the form of lost wages for workers, and in various business ways by those afflicted or whose organizations are not complete for the time being.

Some motorists who have been over in Rhode Island the past few days report being stopped by troopers of that state and advised to turn about and return if they had no chains on their machines. This advice was offered as a matter of precaution against accidents, and was taken by some who were facing difficult driving conditions.

It was welcome news to the people of this town that Frank Weeden is again in custody. A great many people recall that he came into this section upon the occasion of one of his escapes from Rhode Island and was hidden in the area around Chase's reservoir, near East Killingly, for a time. He managed to work his way out of here without detection. He is intensely feared by many people, especially women, living in rural sections of the town, and there is always great uneasiness when he is at large.

J. Wayne Haskell conferred with boys below the age of 18 yesterday following the Sunday school at the Westfield Congregational church, with a view to talking over organization plans for the basketball team that is to represent the church in the Inter-church league. The first games in this league are scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 26. There are to be four teams in the league.

A fire escape has been added to the westerly end of the central office building of the Southern New England Telephone company here. This escape is for the protection in case of emergency of the operatives working on the second floor, where the switchboard is located. Prior to the erection of the fire escape there was only one means of egress, the stairway leading out to Mechanic street.

The South Killingly Congregational church, members of which will have a conference with members of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson this week relative to relationship, is one of the oldest of the denomination in this part of eastern Connecticut, dating back into the 18th century. For years past its relations with the Danielson church have been very close, the pastor here taking the majority of the services at the South Killingly church throughout the year and numbers from Danielson assisting at services there from time to time.

The ice fishermen are having their innings. The reservoirs around East Killingly are now attracting fishermen, and others are trying their luck on Killingly pond and at Alexander's lake, where fishing is restricted to particular days each week. Some good pickerel have been reported caught within the past two days.

On Saturday evening, the C. I. C. class of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school held a banquet at the home of their former teacher, Mrs. Harold Holehouse, to whom they presented a beautiful bunch of pink snapdragons in honor of the occasion. The following menu was served:

Fruit cup, sliced ham, scalloped potato, relish, Parker house rolls, chocolate, ice cream and assorted cakes.

The remainder of the evening was given over to music and games.

At the close of the party, a formal announcement was made of the engagement of Deborah M. Codding to Charles R. Shea of Springfield, and New York city, by cards attached to old fashioned nose gays which were presented to the guests. The original members of this class were Mary Young Perkins, Esther Ethridge Paquin, Allison Adams Brierly, Lois E. Kennedy, Dorothy Smith, Deborah M. Codding, Zylpha N. Codding, Helen Leonard, Ellen Stockton, Elizabeth Stockton, Eleanor Tibbetts, Mildred Wilson, Anna Wilson.

Because of illness Miss Florence Crofut of Hartford will be unable to address the members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter at this week's meeting, so Supt. W. E. Parker of Killingly's schools will speak on the subject Some Interesting Phases of Work in the Public Schools. The hostesses for the meeting are to be Mrs. E. H. Keech, Miss Adah A. Danielson, Mrs. Ralph Kenyon, Mrs. H. Paine, Mrs. R. C. Spencer and Mrs. H. J. Thayer.

Seventy-five were in attendance at a banquet arranged by members of Mystical Rose council, K. of C., at St. John the Baptist hall in Wauregan Sunday evening. Addresses were made by Rev. George J. Donohue of Holy Trinity church, Pomfret, and Attorney V. P. A. Quinn, Norwich, brother of Rev. J. H. Quinn, pastor of Sacred Heart parish, Wauregan.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stetson of Brooklyn continue to recover from the severe burns they sustained a few days ago when a heater belched forth flame as the door was opened for an inspection of the firebox.

Though there is comparatively little snow on the state highways in this section, state highway crews have been out with plows clearing away as much as possible of the accumulation, and much fine gravel has been applied to slippery places.

This was the coldest morning of the winter in Danielson, with many thermometers registering 5 below zero and with reports of 8 and 10 degrees below from outlying sections.

A Boston investment house is circularizing holders of the stock here and offering $2 per share for second preferred stock of the Connecticut mills. This stock has a par value of $100, and was quoted at around $180 per share back in 1920. The company no longer is operating its Danielson plant, but has a fine new mill at Albany-Decatur, Ala.

In some of the manufacturing plants in town employes who show signs of becoming ill are excused from work at once, that other workers may be kept out of contact with them.

Again the matter of making some arrangement so that young people may slide in safety is present. The youngsters appear to have a preference for Reynolds street, and would like to have it closed to traffic for a few hours each afternoon that they might enjoy the winter sport.

Numbers of additional personal tax payers paid their dues to Collector A. A. Dean today, but the forecast stands that several hundred will have to pay an extra dollar becuse of not paying on time.

On some ponds ice was reported as between six and seven inches thick today, and gaining, for today's temperature was steadily below the freezing point. A few more days of cold weather and cutting can begin.

JEWETT CITY

BASS-CATCHING TRAGEDY AND DUE TO CLOSE SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 14—It appears that there are honest sportsmen, even hailing from New London.

Among the three parties fishing through the ice at Tadpole Sunday, was an amiable and altogether law-abiding pair from the Whaling city. During the afternoon, one of the tilt-ups, set in less than two feet of water on what is known as the "black duck" flats, (near where black bass were taken during the summer of 1927,) was pulled out of its fastenings in the ice by some lively agency down the hole.

The red flag flew up, then disappeared. There took place what is reported to have been a regular football scrimmage, in which every angler in the gang was quarter-back or left-tackle. One New Londoner, just in time, grabbed the disappearing trap. The men were a unit in declaring that never was seen such downright forceful tugs from a fish. After 15 minutes of manoeuvering, a black bass, every bit a 3-pounder, was pulled out on the ice. One man, noted more for preparednes than the rest, produced form the pocket of his jeans a much bethummed copy of the fish and game laws for 1929.

Alas! too true, there it was, in black and white! Close Season on Black Bass! Some say a tear or two trickled down the whaler's furrowed cheek, as with uncovered head he consigned the handsomest fish ever taken from Tadpole, or any other pole, back to his home beneath the ice. There were seven witnesses to the tragedy, honest men and true.

Below Zero Temperature

During Sunday night, and up to 6 a. m. Monday the mercury dropped from 38 degrees above to 1 degree below zero. Some claimed readings of 4 below. At no time Monday did the silver get above the 20 mark with ice making a half inch every three hours.

LONG ARM OF THE LAW REACHING FOR HOODLUMS

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 14—The kids' amateur gang war of a couple of weeks ago, during which three local minors each received 22-cal. bullets in different parts of his anatomy, is to have a legal aftermath. Last week, in answer to somewhat insistent demands from several local sources, Humane Officer F. H. Wyant of Norwich came to Jewett City. On two different days he was busy making inquiries and looking up the matter. Mr. Wyant has made his official report to Prosecuting Attorney Richard J. Dudkowski, at his offices in the Thayer building, Norwich.

Mr. Dudkowski said today, that during the week seven at least of the participants in the Slater and Ashland feud gangs, would be given a hearing, probably before Judge John T. Barry. It is forecasted that some of the boys may get away with official reprimands, while young Sekula, who actually handled the gun, may have to line up a stiffer legal proposition.

The fact is established today that every boy in both the warring factions is a minor, hence the necessary procedure precludes many of the common customs made and provided in such cases. The hearing to be given cannot even take place in the town court rooms.

A common sentiment has been aroused in the borough of late, as the result of which a formal protest has been made against several recent lawless proceedings said to be traceable directly to certain minors who roam the streets, evidently not under the restraining hand of parents or guardians.

Manager John F. Barnett, of the Finn theatre stated Monday evening that there was a fine advance sale for the grand benefit to be given for George Rathbun, oldtime fiddler.

BOYS BREAK THROUGH ICE BUT MANAGE TO COME SAFE

Sunday afternoon, during the young twister that did a 20-minute skit in this section, two boys, Walter Butremovic and Joe Luty Riverside grammar school pupils, broke through the ice in the upper Dorville pond, in the vicinity of McNicol's cove. The Luty boy, not slipping entirely into the hole, stayed on the job, secured a fence rail, and succeeded in helping his companion out upon the ice. The temperature at that hour was dropping half a degree every minute, and by the time the boys reached the home of Miss Marguerite Bliss, it was found that young Butremovic, who went down, needed immediate attention. His clothing was frozen stiff, even so that there were long breaks wherever a bend in the fabric was made, as the boy climbed up the incline. Miss Bliss got busy at once and hurried to see that the boy's frozen garments were removed; then she wrapped him in warm blankets, until he could be carried to his home. Monday the lad was not in his accustomed seat in Miss Marshall's department.

PUTNAM

DEFENSE IN HEBERT CASE ATTACKS WITNESS' CHARACTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 14 — The state opened its case against Philip Hebert of Plainfield, who is charged with sale of intoxicating liquors, in superior court here today. Judge Newell Jennings was on the bench. The state was represented by State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford and Prosecuting Attorney Danielson of Plainfield, while a trio of three of the most prominent lawyers in the county, William A. King of Willimantic, Thomas M. Shields of Norwich and Harry Back of Danielson, comprised the counsel for Hebert.

Adelor Blanchette of Voluntown was the first state witness on the stand. Blanchette testified that on Oct. 24, 1928, accompanied by State Policeman R. V. Scranton of Danielson barracks, he set out for Plainfield to obtain the sale on Hebert. Blanchette entered the store, inquired of Hebert for two cigars and forwarded the clerk a $2 bill. Later he asked for liquor, and his request was granted. The state exhibited the amount of liquor purchased.

On the following day, Officers Scranton and William Visokey of Westport barracks conducted a raid in the filling station operated by Hebert. They found about a half pint of alcohol "split," empty jug and about two quarts of corks. Hebert was arrested and was found guilty, taking his appeal to superior court.

The truth and veracity of Blanchette's testimony was disputed by the defense counsel and a score of witnesses were introduced to substantiate the doubt of the defense. Henry Maynard, a member of the Jewett City police, testified that he had known Blanchette for several years. Officer Maynard testified that following a court session in Jewett City, he inquired of Blanchette as to how he had been successful in obtaining evidence against the person whose case was in question, after so many evidence gatherers had failed. In disclosing his system, referred to by the officer as a "frame-up," Blanchette said he purchased a pint of liquor from another bootlegger. He entered the house of the defendant whose case was then sitting, and offered him a drink. Blanchette then took the bottle to the sink, filling it with water and returning it to the police as evidence. Officer Maynard was asked by the defense for his opinion of Blanchette's reputation and he replied abruptly, "No good."

Henry Vegiard, chief of police in Jewett City, testified that Blanchette's reputation was not above par but was led to believe by experiences with him, that it was much below par.

Lionel Marion, a storekeeper in Voluntown testified that Blanchette had owed him a grocery bill. Marion openly testified that Blanchette's word was not to be relied upon.

George B. Sheldon of Voluntown, who has suffered the loss of both legs by reason of a paralytic stroke, made the trip to Putnam and was carried into the courtroom to testify against the character of Blanchette. Mr. Sheldon stated that his official capacity in Voluntown was that of justice of peace, and that during his term of office Blanchette had been arraigned before him on a charge of larceny. Both Blanchette and his counsel pleaded for leniency. Sheldon stated he complied with their pleadings and allowed Blanchette to go with a provision he would return the stolen money. "This," Mr. Sheldon said, "he has never done and I have no confidence in him."

Olvila Magrey of Voluntown took the witness stand in behalf of the defendant and testified that he had started Blanchette in business in the town of his origin by purchasing for him a barber shop for the amount of $275, of which Blanchette had agreed to pay him back in ten installments Mr. Magrey stated that Blanchette instead of repaying him for his work borrowed an additional sum of $25 and repaid him $5 of that amount, neglecting to make any payments on the principal.

Other residents of Voluntown testified as to Blanchette's character. During the session of court, Attorney King produced a copy of the criminal record of Blanchette, which was obtained from the U. S. federal court offices. According to his record, Blanchette has been convicted on several larceny and theft of money charges and by reason of his criminal activities served a sentence in the United States federal penitentiary in Atlanta, Ga.

Hebert was one of the few remaining witnesses to take the stand. He testified that Blanchette had entered his store on the afternoon of Oct. 24, last, and had purchased two cigars in payment for which he offered a $2 bill. Hebert said he returned the stranger change amounting to $1.75. Before leaving the store, Hebert disclosed that the man quietly asked for a half pint. Hebert promptly replied, "We don't keep any here." Blanchette, according to the defendant, returned; "You don't need to be afraid of me. Auger sent me up here." Hebert said he was firm in his first statement to him and Blanchette left without any liquor. Hebert then described the raids conducted by Officers Scranton and Visokey and told of their finding the half pint of liquor, said to have been used for medical purposes by his brother, Homer Hebert.

Homer Hebert, owner of the filling station where the raid was conducted, testified that he has been in poor health for several months and upon advice of his father had kept the alcohol for his own use, and never to his knowledge could recall of a liquor transaction taking place in his store.

At the completion of the testimony of Homer Hebert, the defense rested, and prepared for rebuttals. Judge Jennings ordered that court be adjourned until Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, when the completion of the case would be made. The Hebert case was the only one heard in superior court today.

Wilford G. Chandler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Chandler of Livery street, Putnam, was taken to the Chelsea Veterans' hospital in Chelsea, Saturday, following a shock. Mr. Chandler is a World war veteran. While in the service he received wounds from which he has failed to recover. He was reported today as being in a critical condition.

Mrs. Vincinza Trama of this city died early Sunday morning, following an illness of many weeks. Mrs. Trama was 23 years of age. She was born in Naples, Italy, but came at an early age to this country. She is survived by her husband, Salvadore Trama, and two children, all of whom reside in Putnam.

Since the abolition of the traffic ordinances in the city by the members of the common council last Tuesday evening there seems to be little change in the number of cars parked daily in the area formerly restricted. It was observed today that the stretch of Main street formerly kept open and known as the fire lane was the parking site of but a few cars today. Other areas in the city, where parking has been restricted, have as yet to be occupied.

Funeral services were held at the East Putnam church in East Putnam this afternoon for Albert Bennette of Sutton, Mass., who died Saturday morning. Burial was in the East Putnam cemetery.

THE RIGHT WAY TO BANISH FAT

Combat a cause which modern research has discovered. Turn food into fuel and energy, rather than into fat. Supply a natural element which your system lacks. That is the method embodied in Marmola prescription tablets.

People have used Marmola for 20 years—millions of boxes of it. They have told others the results. Now, in almost every circle, you can see the results in new beauty and new vim. Why not learn the way to attain them?

A book in each box of Marmola tells you the formula, also the reasons for results. You will know why the effects come, and why they are beneficial. So ask your druggist—in fairness to yourself—for a $1 box of Marmola.

BEWARE THE COUGHS THAT FOLLOW FLU!

They May Weaken Your System and Lead to Serious Trouble

You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion may help you avoid flu, but is not sold as a flu remedy. If you have fever, or think you may have the flu, see your doctor immediately. (adv.)

PROMISED LONG AGO.

The talk about a special session of congress continues, and much of the comment runs to the effect that "while Mr. Hoover has not said that he will call a special session, the call seems inevitable."

It makes all the difference as to what is being talked about as to what Mr. Hoover has or has not said. It is fully understood what promise was made by him at St. Louis just before the close of the campaign. He was quite definite there as to what he would do. His statement was to the effect that if the farm relief legislation was not adopted during the short session of congress he would call a special session to deal with it. It was generally believed that he hoped the present congress would make a special session unnecessary, but he didn't say that in so many words. He did make it clear what he would do, if elected, in case congress did not act.

Since coming home from his tour through South America, Mr. Hoover has been visited by many relative to special session. Senators have been quoted as declaring it was their belief, following the visit, that Mr. Hoover would call an extra session about the middle of April.

Mr. Hoover has made no recent public announcement. He has promised to meet the contingency if congress fails to act. That statement is definite. Up to the present time congress has not acted and there are strong reasons for believing that it will do nothing at this session. That, being the case there will be nothing for Mr. Hoover to do but to keep his campaign promise and there is every reason to believe that he will.

Thus the claim that Mr. Hoover "has not said that he will call a special session" is correct if it refers to a post-election statement, but it is incorrect if we take into consideration his campaign promise and the contingency involved therein. From the present outlook there will not only be the question of farm relief for the special session to wrestle with but also that of tariff revision in which not only the farm industry but most of the industries of the country are interested. The situation is so shaping itself as to force the special session.

DANGEROUS MANIACS.

Just why it has been possible for those with a homicidal mania to be released or to escape from an insane hospital has been difficult to understand, and yet there have been many instances of it which have been attended by the killing of more innocent people.

In the state of Rhode Island there has just occurred one of these deplorable instances. A man of 51, a homicidal maniac, who had escaped 15 times, got away from the state hospital at Howard. Last week the superintendent of the institution was killed by a charge of shot fired through the window of his home. The escaped patient was suspected, has been caught and admits it. He expresses his delight in what he has done and revealed a long list of others he would like to have treated in the same way. He had grown bitter at the superintendent because he had opposed his parole and the distressing fact is that he should have been given any opportunity for obtaining his freedom and thus getting a chance to carry out his inclinations.

That the man was crazy and disposed to do harm was well understood and it is hard to understand why he should have been allowed the chance to get away. But there is the further deplorable fact that while he made his escape in October 1927 he was not returned to the institution. Although denied parole he was allowed to remain at liberty as a menace to the public but, in this particular case it would seem, as a special menace to the officials of that institution.

Possibly Rhode Island is one of those states which has no funds for seeking and returning those who escape to the state hospital, but if that is so no better demonstration of such a mistaken policy could be asked.

FEDERAL TAX REFUNDS.

When Representative Garner of Texas raised his hue and cry over the amount of taxes being refunded, he was quite effectively answered by Secretary Mellon when he declared that his statements would be quite important if they were based upon facts.

Mr. Garner was apparently talking for effect, political effect, and he was massing his figures and statements in way to best serve his purpose. He was engaged in creating an entirely wrong impression, and it was not difficult for him to get the support of those who have not displayed the friendliest kind of a feeling toward the treasury department.

Assistant Secretary Bond of the treasury department, who has supervision over the federal government's tax collecting agency, has made a statement concerning the tax collection methods, set forth that the policy of "collect and then adjust" is necessary in order to insure sufficient government funds and declares that of the $39,000,000,000 that the government has collected in the past 11 years more than $4,000,000,000 of it has been obtained through back taxes, which means that it has been secured as the result of reaudits, additional assessments and field investigations. During that time there have been decisions and readjustments that required the paying back of $975,000,000 or less than a quarter of the additions gained.

Furthermore he shows that the refund amounts to only about 2 1-2 per cent. of the total amount collected. If that seems large either as to per cent. or amount he furnishes figures of what the repayments have been in Great Britain, where since 1921 the lowest amount of such repayments has been 8 1-2 per cent of what was collected and they have run as high as 23 per cent.

These are things which Mr. Garner did not bring out. If he knew them he took care not to mention them. He could not have made such charges had he first gotten hold of the facts and understood what was being done and why. All this might have been obtained by him for the asking, but had he gotten it through such a channel it would have upset his plans for creating a false impression concerning the operations of the tax collecting agency of the government.

COUNTRY DOCTORS.

In the past quarter century the country doctor problem has been developing rapidly. Towns which once boasted their own doctors are without them today. They must depend upon practitioners from the nearest city, and in doing so, with the aid of the telephone, automobile and good roads, they are able in many cases to get even quicker and perhaps better medical service than they did in earlier years when it may have been necessary to drive after and bring back the doctor from a considerable distance.

There is not a willingness to get along without the country doctors. Where it is threatened or forced efforts are being put forth to meet the situation by interesting young doctors. In New York state a medical college is seeking an endowment for the purpose of training doctors to serve just such communities. By this plan country doctors would have the opportunity to get added instructions from the institution from time to time and thus keep up to date with development within the profession.

In the New Hampshire legislature a bill has been introduced at the present session which provides that the state shall contribute to the education of medical students through scholarships at the rate of $600 a year in recognition of which the recipient shall promise to give five years service following graduation in such town as the governor and council shall designate.

This is in keeping with the efforts which have been made by certain towns to pay a certain amount to a doctor to locate within their limits as part recompense for his services to the community. This bonus by the town would be in addition to the regular fees which he would receive, but it would insure a larger return than would otherwise be obtainable in that location.

The country doctor hasn't disappeared entirely. He is however to be found in decreasing numbers and invariably covering a large territory. Both he and his patients are dependent to a large degree upon good roads, and this means not so much the main thoroughfares as the so-called cross-country roads.

POLICING NEW YORK.

It is hard to satisfy New York; it always has been and probably always will be.

There was much dissatisfaction with the manner in which the former police commissioner conducted the police force of the big city. There were homicides in large number which were never solved. There came a cold blooded murder which seemed easy of solution but there was no progress made. It dragged and dragged until it was indicated that someone was being covered up and the shake up in the police was forced.

The new commissioner started a housecleaning and declared that new methods would be employed in handling the law breakers in that city. Heads went off, changes were made, new orders were given and some results have been accomplished. But now we hear the plea from the New York World that "he is making a most unfortunate impression." Exception is being taken to his method of procedure, he is being criticized for making wholesale arrests on suspicion and the use of strongarm methods.

New York is watching Commissioner Whalen and the results he is getting with concern because he is endeavoring to upset the easy going, lenient conditions which have prevailed too long. He evidently justifies his policies by the job he has got to do and the conditions which others have created. He is endeavoring to create the impression that there is a different order of things prevailing at the present time, but evidently there are influences at work trying to call him off. Perhaps the police pendulum may be swinging as far in one direction under Commissioner Whalen as it did in the other under his predecessor, but good reasons for it may exist in the conditions that prevail.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Lest we forget: There's only 18 more days to Candlemas and the groundhog.

Approximately 18,000 barrels of potatoes were burned in Maine. Another reason why potato prices rise.

The man on the corner says: It is bad when you are as much out of date as a last year's auto marker.

There was collected last year $9,169,000,000 in federal, state and local taxation. Is there any wonder taxes are not popular?

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—Connecticut has held the center of the stage in senate and house all through the past week.

Floor Leader Tilson and Representative Fenn were in the foreground in passing the census bill and Senator Bingham took a prominent part in the discussion of the Kellogg treaty, and also brought the attention of the senate to the delay in passing a certain bill sponsored by him, regarding further seacoast protection through aviation.

The census bill attracted great attention and for the first time this winter brought to the floor practically every available member of the house. Fenn won a decisive victory, though often when amendments to the bill were introduced, the vote to sustain the committee was close. Mr. Fenn had charge of the bill on the floor, and Floor Leader Tilson was responsible for securing a suspension of the rules, thereby bringing it forward on the legislative program and getting a vote early enough to guarantee plenty of time for action when it reaches the senate. A few weeks ago it was thought the bill would have a hard fight in the senate, but it seems now likely to pass in a form acceptable to the house, even though slightly changed.

One amendment was killed only by seven votes, so no chances were afterwards taken, and the unusual sight of the speaker of the house voting in a teller vote was the result. Walking arm in arm, till the tellers were reached, Speaker Longworth and Floor Leader Tilson brought up the tail end of the long line, were counted by the tellers and passed on with the crowd. It is doubtful if the speaker of the house has before voted on a measure, by teller vote, since the Coolidge administration came in.

After speaking forcefully on the Kellogg treaty, Senator Bingham took up the matter of a better understanding of the respective responsibility of army and navy in aircraft coast defense. He urged the immediate appointment of a commission to determine "which is which" when it comes to duty and responsibility in cases where both might be called on to act. Mr. Bingham introduced early in the 70th congress a bill to establish a commission to reach some agreement between army and navy on that matter, as those branches of the service have not always been in accord as to how the question should be adjusted. The senate passed the Bingham bill, but it has not yet passed the house, nor has the army and navy made an adjustment. The Bingham bill calls for a commission of five senators and five representatives to look into the matter. Mr. Bingham fears some emergency will arise when a conflict as to authority or responsibility, might prove disastrous to the country if the matter is not officially adjusted. Colonel Tilson has introduced a companion measure in the house.

A notable feature of the Bingham speech on the treaty was that he drew to their feet in explanation of their views, Senators Borah, Johnson, Norris, Shortridge, and a half dozen others, all expressing various shades of opinion as to how they regarded the obligations assumed by the United States under the treaty. Then Mr. Bingham very cleverly called the attention of the senate to the fact that whatever individuals might say about there being only one possible interpretation, he had proved at that session that various opinions were held by senators who had made a deep study of the measure.

Unless there is an interpretative clause neither Senators Bingham nor McLean will vote for the Kellogg treaty.

Citizens' military training camps have been well cared for in the war department appropriation bill. In the record submitted for the past fiscal year, New England made a fine showing. The total enrolled for the camps last year was 35,000 and out of that number only 2,000 failed to complete the course.

This year provision is made for 2,000 additional enrollments.

There are four courses of training, known as the basic, the red, the white and the blue. The basic course is for those who have had no previous training. The red course is a step higher and shows the duties of citizenship. The white course is still higher and is intended to qualify citizens who have attended the lower courses, or had equivalent instruction elsewhere, enlisted men of the regular army, the National Guard and the reserve corps, to qualify as non-commissioned officers capable of training recruits.

The blue course is the highest and carried on with the view that men completing that course will be qualified as officers of the Officers' Reserve corps, after further training in the regular army or National Guard, and be qualified for officers in the Officers' Reserve corps.

The training camps have been in operation eight years and in that time 228,748 men have been trained.

During the past year there were approximately 14,000 officers and 22,000 enlisted men of the regular army used at the citizens' training camps.

Those that followed President-elect Hoover in the pre-nomination campaign feel that his private secretary, George Ackerson, will be the real spokesman and right-hand man of Mr. Hoover, after March 4, as he has been during the trying months that have intervened since the announcement of the Hoover candidacy.

Ackerson is about 40 years old, has been a Pennsylvania editor, all-around newspaper man, Washington correspondent, and has years of experience with public men. They say it was Ackerson who gave Mr. Hoover his first training as a mixer. Ackerson comes of Scandinavian stock, is genial, responsive and never shows any impatience he may feel. At least, that is the reputation he bears among the men who accompanied Mr. Hoover on his campaign trips, when Ackerson was very literally the man behind the throne.

It is said Mr. Hoover lacks what is commonly known as "newspaper sense," but that Ackerson has enough for two. It is also said you cannot tire him out; that if you give him plenty of cigars he can work from daylight to dark, then keep right on from dark to daylight; then take a cold dip, drink a cup of coffee, and start off on the second strenuous day with a smile. He weighs something over 200 pounds, is married and has three sons.

It is taken for granted here, that when Mr. Hoover announces his presidential appointments, the first man named will not be a cabinet officer, but will be George Ackerson, as secretary to the president, an office of great responsibility, carrying a congressman's salary, and one which a president can make to please himself, untrammeled by political pressure.

That Mrs. Hoover is warm-hearted and sympathetic is shown in many ways; it is shown by her devotion to her family, and her devotion to the girls of the country, in her activity with the Girl Scouts and other organizations.

But that she is also well poised and of the non-hysterical type is shown by what happened in China during the Boxer troubles, when she was in the thickest of the fray, at Peking in 1900.

The story runs along this line: Mr. Hoover was away on an engineering trip, and Mrs. Hoover left in a home quite near the American legation. A cannonade was in progress, and a couple of American officials dropped into the Hoover home to make sure Mrs. Hoover was not in need of their help. They discovered her sitting at a small card table playing solitaire, while the cannonade continued. Presently a great blast sent the house rocking; it tilted the little card table and the cards were tumbled to the floor. Mrs. Hoover calmly stooped and picked up the cards, and went on with the game, while the fire kept up its raking of the city.

Vice-President Dawes will use, then pass on to Vice-President-elect Curtis, a gavel made from the wood of a tree planted by the father of President-elect Hoover, on an Iowa farm. It is the gift of William Wallace, who states it a gift to him from the present occupant of the old Hoover farm.

It is not often that the far-away state of Oregon occupies the front of the stage in both senate and house, as the congressional number from that state is very small, only three in the house and the two senators. But just now it is Senator McNary, with his farm bill and Representative Hawley, as chairman of the ways and means committee, who seem to hold the trumps when it comes to whether or not there shall be an extra session, and if there is one, it is those two men who will be in the places of power in framing bills for farm relief and tariff revision.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Problems of Youth

Mr. Editor: It is not my intention to discuss in detail the many questions which must inevitably arise. The problem of youth is a vital one and we can't afford to ignore it. It strikes at the very heart of the smallest community as well as the nation. I believe the life of the country could be brightened both socially and intellectually if enough interest could be aroused to bring it about. Youth is essentially a period of preparation and as such every facility should be given to enlighten the minds and broaden the outlook of the young people for the battles of life which lie ahead. The state, churches and political parties should take the initiative, the prize is worth winning. Nothing but good is likely to accrue from such a move.

It is only natural the lighter side of life such as picture shows, parties, dances, etc., appeals to the young people. These things are alright in themselves but are only permissable when they are subordinate to some real aim in life. "Learn young, learn fair" is a maxim which is very opposite in this connection. The argument will be put forward that the young people will be confronted with the problems of life soon enough without spoiling their enjoyment by reminding them. Experience has shown them to be wrong. Take for example a house party of young persons who in a spirit of bravado compete with one another, as to who can consume the most alcohol. If they had been properly instructed on the dangers of intoxication, it is just possible they would have taken it in moderation or else abstained. Nothing grieves me more than to see young people under the influence of these noxious drinks.

Another equally appalling instance is, the lack of sexual knowledge which is prevalent among the younger people of today. This subject may be obnoxious to many of my readers but we must face the facts. Let us get away from the grandmotherly idea of letting them find out for themselves. In numerous cases they find out when it is too late. It is our duty to instruct them on sexual matters. Above all we must warn them of the various forms of sexual perversion and the diseases to be contracted therefrom. Accomplish this and it will be a deed well done.

Let our aim be intellectual elevation. Youth should be the poetic age, yet how many of them know anything about poetry, except that which they had to learn at school. The taste for literature could be encouraged by the establishment of literary societies or circles affiliated to the above mentioned organizations. Let them know something about Wardsworth, Longfellow, Milton, Shelley and Byron to mention only a few and in prose such men as Mark Twain, Lewis, Dreiser, Dickens, Hardy, Cervantes, Tolstoy, etc. All that is required is a beginning and with persistent effort successful results could be attained.

JAMES MCDERMOTT.

Norwich, Jan. 13, 1929.

MRS. QUEERIE CLICKS

"This morning," said Mrs. Queerie at breakfast, "I have to go to Bessie Blablah's house."

"It's William Blablah's house," commented Mr. Queerie. "Not that it matters. William himself isn't William's, he's Bessie Blablam's."

"Then," said Mrs. Queerie, "I have to go to Mr. and Mrs. William Blablah's house."

"You mean," bandied Mr. Queerie, "you're going to Mr. and Mrs. Bessie Blablah's house. But why?"

"Bessie's renting her house for the summer."

"And where are they going?"

"Bessie's taking the Smithsons' bungalow in Forrest Park."

"And the Smithsons?"

"They're taking the Greens' cottage on Lake Limpid."

"The Greens, I suppose," said Mr. Queerie, "will take a log cabin on the north shore and the owners of the cabin will rent an Eskimo igloo. I don't know what the Eskimos will do," he added, "unless they can persuade a polar bear to rent them his iceberg."

"It's really a splendid idea of Bessie's," defended Mrs. Queerie. "She gets a hundred dollars more for the season than she pays for the Smithson bungalow."

"Which won't pay to have the floors refinished."

"Bessie never has her house damaged," replied Mrs. Queerie. "She picks her tenants. And even if she didn't make a nickel, she gets a change. A person gets tired of seeing the same wall paper month after month."

"Here!" exclaimed Mr. Queerie, suddenly stung by suspicion. "You're not thinking of—you're not going to be the picked tenant?"

"Can you see me in a house of Bessie Blablah's?" demanded Mrs. Queerie.

"Well, why are you rushing there this morning?"

"As her prospective tenant is calling this morning," explained Mrs Queerie, "Bessie wants me to drop in and go over the house with a sort of admiring look."

"With an admiring look?" said Mr. Queerie. "What's the idea?"

"Bessie thought," said Mrs. Queerie "that if her prospect took me for another prospect she might get an immediate decision."

"No wonder," remarked Mr. Queerie, "that people never talk of Mr. Blablah."

"It's the great American merry-go-round," declared Mr. Bobble that afternoon as he pounded Mr. Queerie's desk. "It's the vicious circle—this renting each other's houses for the summer. An absurd business."

"Oh, I don't know," opposed Mr. Queerie. "A woman gets tired of always looking at the same wall paper and if she can get a change and at the same time make a little out of the rent, why not go ahead?"

"Make a little!" scoffed Mr. Bobble "The rent never pays for the damages. Nails in the walls, holes in the floor, cigarette burns on the piano—"

"But if you get a decent tenant—"

"There ain't no such animule," declared Mr. Bobble. "If the worst's an earthquake the best's a landslide."

"All the same," said Mr. Queerie, "I think I'll phone Ethel to rent the house for the summer. . . . "Hello, Ethel," he called. "If you can get someone to take the house off our hands—what? You have! Took it this afternoon—what's the name? No, I'm not deaf—what! . . ."

Mr. Queerie hung up.

"The house was taken this afternoon," he announced.

"So I gathered," said Mr. Bobble. "Who took it?"

"Mrs. Bobble."—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—When you stroll about the house end of congress these days, big-type posters shout "Warning" at you in sanguinary lettering. The placards are everywhere. They hang from elevator doors, corridor walls, even on the sacrosanct bulletin board in the house lobby itself.

You just can't get away from them, and finally you read 'em. Then you find they are the first official act of that newest appendage to the majesty of the house, its physician in waiting extraordinary, George W. Calver, commander, medical corps, U. S. navy.

There it stands as in the record, Dr. Calver's formal assignment by Secretary Wilbur "to attend in the capitol during the sessions in the house." It was suggested by Secretary Wilbur because several members collapsed last session. Representative Britten of Illinois, the new naval committee chairman, put through a resolution requesting the assignment.

First He Warns of "Flu."

The commander-doctor's first ukase had to do with the "flu" scare. He was no sooner assigned than the startling signs appeared, laying down a set of general rules. Mostly they are in line with public health service suggestions, but one injunction to house members might seem a little superfluous to one holding this popular conception of the life of the average member of congress. The doctor bids them avoid "excessive fatigue."

Another thing about the navy doctor's assignment is noteworthy. It was made in face of the fact that there are other house members who know medicine.

One member-doctor, Kindred of New York, had extraordinary training at home and abroad as a specialist in mental disorders. Others, like Irwin of Illinois, Sirovich of New York, Swick of Pennsylvania and Summers of Washington, were general practitioners. Bohn of Michigan is a medical graduate and Porter of Pennsylvania put in two years at a medical school. Woodruff of Michigan is a dental surgeon and Davy of Ohio a tree surgeon.

Copeland For Senate.

The senate seems content to trust itself still to the keeping of Dr. Copeland, senator from New York. It has no physician in waiting. And when Majority Leader Tilson in the house announced Dr. Calver's assignment, Representative Clarke of New York was moved to ask:

"Will this necessitate Senator Copeland's articles to be still published in the newspapers?"

There was "(laughter)," according to the Congressional Record, but Tilson said Clarke must seek "some other source of information."

YOUR HEALTH

UNDERNOURISHED MOTHER A POOR NUTRITIONAL SUPPORT FOR CHILD

(By Dorothy F. Holland, Ph. D. Staff Associate American Child Health Association)

About 50 per cent of the infants in the average city die in their first year of life because they did not develop normally before birth, or were injured at birth. What are the factors that contribute to this cause of death?

The state of prosperity of the community and its general intelligence are important underlying factors.

The expectant mother in a poor family, herself undernourished, is a poor nutritional support for her infant before or after birth. Lack of sufficient income may deprive her of necessary care during the prenatal period, and at birth, the lack of which endangers the chance of survival of her infant.

These effects of poverty will be more serious among ignorant mothers, but intelligent mothers may do much to offset them.

Roughly, another 40 per cent of infant deaths during the first year of life are due to diseases caused by bacteria, such as diarrhea and enteritis, the pneumonias and influenzas, whooping cough, measles, diphtheria, syphilis, erysipelas, tuberculosis in all forms, and other epidemic diseases.

If the underlying causes of this group of deaths be sought, the state of prosperity and intelligence of the community are again found to be important.

The infant of the intelligent mother will be breast fed, or, if this be impossible, it will be given a milk formula, based on certified or pasteurized milk, prescribed by a physician. The milk for infant feeding will be iced and kept clean to prevent reinfection. An infant so fed and receiving general hygienic care will be protected from diarrhea and enteritis. By cleanliness, and by isolation of the infant from other members of the family who are suffering from infectious disease, much may be done to prevent the development of the respiratory and epidemic diseases. But intelligent infant care may be difficult for the mother who is painfully occupied outside the home.

Infants in all cities will have have an equal chance of survival when private physicians and health organizations, public and private, are free to supervise their hazardous first year without the handicap of unfavorable local conditions. The removal of this handicap is a general civic problem, which each individual citizen can help to solve by attempting to heed the advice of medical and public health leaders.

doctors warn AGAINST standardizing weight

May result in dangerous loss of fat in the tissues

The American dieting craze that seeks to reduce all fat in the tissues is dangerous. Eminent medical authorities are alarmed and they point out that it is suicidal to try to standardize human weight.

"We are not machines," says one famous doctor, "but complex living beings; we can never be standardized." He goes on to say that "What is a normal weight for one individual is an abnormal weight for another. The proper weight and degree of nourishment for any person . . . is that at which he is most capable and productive." Extreme dieting may result in permanent injuries. Without a reserve of fat we become a prey to diseases.

It is time for common sense, supported by medical warning, to end the fad of extreme thinness. One error in dieting is to think that only sugar is fattening. Any food that nourishes fattens, and sugar is a pure, cheap, nourishing food. Sugar's greatest blessing to mankind, however, is its use in making other foods palatable and enjoyable. Serve healthful baked apples or pears, apple sauce or stewed dried fruits for breakfast. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

PASTOR OF FIRST CHURCH REVIEWS YEAR OF ACTIVITY

At the First Congregational church Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey gave a most interesting talk to his congregation, "The Story of the Year," was the theme, text Proverbs 15.30, "The light of the eyes rejoiceth the heart; and good tidings make the bones fat." I come to you this morning with light in my eyes and I bring you good tidings which I trust will create rejoicing in the heart, were Rev. Mr. Bailey's introductory words. It is my purpose to review our achievements, as I want you to know the things we have done. Let me outline some of the outstanding features of the church year and around these central features gather the activities of the various organizations and show how each has contributed to the ends derived. May I first apea kof the good times we have had among ourselves? It is as truly the duty of the church to see that its members, old and young are provided with occasions for merriment, as it is that such seasons be provided in the home. A merry heart doeth good and a joyful spirit preserves health, renewed courage and enriches fellowship. Creating an environment conducive to this is a part of our church program.

Mention was made of the Cradle Roll party in June, the annual Sunday school picnic, Y. P. S. C. E. at Atlantic Beach, Christmas entertainment, C. E. socials in the chapel and the New Year's Home Time for the entire parish.

Second, Material improvements to the church property include the rebuilding of the church organ, which transformed it into a more modern instrument at a cost of $3,300, $2,000 of which was given by a former member of the choir. Through the special activities of the Ladies' Aid society and the Young People's C. E. society, the interior of the chapel was re-painted, new electric lamps installed and an oak floor laid, at a cost of nearly $600. One hundred copies of "The Hymnal for Young People," were purchased for the church school and evening services.

Through the will of Mrs. Sarah J. Moffitt, there has been added about $6,000 to the permanent endorsement funds of the church, and by the will of Miss J. G. Bonney $500 more will soon be available.

The various missionary societies have been merged into one organization, which forms the third prominent feature in the year's work, called the League of Service. The object of the league is to enlist the whole church and parish in active religious and philanthropic service. There are seven departments in the league—one for the men's activities, another for the women, third, for young people, fourth children, fifth for the Cradle Roll, sixth for the home and lastly for a literature committee.

The men's and women's departments are sub-divided into committees for specific work, such as suppers, entertainments, educational purposes, looking up new members, etc. for the first, and the latter has a work committee and another on program meetings, also suppers. The league has adopted the following projects for 1929, totaling in all $600; hospital at Ahmednagar, Miss Gertrude S. Avery, Rev. Edward H. Smith, Miss McClure and Miss Cushman, Miss Ruth Beebe, Athens, Alabama; Piedmont college, Miss Hartig in Connecticut, fund for ministers, Boston Seamen's Friend society, Storrs fund for completion of church, Ashland missionary, Northland college, Florida and Ryder Memorial hospital, Porto Rico. Theoretically, all departments not only of the league but of the church are supposed to work for these projects, that we may meet our goal in full. In 1928, we went triumphantly over the top, and not only attained the $600 mark, but according to the treasurer of benevolence, we were $56, over.

In addition to the $56 contributed to these projects, $350 has been given to other forms of mission work and to charities. Many have had a share in the latter amount which has come from classes in the Sunday school, Y. P. S. C. E., men's forum, King's Daughter's, Drop-in class, etc. Mention should also be made of the gifts of bedding, clothing, fruits and flowers, contributed by organizations of women and children, all carrying on their heart some less fortunate than themselves. Eight quilts were made and given away, clothing for children prepared, 25 substantial May baskets placed where they would do good and each of the 47 members of the Alms House remembered with a gift at Christmas, in addition to confectionary. This $1,000 plus articles named does not represent the full amount of charities, as contributions have been made to the Y. M. C. A., Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, United Workers, Tuberculosis sanatorium and Norwich Council of Religious Education. The ratio of benevolences as a whole to our home church expenses it is safe to say is 1 to 2. For every $2 spent on the home church for its maintenance $1 is contributed to benevolent work outside. This ratio has been commended to the state committee on missions as a laudable scale of Christian giving.

The fourth item, concerning the spiritual ministry of the church, the pastor has officiated at five weddings, three of which were in the membership of the church; the rite of baptism has been administered to 16 persons, most of them little children consecrated to God by believing parents; the pastor has been called upon to officiate at 18 funerals, 5 of them being members of the church and several have entered the church fellowship during 1928. Regular worship has been maintained on 53 Sundays and besides the weekly Thursday evening services the pastor has conducted religious service 16 times in other institutions. Several communion services on Sunday morning and one on the eve of Good Friday have been conducted. Once a few met in an upper room with an aged member, on the eve of this woman's 93rd birthday and broke the bread and took the cup of sacrifice. Mention was made of the valuable assistance of Rev. Charles E. Reeves and his wife, in the religious life of the church, gratefully acknowledging on record their fine Christian spirit of loyalty to church and minister.

As president of the City Council of Religious Education, Rev. Mr. Bailey gave an interesting outline of this convention, which required much time and thought on the part of those who had active duties to perform. Never before in the history of Norwich was a community budget of $3500, undertaken for distinctly religious purposes. This goal, however, was reached. As a part of the council's work, one of the best Sunday school conventions the state has held, was put on in Norwich in November.

The fine work done by the Young People's society was cited, in conducting the Sunday evening services, manifesting their loyalty to the old church, the cooperation of the organized classes and the loyalty of students to teachers: Rev. Mr. Bailey concluded "Shall we not step out into the new year of 1929 with light in our eyes and rejoicing in our heart, believing that hitherto it was God who led us."

The Sewing society of Home chapter of The King's Daughters has planned a meeting for Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Herbert R. Branche on Mohegan Road.

OBITUARY.
Mrs. John Brayton.

Many friends in Norwich will regret to learn of the death in her 88th year of Mrs. Jane G. Brayton, widow of John Brayton, which occurred Friday, Jan. 4 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John A. Funn, 410 West Clay street, Richmond, Va. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at St. Philip's church with burial in Richmond.

Mrs. Brayton (Jane G. Cotton) came to New London when a very young girl and made her home there until about the time of her marriage.

Mr. Brayton's death occurred about 35 years ago in this city, leaving his widow and one daughter, Florence. From that time, for about 25 years, Mrs. Brayton was a most efficient practical nurse, greatly loved in numerous families in this city, Lebanon and Hanover, and had a host of friends. Ever willing to do all in her power for the relief of any suffering, when she left Norwich several years ago with her daughter to make her home in Richmond, she was greatly missed and in her death many extend to the bereaved daughter sincerest sympathy.

"SLENDERIZING" HAS HURT THE VEGETABLE INDUSTRY

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—(AP)—The publicized theory of theatrical producers that the ideal feminine figure should have a boyish slimness has done "almost irreparable harm" to certain branches of the vegetable industry, E. S. Briggs, manager of the American Fruit and Vegetable Shippers' association, declared at the annual convention today.

Since the "boyish figure" idea has been picked up from professional exploiters of feminine pulchritude, the potato and rice market has been "glutted, due to the fact that every one avoided starchy foods in the interests of slenderness," Briggs said.

MARY GARDEN INJURED DURING A PERFORMANCE

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—(AP)—Mary Garden, opera star, was painfully injured during a performance of "The Love of Three Kings" here, yesterday. Virgilio Lazzari, as the blind king, in hurling the diva from him during a scene inadvertently put too much force into the acting and Miss Garden was badly bruised. She stood up until she reached the wings where she collapsed and fainted.

Miss Garden had recovered sufficiently to take part in tonight's performance.

BIG SHAKE-UP AMONG BIG LEAGUE INFIELDERS DURING TRAINING SEASON

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Half a dozen major league infielders will waste many steps next summer looking for their gloves. From force of habit they will walk to a spot dedicated as a deposit place for a shortstop's mitt when they should go to the third base glove reservation or the other way around.

In baseball spring training camps, now only a few weeks away, men who have long been stars under the big top of baseball will be rookies again for they will have to learn new positions.

No season in years has brought such a readjustment of infielders. In a highly specialized baseball age it is not so simple to tell a third baseman, "you play short," or nonchalantly suggest to a shortstop, "move over to third."

The shortstops who must learn to play third and the third basemen who will be called on to master the tricks of shortstoping will have no time to loaf when the clarion calls to Loseball arms is sounded next month.

John J. McGraw, a great infielder in his day, and the best player for his age in the major leagues today, was called upon to give some expert testimony.

"If a man is a good shortstop can it be taken for granted that he would be a good third baseman as well?" the manager of the Giants was asked in a general discussion before he sailed away to Cuba.

The man who played third base for the old Orioles was quick with his reply. It was "No."

"The two positions, as a matter of fact, are widely different," he said.

"Both players of course, field a lot of ground balls and throw the ball to first base or one of the other bases after getting possession of the ball but there is much more to major league infielding tha nthat.

"A third baseman for instance must be adept at coming in fast on slow hit balls and taking them with one hand for the snap throw to first. The shortstop does not have this problem and then, too, the shortstop has some troubles the third baseman does not face. As a general thing without any reference to any particular case I would say that if a man cannot play short, he cannot play third."

Jackie Bisch, the Pirate's manager, who was one of the games great shortstops, agrees with the Giant pilot in the main, adding a word for the difficulty of playing midway between the second and third bases.

"A man who has failed to measure up at third base will not find any bed of roses by moving to short," said Manager Bush in a fanning bee with some fellow baseball men at the National league meeting.

Both Managers McGraw and Bush however, were discussing untried ball players. The changes in position about to be made in the American and National leagues, if mid-winter tales are to be accepted, are by established stars who probably could play any position if they set their respective minds and muscles seriously to the task.

The New York Yankees plan to move Koenig from short to third. Washington may reverse the process with Ossie Bluege going from third to short. The Pirates will have Pie Traynor replace Glen Wright at short if a likely third baseman is uncovered and Dave Bancroft may go to third for Brooklyn, leaving Wright in undisputed possession of short.

Manager Stanley Harris, star second sacker for Washington, may have to play third for Detroit for he has a great second sacker in Gehringer. The Cleveland Indians apparently are committed to a policy of transferring Joey Sewell from shortstop to third base.

Connie Mack has a chance to assign three players permanently in almost any spot he chooses. Jimmy Fox, a catcher, Ossie Cowell, a pitcher, and Jimmy Dykes, Jack of all trades, are these individuals. Anyone, or all of the trio, can play any position not nailed down.

BIG LEAGUE TEAMS HAVE 47 GAMES WITH SOUTHERNERS

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 14—(AP)—Home boys of the three principal Dixie minor leagues will get their fling against major opposition this spring as the big circuit squads move northward after conditioning drills.

Thirteen major league clubs already have announced their spring training schedules showing forty seven games listed against teams of the Southern association, the South Atlantic association and Southeastern league.

Thirty four of the contests will be in cities of the Southern. Eight games go to the Southwestern and five to the Sally.

New Orleans and Memphis will get more romps than the others with eight each. Cleveland, training in the Crescent City again, will furnish all of them to the Pelicans, however, while Memphis meets the Pirates in four stands, the Giants twice and the Browns and White Sox.

The Cards, Robins, Yankees and Reds all come to Atlanta. St. Louis and Brooklyn playing two games each. Birmingham, on the basis of schedules announced, will see five games between the Barons and the Big Tenters. The Yanks, Indians and Browns and Reds provide the opposition.

As for Sally exhibitions, the Cardinals, Robins and Reds all have stopovers set for Macon. Jacksonville will get four games in the Southeastern, the Tars meeting the Cards, Robins, Yanks and Athletics.

Many of the American and National league clubs have scheduled games in their own ranks on the barnstorming trip home, however.

UZCUDUN READY TO BOX HEENEY ANYTIME

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish heavyweight, returned to New York from Panama today after defending his European championship against Jack Renault in Calo, Colombia. He said he was ready to fight Tom Heeney in the upper bracket of the current heavyweight elimination tournament as soon as the match could be arranged.

Uzcudun picked Young Stribling, the clouting Georgian, to defeat Jack Sharkey in the first of the elimination bouts, the late Tex Rickard planned for this season. He has high hopes that Jack Dempsey will return to the ring and oppose him in a match for the heavyweight title Gene Tunney vacated.

Uzcudun learned of the death of Tex Rickard by wireless aboard the steamer. He was shocked at the news and thought boxing had suffered "a great blow." Johnny Urban, of Pittsburgh, and Clem Johnson, Negro sparring partner, along with Paulino's manager and trainer, accompanied the Spaniard.

Hallicki Signed by Cards.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 14—(AP)—Edward Hallicki, said to be Bucknell college's most outstanding ball player since the days of the late Christy Mathewson, is slated to join the St. Louis Cardinals in June, Branch Rickey, club vice president, announced today. Hallicki, a pitcher, also played the outfield in college ball.

CONN. AGGIES TO PLAY THREE GAMES THIS WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Jan. 14—Three games in four days will be indulged in by the Connecticut Aggies this week in what is going to be a trio of stiff assignments with Tufts on Wednesday at Medford, Maine on Friday at Storrs, and Massachusetts Aggies at Amherst on the next day. Saturday, Coach Louis A. Alexander's charges went through a hard two hours of practice this afternoon as the one and only drill period of any consequence left for the preparation. Tomorrow the Nutmeggers will have only a light workout which will be in direct opposition with the usual custom which calls for no drilling on the day before a game. On Thursday, following the Tufts contest, the Aggies will duplicate the practice session before the Maine game.

The practice session this afternoon for the most part was based on the mistakes made by the quintet when the Aggies took New Hampshire into camp last Saturday in the Hawley armory by a 44-25 score. The offensive plays were recalled by the Aggie mentor with very little time given over to the five man defense which functioned extremely well Saturday. New Hampshire was forced to make use of the long range shots in order to count against the Nutmeggers. But for the long shots of Patch, star Wildcat forward, the score might have ended much lower for the visitors. The work of Right Guard Gaunt was also outstanding for New Hampshire.

There is very little probability that the Nutmeg coach will alter his quintet combination of Ryan and Lamoureux, forwards, Chubbuck, center, and Osterling and Duffy, guards for the northern invasion. This combination has shown superior pass work and floor skill in the two varsity tilts to date that places it as a strong contender for record honors.

The Aggies should run across some hard opposition in the Medford players who recently defeated Trinity.

Chubbuck played the outstanding offensive game Saturday night which was a duplicate of his playing of the week before. He was the highest scorer for the Aggies.

BACON ACADEMY CLASHES WITH KILLINGLY TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 14—Bacon Academy of Colchester comes to Killingly with the "repute" of a strong team Tuesday night. The Red and White team has won three games and lost one that being to Chapman Tech, a member of the Eastern Conn.-Western Rhode Island league.

This game is the only game Killingly has before it meets its "ancient" rival Putnam, at the Killingly gym next Tuesday. Putnam has a fine record loosing only two games out of seven, standing second in the Eastern Conn.-Western Rhode Island league. It also beat N. F. A. by a large score last Friday night.

Principal Ernest R. Warren has been coaching the team in the absence of Coach "Bill" Schofield who is ill. The probable lineup for Killingly consists of the following: rf, Dowik; lf, Young; center, McKeon; rg, Szafranski; lg, Waldron.

Chapman Tech meets Windham tonight at New London in a conference game. This is Tech's opening league encounter and in Windham she gets the present league leader for an opponent. The Whalers have a formidable record, losing but once so far this year, that to the Alumni and this game should be hard fought all the way. Windham also has lost but once, that to an independent team in Willimantic. Chapman Tech and Windham are looked upon by some as the league's best clubs.

In Bryant-Stratton and Torrington high Friday and Saturday, respectively, the coming week end, the Academy gets an exceedingly busy program. Both teams look better than the Wildcats on paper but you can never tell.

Gilbert high of Winsted is proving the dark horse of state basketball so far this year. Victories over Wilby high and New Britain not to mention conquests of some lesser lights have given this team quite a start toward the Yale tournament. Gilbert plays the Academy Feb. 2, the first Saturday home game for N. F. A.

ACADEMY RALLIES IN CLOSING PERIOD OF GAME TO BEAT OUT PRATT HIGH

The Academy rallied in the second half to overcome a four point lead and beat Pratt High of Essex Monday night at the Y gym, 19 to 17. It was the first home game for the Wildcats and also their first victory of the season. A fairly large crowd attended.

Pratt, mainly by long distance shots, ran up a 15 to 11 lead at the end of the first half and seemed on the way to a victory. Wind, captain of the visitors, contributed a couple of long baskets while Peterson at center tossed in three baskets that were very nice.

In the last two quarters, however, Pratt scored but once, that in the third period, a field basket by Baroni, while the Academy found the angle and, with Dickerman leading the way went on to gain the decision. Dickerman tossed in the winning basket with but two or three minutes to go.

TOMMY ARMOUR FINISHES SECOND IN $10,000 EVENT

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14—(AP)—Final echoes of the $10,000 Los Angeles open reverberating through Santa Monica Canyon today when a dozen golfers finished rounds they had failed to complete Sunday because of darkness, carried the faltering notes to Tommy Armour's clubs.

The slender Washington, D. C., professional who had paced the field with phenomenal play through the first two rounds only to falter in the final 27-hole drive, in the brief play today almost blasted himself out of second place. Armour had but one hole to play, having "picked up" Sunday night on the 17th. His play on that last hole was heart-breaking for he needed seven strokes, three over par, to hole out. However, he managed to take second place and money, $1,750, with a 72-hole aggregate of 291, six more than Macdonald Smith, the winner.

Armour beat out Leo Diegel of the Agua Caliente Country club in Mexico and national professional champion, by a single stroke. Diegel's aggregate of 292 gave him third place and $850. Horton Smith, 21-year-old Joplin, Mo., pro, and George Von Elm, blonde amateur from Detroit, deadlocked at 294. Smith romped off with fourth place money, $600, while Von Elm, who "picked up" late yesterday on the 17th, holed out in par today for the low gross amateur trophy.

Tomorrow morning the same galaxy of stars who battled through the Los Angeles tournament will swing into action on the municipal course at Pasadena, Cal., in a $4,000 open. After the two day 54-hole event is completed, the golf army will entrain for Texas there to battle in two "big money" events.

ARMORY FIVE PLAYS THREAD CITY QUINTET TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 14—The present disaffections in the Southern New England Basketball league will not cause any change in the scheduled game between Company C of Willimantic and the Armory Five at the state armory here Tuesday. Regardless of the outcome of the protest made by the Danielson management in connection with the two games played by the Armorians and Headquarters company of Putnam last week, the local management has informed the Thread City quintet that it will be prepared to go on the floor and Company C has replied that its team will be here.

A fast game is assured, as Danielson and Willimantic met here in the season's opener, the Armory Five emerging victorious by 24 to 17, after having trailed at the end of the first half 5 to 8. The Armory will use its regular line-up, including the Poirier brothers, Godreau, Barrett, Reddy, Gale and Lague. Willimantic will bring an aggregation of former high school and college stars, among whom are Hill, Connors, Nichols, Dillon and Rabinowitz. Dancing will follow the game.

THREE TIED FOR LEAD IN KINGSBRIDGE RACE

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Three teams were tied for the lead in the 48th international six-day bicycle race at the Kingsbridge Armory tonight at 10 p. m., 23rd hour of the grind. The combinations of Van Kempen-Rizzetto, Walthour-Winter, and Dempsey-Hill were setting the pace at that time. They had covered 414 miles and seven laps. A lap behind were four more combinations.

During the evening sprints, Van Kempen-Rizzetto, Walthour-Winter, Hill-Demysey, Fenn-Costello, Grenda-Coburn, Gastman-Garrison, Grimm-Landi, Debaets-Benzatto and Price-Rodnk each gained one lap.

AMBITION COST KING OF AFGHANISTAN HIS THRONE

LONDON, Jan. 14—(AP)—The ambition of King Amanullah to place Afghanistan on a par with the modern and cultural development of western countries has cost him his throne. A report from Peshawar, northwest frontier province, India, today, confirmed in British official circles, said that Amanullah had abdicated in favor of his brother, Prince Inenatullah and had fled by air to Kandahr.

HARTFORD, Jan. 14—(AP)—Ruby Ratcliffe, negress, was bound over without bond to the March term of criminal superior court, in police court here this afternoon, on a charge of murder. Police say the woman admitted stabbing her husband to death in a quarrel at their home on Brook street last night.

Burgess Bedtime Story

The Kindly Deed.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Through trouble only you may find
Just who is thoughtful, who is kind.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy Fox limped slowly home. There would be no hunting that night for Reddy. He had been careless and he had lost a toe in a dreadful steel trap. Of course, it had pained him a great deal at first, but the cold had brought a blessed numbness and, as he limped along, his foot did not pain him so much. But he couldn't run on that foot and so there could be no hunting that night. Poor Reddy! He felt nearly starved as it was. What should he do? He would just have to grin and bear it, that was all.

Now, as he approached home, he met Mrs. Reddy just starting out. Of course, she saw that something was the matter and right away Reddy told her what had happened. He warned her that there might be other traps and she must watch out.

"Good luck, my dear, good luck in the hunting," said Reddy, as he crept into the house, hungry and miserable.

Mrs. Reddy hurried away. She had started out to hunt for herself, but now she intended to hunt for Reddy, too. "Poor Reddy!" she thought. "It would be bad enough to have such a thing happen at any time, but to have it happen now, when we are half starved is really dreadful. I simply must get something for him tonight."

It was the next day when Farmer Brown's Boy took it into his head to go up in the Old Pasture. It was the first time he had been up that winter. Now, the trapper had already visited his trap and found Reddy's toe in it. He knew that it would be useless to reset that trap right there, so he had taken it up and reset it at another point. In doing so he had left tracks in the snow. Of course, Farmer Brown's Boy discovered those tracks. "I wonder who's been up here," thought he, "and what for." He followed the tracks. So he came to the place where the trap had first been set. He saw the disturbance in the snow. He saw some drops of blood on the snow. Looking around carefully, he saw Reddy's tracks approaching that place and then leaving there. He saw right away that Reddy had been using only three feet when he left and he discovered little spots of blood on the snow.

"Reddy was caught, but got away,"

"Reddy was caught, but got away," thought Farmer Brown's Boy.

thought Farmer Brown's Boy, and turned to follow the man's tracks to where he had reset the trap. He soon found the trap, sprung it and took it up. He was angry clear through, was Farmer Brown's Boy. Then he turned and went back to follow Reddy's tracks to the door of his home. He saw that Reddy had gone in.

"That Fox must be half starved," thought Farmer Brown's boy. "He could have had nothing to eat through the storm and now that he has a hurt foot he has little chance to get anything to eat. I'd like to go straight over to that trapper's and tell him what I think of him. But I guess the first thing to do is to go back home and get some food for Reddy."

Back home went Farmer Brown's boy and presently he returned with meat and bones with meat still on them and half of the dinner that had been cooked for Bowser the hound. All this he put down in front of Reddy's doorway and then hurried away that Reddy might not be delayed in satisfying his hunger. It was a kindly deed—one of the deeds that makes Farmer Brown's Boy beloved by all the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows.

"Light a Lucky and you'll never miss sweets that make you fat"

Constance Talmadge

INSTEAD of eating between meals . . instead of fattening sweets...beautiful women keep youthful slenderness these days by smoking Luckies. The smartest and loveliest women of the modern stage take this means of keeping slender . . . when others nibble fattening sweets, they light a Lucky!

Lucky Strike is a delightful blend of the world's finest tobaccos. These tobaccos are toasted—a costly extra process which develops and improves the flavor. That's why Luckies are a delightful alternative for fattening sweets. That's why there's real health in Lucky Strike. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

For years this has been no secret to those men who keep fit and trim. They know that Luckies steady their nerves and do not harm their physical condition. They know that Lucky Strike is the favorite cigarette of many prominent athletes, who must keep in good shape. They respect the opinions of 20,679 physicians who maintain that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

Coast to coast radio hook-up every Saturday night through the National Broadcasting Company's network. The Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra in "The Tunes that made Broadway, Broadway."

POETRY

Impression

In these restrained and careful times
Our knowledge petrifies our rhymes:
Ah! for that reckless fire men had
When it was witty to be mad.

When wild conceits were piled in scores
And lit by flaming metaphors,
When all was crazed and out of tune,—
Yet throbbed with music of the moon.

If we could dare to write as ill
As some whose voices haunt us still,
Even we, perchance, might call our own
Their deep enchanting undertone.

We are too dilident and nice,
Too learned and too over-wise,
Too much afraid of faults to be
The flutes of bold sincerity.

For, as this sweet life passes by,
We blink and nod with critic eye:
We've no words rude enough to give
Its charm so frank and fugitive.

The green and scarlet of the park,
The undulating streets at dark,
The brown smoke blown across the blue
This colored city we walk through;—

The pallid faces full of pain,
The field smell of the passing wain,
The laughter, longing, perfume, strife,
The daily spectacle of life;—

Ah! how shall this be given to rhyme
By rhymesters of a knowing time?
Ah! for the age when verse was clad,
Being godlike, to be bad and mad.

—Edmund Gosse.

A Southern Girl

Her dimpled cheeks are pale,
She's a lily of the vale,
Not a rose.
In a muslin or a lawn
She is fairer than the dawn
To her beaux.

Her boots are slim and neat,—
She is vain about her feet,
It is said.
She amputates her r's,
But her eyes are like the stars
Overhead.

On a balcony any night,
With a fleecy cloud of white
Round her hair—
Her grace, ah, who could paint?
She would fascinate a saint,
I declare.

'Tis a matter of regret,
She's a bit of a coquette,
Whom I sing;
On her cruel path she goes
With a half a dozen beaux
To her string.

But let all that pass by,
As her maiden moments fly,
Dew-empearled;
When she marries, on my life,
She will make the dearest wife
In the world.

—Samuel Minturn Peck.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Well, old man, did you marry that girl of yours, or do you still darn your own socks?"

"Yes."—Sydney Bulletin.

Woman (on train with well-grown boy)—Do I have to pay for the child?

Conductor—Well, you needn't, ma'am, if you don't mind some passenger sitting on him.—Boston Transcript.

He—My income is forty thousand, dearest—my capital is one million.

She—Then we will spend the capital first and keep the income for a rainy day.—Life.

Mrs. Decolette—Have you noticed that my new party gown is longer than the others?

Husband (giving her the o. o.)—Longer? You must refer to the shoulder straps—Exchange.

Sarcastic Diner (to modern girl who has lit up)—Do you mind my eating while you're smoking?

Girl (sweetly)—Certainly not—so long as I can hear the orchestra.—Bystander.

"You say the newly married couple aren't getting along very well together?"

"Unfortunately it's true."

"Let's see, it was a case of love at first sight with Betty, wasn't it?"

"Yes, and now she's beginning to think she ought to have her eyes tested.—Boston Transcript.

Bride (starting usual formula)—Thank you so much, Mr. Jones, for your splendid present. We'll think of you every time we eat out of it.

Guest—It's awfully nice of you to say so—but won't it be a little difficult eating out of a vacuum cleaner?—Passing Show.

Educated Egyptian—You have no wonderful hieroglyphics in America, no mysterious inscriptions, no indecipherable relics of an ancient literature whose secrets the wise men have tried in vain to discover.

American Tourist (humbly)—No, we haven't any of those things, I admit. But (brightening up)—we have our railroad time-tables—Exchange.

OUTSIDE OF A HANDFUL OF ISSUES THE STOCK MARKET DRIFTED LISTLESSLY

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Prices again drifted in rather listless fashion on the stock market today, although a handful of issues were bid up vigorously on rumors of higher dividends, melon cutting, or split-ups.

Trading during the early hours of the session was impeded by the failure of wire systems west of Pittsburgh, but picked up somewhat as the ticker service to western cities was restored, later. Total sales, however, aggregated but 3,321,050 shares.

The credit outlook remained unsettled and blocked the way for ambitious bull operations. Call money renewed at 7 per cent., in contrast to Friday's 6 per cent. renewal rate, and held at that rate all day, bearing out cautious predictions that the marked January credit ease of recent years would not be repeated this year.

Time money held persistently at 7 per cent. for all maturities. This is the highest for the 6-month maturity seen in mid-January in more than 10 years, save for 1929. The decline in sterling late last week, which revived hope of gold imports from London, was checked, which eliminated hope of immediate credit improvement from that quarter. Nothing developed to make an increase in the New York federal reserve rediscount rate less probable.

The day's business news was rather colorless. The department of commerce's report that American foreign trade in 1928 reached the highest level for any year save 1920 had been discounted marketwise several weeks ago. A further indication of the strength of the steel industry was the statement of the Otis Steel company, showing the highest earnings in its history in 1928.

Allied Chemical shot up 18 points to a new high price at 275 on rumors of a stock split up. Wright Aero also was carried up 18 points to a record price at 284, to the accompaniment of unconfirmed reports that a large merger would be cut through the granting of valuable rights, but fell back to 291 at the close. Curtiss Aero mounted more than 6 points.

Pennsylvania Railroad again broke into the highest ground since before the war, touching 80 3-8, up nearly 3 points. Wall street understands that the annual dividend rate will be raised from $2.50 to $4 at the next meeting. Canadian Pacific and Union Pacific also improved, while Pere Marquette encountered further profit taking.

Motors improved somewhat on what appeared to be short covering. It is reported in brokerage circles that there has been considerable short selling in this group, particularly from the middle west, inspired by the prospect of keen competition this year, which may impair profits. Studebaker broke into new high ground, and General Motors (old stock) sold about 2 points higher at one time.

American Sugar Refining sold up nearly 4 points to within striking distance of its 1928 high on reports that its 1928 earnings will run around $10 a share. Rubbers again were strong, U. S. selling up about 3 points. A representative of the Dupont interests is expected to be made head of the company at the meeting tomorrow, on the retirement of Charles B. Seger, U. S. Steel was firm, but Bethlehem encountered realizing. Otis Elevator, International Telephone, and American Type Founders made extreme gains of about 6 to 9 points.

National Bellas Hess slumped 15 points, and Midland Steel Products preferred 10. General Electric, Commonwealth Power and Reynolds Tobacco "B" fell back 3 or 4 points. Coppers were generally heavy.

The commodity markets were mostly firm. Cotton gained from 60 cents to more than $1 a bale. Liverpool cables were higher and the consumption figures for December, while under November, were generally regarded as favorable. Corn improved on reports that the Argentine crop has been damaged by drought, and wheat was in better demand. Rubber encountered realizing.

Foreign exchanges were featured by the firming up of sterling, the demand rate rising 1-16 of a cent to $4.84 5-8. Japanese yen dropped 27 points to 46.13 cents.

DRIVER OF PACKARD FORCES BUS INTO DITCH ON WAY TO NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 14—One of the Gray Pine buses, operated between New York and Boston, was ditched about 12 miles west of this city about 8 o'clock this morning through the alleged indifference of a driver of a Packard automobile. The passengers were subjected to the hardships resultant from the severe cold. When the bus was between Saybrook and Crescent beach, the driver of the Packard machine by his careless driving caused the bus driver to guide the big machine off the crown of the road, causing it to leave the highway. Before it was gotten back the passengers, about 35, were compelled to alight. A woman passenger in the Packard, which was disabled, was slightly injured. The bus driver brought the woman to New London, where she was treated by a physician. Another bus was brought into service here and sent to where the passengers were in the highway, bringing them to New London.

Numerous collisions, but none of them resulting in serious injury to the automobiles occurred on Fort Hill Groton last night, for the slippery condition of the highway and the absence of chains on wheels of cars, resulted in many crashes by drivers attempting to descend the grade. State police from Groton barracks were sent out and held up all cars that did not have said chains attached. At one time there were 75 autos lined up awaiting the sanding of the highway, that the trip to this city could be resumed.

A force of city laborers was engaged throughout today scattering sand upon slippery highways as a protection to automobiles that were not supplied with chains, while another force distributed sand on sidewalks that were in a slippery condition.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 14—Riley Olin, residing at Quakertown, Ledyard, was in the justice court in that village at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts, keeping with intent to sell and manufacturing liquor contrary to law. Walter M. Buckingham, justice of the peace of Gales Ferry, held court. Olin pleaded guilty on both counts and a fine of $100 on each charge was imposed. Olin paid.

The state police recently received information that Olin was manufacturing liquor in large quantities at his home, which is a two-story building, located off the main road about a quarter of a mile, in a secluded section. Sunday afternoon Lieut. Henry Albright and Officers Whitmarsh and MacKenzie went to the house and obtaining admission, found every evidence of the manufacture of whiskey and beer. Four stills were included among the evidence seized, one being of 100-gallon capacity, another of 20-gallon capacity and two others, one of 15 and the other of 10-gallons. Three gallons of cider brandy, 55 bottles of beer, two gallons of alcohol and a pint of gin were also confiscated, as were about 100 five-gallon empty alcohol cans, a quantity of one-gallon cans and about 150 glass demijohns and between 200 and 300 empty pint bottles. Seized also was a quantity of ingredients used in the manufacture of liquor. All of the stills and other seized equipment were taken to the state police barracks where they will be destroyed.

Lito Compo, 22, of Industrial place, Mystic, who but recently became a taxicab operator in New London, was in court today charged with violation of the liquor law. He pleaded guilty. The fine of $150 and costs, which was imposed, will cut deep into the profits of the taxicab and bootlegging business. Compo was at the taxicab stand, State street, Saturday night when he was hired by Raymond Arnold, Submarine base. Arnold wanted liquor and Compo agreed to furnish the bluejacket with it. A trip was made to the Fort Neck section where a supply of whiskey was procured. Upon returning to State street, Compo was discharged and as Arnold walked along the street a bottle of the recently purchased liquor fell to the sidewalk, almost in front of Patrolman Elwood Bailey. The officer became aware that Arnold had other liquor on his person and a search revealed another pint. Arnold was taken to police headquarters and there he offered to show the police where he obtained the booze. He was allowed to do so and going to State street again he hired Compo to drive him to Fort Neck. This time, Acting Sergt. Augustus Ray, Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman Bailey followed in the police car. Arriving near East street, Compo alighted and soon returned with the renewed supply. Breed Theatre

Corinne Griffith is enacting what is said to be the most powerful dramatic role of her entire career in First National's big modern film version of "Outcast," now playing at the Breed theatre.

Hubert Henry Davies wrote the famous stage success, and Agnes Christine Johnston is responsible for the screen version. Elsie Ferguson was the first interpreter of its powerful star character, "Miriam," a girl of the Tenderloin. This role made Miss Ferguson famous during the years in which she was identified with the part. Miss Griffith first saw the stage play when she was just in her early teens and has always longed to bring "Miriam" to the silver sheet, knowing that this characterization would be even more powerful and effective on the screen than on the stage.

Edmund Lowe plays opposite the star. The principal actors in the supporting cast are Huntley Gordon, Louise Fazenda, James Ford, and Kathryn Carver.

Palace Theatre

The strange illusions of a magician of the stage, and the even stranger illusions of voodoo priests and devil worshippers in the jungles of Africa are among the mysteries in Lon Chaney's latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer thriller, "West of Zanzibar," which is now being shown at the Palace theatre.

As "Dead Legs Flint" Chaney first appears in the picture as a stage magician, performing theatre illusions and then, paralyzed in a fight with an enemy, is next seen in the African jungles ruling a tribe of savages by his strange "magic" as a "white voodoo" priest. All the time he trails the man who injured him, and formulates a terrible plot of revenge.

Lionel Barrymore plays the fugitive enemy and Mary Nolan, heroine of "Sorrel and Son," is seen as Chaney's daughter, a dominant figure in this uncanny structure of terrorism and revenge. Warner Baxter, Jane Daly and others of note appear in the cast.

The second feature is Marceline Day with Dol Alverado in "Driftwood" a new and interesting photodrama which makes this double feature bill a choice program.

This show will play at the Palace today, tonight and tomorrow, (matinee only on Wednesday).

On Wednesday night the theatre will be the scene of the American Legion Follies and from advance reports it will be a gala event.

Starting Thursday for three days the Palace will present their Big Winter Carnival show consisting of five standard acts of Big Time vaudeville with many extra added features on the stage. In addition, a monster afterpiece will be staged in which every artist on the bill will participate.

The feature picture will be "Broken Barriers" and included in the great cast of this picture you will see Helene Costello and Gaston Glass.

Those who recall the Spring Carnival show held at the Palace last April need no further advice on what they can expect on the Winter Carnival show. If possible, the management will make this an even bigger and better show.

Broadway Theatre

The love drama of the happiest people in the world—the first true picture of the South Seas.

These and many other paans of praise have been lavished and will be lavished in the future on Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "White Shadows in the South Seas," which opened Sunday evening at the Broadway theatre.

To get this picture Metro sent an expedition of sixty men and women more than 5,000 miles from their home studio. They arrived at Tahiti in the South Seas; encountered terrific hardships, climbed mountains, braved tropical storms, were shipwrecked at sea, lost themselves in depths of jungle never before explored and returned to civilization after six months absence with a story the like of which has never before been shown on the screen.

The picture is a triumph of the cameraman who apparently succeeds in putting his camera where no camera was ever before—or ever expected to be. It is a triumph to Monte Blue who as the beachcomber doctor, gives a performance that at times rises to the very heights of dramatic acting; it is a triumph to the slim and lovely Raquel Torres who makes her native princess a woman to be truly fought for and loved.

But most of all it is a triumph for W. S. Van Dyke, the director who, when the French officials at the island said, "It couldn't be done"—went and did it. He has given his story a place among the few really great motion pictures and he has screened one thrill after another with a pace that never falters for an instant.

His theme is a simple one—the inevitable effect of white civilization on the simple natives. The white doctor (Blue) struggles intensely to protect them and then—led on by the white man's instinctive urge for power—causes their destruction.

With all these superlatives, it might be thought that "White Shadows in the South Seas" was a picture worth seeing—it is. Don't miss it.

Conn. College Concert

Henri Casadesus, (pronounced Casad-su) founder of the Society of Ancient Instruments which will be heard in New London next Thursday evening is an expert performer on the viola d'amore of international repute. His skill is such as to keep him busy accepting or declining special invitations to appear at important musical functions. Only last October he made a flying trip from Paris to this country to participate in the double-bass recitals by Sergei Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, at Boston and New York. Mr. Casadesus might be styled the Musician from Beyond since he is concerned with an art entirely different from that with which we are familiar today. As both artist and innovator, he has placed himself in the foremost rank of current musicians and, as purveyor of the delightful music of the past, he has done an incalculable service to art and to the music world in general. Having taken up the task of resurrecting the music of two and three centuries ago, he had first to secure an adequate ensemble and then find the music suitable for exposition. This he accomplished by long, arduous and careful research and so today, not only is the viola d'amore heard in all its pristine glory but its sweet voice also graces the ensembles in which it takes part.

Where are Granny's flannels

Perhaps they called them the "gay nineties" because the underwear was so red and so itchy. As a girl, how Grandma used to dread October 25th, the day on which the entire family switched to heavy flannels!

Then early in 1890, the good news spread that a pleasant medicine for colds had been discovered. Tiny tablets, easy to take, which gave quick relief and left no distress.

Every year since, Grandma has used or recommended GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. The old reliable remedy, she calls it. Four generations of her family have used it. The laxative and tonic ingredients don't merely eliminate the symptoms. They help nature to side-step the cold entirely or throw it off quickly. So Granny wears no flannels any more .... For your own sake, make sure of getting the genuine! Emphasize GROVE'S when asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

TELLS NORWICH MEN OF WORK FOR CONNECTICUT PARKS AND FORESTS

The Brotherhood of the United Congregational church entertained members of Park church, the Central Baptist church, and Trinity Methodist Episcopal church men's clubs at the Community house Monday evening. It was the regular meeting night for the Brotherhood but the usual business session was omitted. The feature attraction of the gathering was a most interesting talk on state parks and forests in Connecticut by Walter O. Filley, of New Haven, treasurer of the Connecticut state park and forest commission.

The gathering was called to order about 7:45 o'clock by Arthur L. Peale, member of the state park and forest commission, acting for President Harold T. Robibns of the Brotherhood. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United church, extended a hearty welcome to the visitors. One of the things we sorely need, he said, is the frequent getting together of the men of the Protestant churches of the city. The level on which we live is a common level; our faith is a common faith and our goal is a common goal. There is a general representation here tonight of the spirit of unity which binds us together. Despite the cold outside, there is a very warm feeling in the hearts of those here tonight. We are grateful to have you here.

Mr. Peale then introduced Commissioner Filley, whose talk was illustrated by stereopticon slides. In his opening remarks, Commissioner Filley said that he is always glad to talk about the state parks and forests. He remarked that he with four other members of the commission have served on the state park and forest board for 16 years, ever since the board was organized. Mr. Filley then gave most interesting glimpses, in picture and word, of the state forests and state parks. His pictures covered views from all sections of the state and in his talk he stressed the value of conserving the forest lands in the state.

After Mr. Filley's talk a buffet luncheon of sandwiches, jelly doughnuts, pickles, olives and coffee was served. The committee in charge of the luncheon comprised Charles I. Smith, chairman, Dongld Bullard, John H. Sherman, George E. Zimmerman, Jerry Angell, Charles Williams, Ray Gilmore and Charles T. Bard.

Found guilty for the second time on a charge of violation of the liquor law, Catherine Froscello of 26 Cliff street, was fined $400 and costs, given 30 days in jail and another suspended sentence of three months. The woman was charged with two actual sales and with keeping liquor with intent to sell.

Mrs. Froscello was arrested Saturday afternoon after the state police discovered evidence of actual sales. A raid on the woman's house resulted in the seizure of eight cases of home brew. Two men found in the house, in an intoxicated condition, were arrested and in court Monday were each fined $5 and costs.

BOOKBINDING EXHIBIT IS OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

A number of exquisite specimens of the fine art of bookbinding make up a display now on exhibition in the library of Connecticut college, and which is open to the public. The volumes have been selected as the finest contained in the Elisha Palmer collection, which was presented the college by Mr. Palmer's widow, and are now for the first time publicly shown.

They represent the best workmanship of the latter half of the 19th century, American, French and German; that of Zaehndorf, Ruben, Duru, Stikeman, Rouselle, Bradstreet, Canape, Ritter, Samblancx-Weckesser and others of that period, and are what is called extra or special bindings, each one especially designed ann made for the individual volume. They are in levant morocco, of various shades and coloring, several of them carrying an inlay of contrasting color on the covers and containing finely tooled morocco or brocaded satin doublures and fly-leaves.

Many of the volumes were purchased 20, 30 or even 50 years ago.

The collection includes such works as biographies of Nell Gwynn, Mrs. Siddons and Woffington, the latter perhaps the finest single volume in the collection. The historical characters represented include Marie Antoinette, Josephine, Horace Walpole, Princess of Cleves and Count Gramont. Other volumes are the works of Charles Lamb, Taine's History of French Literature, LaFontaine's Tales and Novels, and a complete Horace in two volumes.

TWO ON THEFT CHARGE FOR SUPERIOR COURT TRIAL

Probable cause being found James V. Barry, 24, and Raymond Thompson, both of this city, were bound over to the superior court on a charge of theft when they were presented before Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Monday morning. Bonds were set at $500 in each case. Thompson furnished a bond but Barry could not and was taken to jail to await trial. The two may be presented for the present term of the criminal court which is still in session.

Barry and Thompson are charged with theft of a pocketbook from Robert J. Knight of Boston, Mass. The pocketbook and money were taken from Mr. Knight's room in the Columbian house early Friday evening and the two accused men were picked up by the police later in the evening. They were presented in the city court Saturday morning and the cases were continued until Monday morning.

V. F. W. AUXILIARIES HELD COUNTY QUARTERLY MEETING

The quarterly meeting of the Fourth County Council, department of Connecticut, Ladies' auxiliaries to the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., was held at Hourigan post rooms, Olympic building, on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with the county president, Mrs. Rosamond Jacques of this city, presiding.

The county secretary, Miss Margaret Kane, read an interesting report of the previous meeting held in New London.

Among the distinguished guests present were Miss Helen Shanahan of Waterbury, department president, and Mrs. Katherine Dibble, department chief of staff, of Meriden.

The department officers addressed the council on subjects pertaining to the good of the order, and also demonstrated the new floor work, prescribed in the new by-laws of the V. F. W. auxiliary.

A delegation comprising Commanders John Connor of New London, Harry Bricker of Pawcatuck and Lewis Hull of Norwich, were escorted in by the colors and they brought greetings from the Council of the V. F. W.

According to the new regulations, the county council, Fourth district, will meet monthly, instead of quarterly. In this manner the council members will be kept in closer touch with each other. These meetings will be held on the last Thursday evening of each month, and each auxiliary in the council will take charge of the entertainment, in turn.

On Thursday evening, Jan. 17, a large delegation is expected to attend the institution and installation of a new Ladies' auxiliary to Albert J. Breault post, No. 1523, of Putnam. This new auxiliary will be affiliated with the Fourth County Council.

WEEKLY NOON MEETING AT RADIATOR PLANT

At the weekly noon meeting under Y. M. C. A. auspices Monday at the Richmond Radiator plant, Rev. C. H. Ricketts addressed the group of employes on the topic, "Our Next Duty," and he spoke in part as follows: "My thoughts today naturally follow what I said to you last week. I told you that as we journey through the new country of the year just opened we need faith and courage and we also need to do our duty to others and to ourselves, and we should learn to sacrifice for others. There are some things that we should not do. We have no right to interfere with others as some folks are likely to do at times. For instance, if I were to say to a man about to purchase a new suit of clothes, you can't afford to buy that suit, you should get a less expensive suit; I would be butting in; this is really none of my business. The world would be better if people would keep from butting in.

"You recall that after the Master has risen, He said to Peter three times, 'Peter, lovest thou Me?', and Peter rather resented being singled out, and he said to Jesus, 'What about John?', whereupon Jesus said, in essence, 'Never mind John, let him take care of himself and you take care of yourself.' Peter was really butting in.

"People criticise too often when they do not know the facts in the case. I knew a retired manufacturer who hired several men to work on his estate, and one of them had an unusually bright son, and the rich man told the father that he wanted to educate him, and he sent him to college. Some of the neighbors, not knowing who was paying the bills, criticised the young man severely for not going to work to help his folks support the family. They meddled with something that was not their business at all, and they did not know the facts.

"We should be careful about saying unkind things about others.

"In the matter of a man's religion, I am not called upon to be the arbiter of another man's faith. Some Christian men, though good, are very narrow; they seem to think that unless others see things as they do they will be lost. A man's religion is a thing between the man and his God. We have no right to butt in on another man's conscience.

"Let us be helpful to others, but let us always refrain from unkind criticism, for we never know all the facts in the case."

BUSINESS MEN AGREE TO FORM CONTACT CLUB

Organization of the Contact club, under the auspices of the chamber of commerce, was effected Monday at a noon luncheon meeting at the Wauregan hotel with an attendance of 42. E. O. Rodier presided. Rev. Harry E. Brothwell said grace. Edward T. Connelly was the song leader and Nicholas Spellman was at the piano.

Secretary Walter H. Pilcher, when called upon, explained the scope of the club in developing a better contact between business interests of the city and summarized its purpose as follows:

1—To make salesmanship the dominating interest of the club.

2—To develop a better contact between business interests of city, part of which are not associated with other luncheon clubs.

3—To have a short meeting, which will be limited to an hour, thus enabling business men to attend.

Approval of the plan was voiced by all present and on motion of Francis T. Diggins, seconded by F. Russell Smith, it was voted to organize. A committee consisting of James L. Case, Francis T. Diggins and Max Hanover, was appointed to draw up a statement of the purpose of the club and to elect officers.

Mr. Rodier was authorized to arrange for next week's program.

Make this convincing and compelling comparison

The reason you immediately detect a superior difference in riding and driving, when you step into a Cadillac or a La Salle, from some other car seeking to compete with them, is this: The Cadillac-La Salle plants are still as they were 25 years ago, the world's greatest laboratories for precision manufacturing.

IF all the millions which the Cadillac Motor Car Company and General Motors have expended in developing the closest, finest, highest type of precision manufacturing in the world did not show itself in performance—it would be love's labor lost. But it does demonstrate itself with immediate emphasis.

All you need do is to drive some car aspiring to compete with Cadillac and La Salle—and then turn to the latter. The contrast will prove so startling as to be unanswerable. The moment you step into a Cadillac or La Salle and drive away—you know that there are hours and days and months and years of supremest satisfaction ahead of you which no other cars can yield.

The difference is perhaps more obvious today than ever before. For Cadillac has not been content with building the finest and finest-looking cars in the world. In collaboration with General Motors, it has developed, perfected, and embodied in today's Cadillacs, La Salles and Fleetwoods on these chassis, features of safety, performance and driving ease that contribute a measure of enjoyment and freedom of mind surpassing any other conceivable motoring experience.

In any driving crisis there is no more vital safety factor than the Cadillac-La Salle Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission. It permits quiet, easy, instantaneous shifting of gears—at any speed—without pausing in neutral—and without the slightest suggestion of clashing. This transmission can be had only in Cadillac and La Salle.

The second great safety feature is the Cadillac-La Salle Duplex-Mechanical System of Four-Wheel Brakes. No other cars have comparable braking protection, for the reason that no other cars have brakes so powerful, so positive in action, so responsive to the slightest pedal pressure. For these cars and these alone are equipped with this new braking system.

A third great element of safety rests in the fact that all windows, doors and windshields are equipped with Cadillac-La Salle Security-Plate Glass. This means that the Cadillac or La Salle owner may forever dismiss all concern about being injured by flying glass fragments.

Make the comparison for yourself. Drive one of those cars seeking to class itself with Cadillac-La Salle. Then drive a Cadillac or La Salle. The conclusion is inescapable. If you want the supreme motoring qualities that characterize Cadillac-La Salle, you must drive a Cadillac or La Salle.

La Salle is priced from $2295 to $2875; Cadillac, $3295 to $7000—all prices f. o. b. Detroit. Cadillac-La Salle dealers welcome business on the General Motors Deferred Payment Plan. Enjoy the car now and pay out of income.

MARSHAL FOCH VERY SICK; CLEMENCEAU HAS GRIPPE

Foch is Putting Up a Gallant Battle Against a Heart Ailment Complicated by Kidney Trouble—The Marshal Had a Sinking Spell Last Evening and Stimulants Had to Be Administered—"Tiger" Clemenceau Will Recover Unless His 87 Years Should Tell Too Heavily Upon Him—Both Frenchmen Played Leading Roles During the World War.

PARIS, Jan. 15—(AP)—Marshal Ferdinand Foch and Georges Clemenceau, both of whom played so large a part during the World war, the former as general in some of the allied armies and the other as French premier, tonight were laid low by illness in their respective homes in Paris barely a mile apart.

The marshal, after lying at death's door for 48 hours was reported putting up a gallant battle against a heart ailment complicated by kidney trouble. He was reported to be slightly improved although a sinking spell late today necessitated heart stimulants by injection.

The old "Tiger," eleven years the marshal's senior, was suffering from a bad case of grippe, but was expected to resume his work before the end of the week unless his 87 years should tell too heavily upon him.

Uremia, developing from a kidney infection which set in after the marshal's original heart attack, is what the physicians attending him now fear most. In order to watch the kidney complication more closely, Prof. Andre, Nancy university specialist in kidney diseases who attended Foch throughout the war and accompanied him on his visit to the United States, was called into consultation today.

After a long examination the professor, using the technical French medical term said: "Pas de peril en la demeure," which may be translated broadly as "no immediate danger." This statement, however, was confined to the kidney infection and did not refer to the possibility of a recurrence of the heart attack.

Marshal Foch awoke this morning late, but quite refreshed, having fallen asleep at five o'clock in the morning for four hours of sound rest. He immediately demanded the newspapers which the doctors had forbidden him. Despite the protests of his wife, he insisted on having the papers and smiled broadly when he saw his own picture prominently displayed on the front pages.

"Am I as sick as all this?" he asked Commandant L'Hopital, his favorite aide-de-camp who with General Weygand, the marshal's former chief-of-staff had been permitted to see him today. They were the only persons allowed in outside of his immediate family and physicians.

The two conversed with the marshal for a little time and both appeared stern and grim visaged as they emerged from his sick room.

"All I can say is that I am cheered by the great fight which the marshal is putting up as always, fighting to the bitter end," said General Weygand.

At lunch time Marshal Foch smilingly complained that he was hungry. He was served a little light refreshments. To every one's surprise he insisted on two fingers of red wine being poured into his glass which was then filled with water. The marshal again had his way, but throughout the day his liquid was entirely confined to mineral water. He was still strong enough to raise the glass to his own lips and to handle a spoon for his egg.

In the meanwhile a sad scene was being enacted in the large courtyard where General Pau, one-armed veteran of the war of 1870, begged with tears in his eyes to be admitted to the presence of the marshal. Confronted with the doctors' orders that the marshal must see no one, General Pau said: "I am an old soldier and I must obey orders."

Toward evening just as the sun was sinking there was great activity in the huge mansion in the shadow of the Invalides dome only a step away where so many famous soldiers lie in death.

Dr. Avenieres, an army physician, was hurriedly called and it was said that the marshal had a sinking spell and that stimulants had to be administered. Dr. Avenieres, who is attached to the 20th Corps which Marshal Foch commanded at the beginning of the way and knows the marshal intimately, entreated newspaper men with tears in his eyes not to question him.

"The marshal is a very sick man indeed," was all he would say.

CONJECTURE CONTINUES ABOUT HOOVER CABINET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—President-elect Hoover was represented today by some of those who have called at his headquarters as having about made up his mind to appoint some outstanding far westerner as secretary of the interior and William J. Donovan, of New York, as attorney-general.

Mr. Hoover himself is having nothing to say publicly about cabinet appointments and those who have made recommendations to him have reported almost invariably that he merely listened to their suggestions without giving the slightest indication as to his own views.

Appointment of Louis S. Cates, of Utah, as interior secretary, was urged upon him again today, this time by Clarence Hamlin, republican national committeeman for Colorado. Mr. Cates has the support of party leaders from a number of the Rock Mountain states and in addition is a personal friend of the president-elect.

J. Matt Chilton, republican national committeeman for Kentucky, suggested the naming of Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, of Kentucky, to a cabinet post in recognition of her work as a vice chairman of the national committee in charge of women's work. At the same time Mrs. Hert, before departing for Palm Beach, Fla., issued a statement saying she did not wish or expect any government post whatever.

SCION OF WEALTHY FAMILY ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Speedy selection of a jury to hear charges that George Harsh shot and killed Willard Smith, a drug store manager, while in the act of robbery, marked the opening today of the trial of the scion of a wealthy Milwaukee family, who formerly was a student in Oglethrope university here.

Despite widespread publicity given the case, but half a day was required to obtain 12 acceptable jurors from a panel of 250 in the Fulton county superior court of Judge E. B. Thomas. Solicitor General John A. Boykin made a brief statement in which he said the state would show that Harsh and Richard G. Gallogly, member of a wealthy Atlanta family, went to the drug store managed by Smith and that Harsh shot and killed him after demanding money. The prosecutor made no mention of an alleged confession signed by Hash to the effect that he robbed and killed for a "thrill."

The state then plunged into its case, calling as witnesses doctors, nurses, students and other acquaintances of the prisoner, who sat apparently unconcerned except for occasional talks with his mother and relatives.

NO FOUL PLAY IN DEATH OF MRS. "BABE" RUTH

WATERTOWN, Mass., Jan. 15—(AP)—A second autopsy was performed today on the body of Mrs. Helen Ruth, wife of Babe Ruth, who lost her life Friday night in a fire at the home of Dr. Edward H. Kinder, Boston dentist.

For more than a year, Mrs. Ruth has been known to neighbors as Mrs. Kinder and an investigation into the circumstances of her death was begun when it was discovered that she was the wife of baseball's leading home run hitter.

The autopsy today was performed by Medical Examiner George L. West who had reported after the previous autopsy that Mrs. Ruth's death was caused by suffocation and incineration and that he found no evidence of foul play. Dr. George Burgess MacGrath, medical examiner of Suffolk county, will make a further examination.

Dr. Kinder, who appeared at Watertown police station voluntarily to submit to questioning, denied that his relations with Mrs. Ruth had been improper. He also denied that he had told the police that she was his wife.

Meanwhile Babe Ruth remained in Boston awaiting the funeral. He appeared saddened by the tragedy and asked newspapermen to let him stay in seclusion at his hotel. He declined to answer questions regarding his daughter, Dorothy, now at a school in Wellesley.

ROCKEFELLER ANSWERS COL. STEWART'S ASSERTION

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—The sharp rise in shares of Standard Oil Company of Indiana today on the New York curb market was laid by brokers to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., carrying his fight to oust Col. Robert W. Stewart from the company to Wall street. The stock shot up to $99.75, an advance of nearly $9 to the highest price in seven years.

The battle between the two was marked by an answer from Mr. Rockefeller's office to Col. Stewart's assertion he could not "recognize Mr. Rockefeller's right to speak for all the 18,000 stockholders."

The statement was issued by Thomas M. Debevoise, an associate of Mr Rockefeller, who said the son of the Standard Oil founder was only giving stockholders "who feel as he does" an opportunity to express their disapproval of Col. Stewart by mailing proxies to Mr. Rockefeller's committee.

Debevoise said Col. Stewart in his presence promised to resign on Mr. Rockefeller's "personal request" because he felt "indebted to Mr. Rockefeller for kindness shown him in the past."

ABATEMENT OF INFLUENZA IN NEW YORK REPORTED

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Health Commissioner Shirley W. Wynne said today that out of a total of 3,580 influenza cases reported within the past 9 days there were 140 deaths, or a case fatality rate of 4 1-4 per cent. Of 1,622 pneumonia cases reported within the same period there were 509 deaths, a case fatality rate of over 31 per cent.

"An effective lesson can be drawn from these figures," the commissioner said. "One should not allow influenza to lead to pneumonia. Every person suffering from cold, grip or influenza should at once remain at home and go to bed. It is not only foolish, but dangerous to try to work it off. By remaining in bed the patient conserves his strength and resistance, and what otherwise might have developed into pneumonia passes off as a simple cold or grip. Incidentally he does not spread the infection to others."

An indication of the abatement of influenza here was seen in that only 533 influenza cases and 275 pneumonia were reported today as compared with 631 cases of influenza and 2,284 cases of

Brothers Gave Lives To Cancer Research

Twins Committed Suicide in London — Decided "Life Was Not Worth Living."

LONDON, Jan. 15—(AP)—Twin brothers, who had been inseparable in their preparation for their profession of physicians and who already had won recognition by their studies of cancer, were found dead today with a message pinned to the door of their flat reading "Life Is Not Worth Living."

They were Dr. Arthur B. Smith and Dr. Sydney McKendrick Smith, sons of an Edinburgh practitioner. They were 29 years of age.

The note, pinned to the door, was addressed to the nation and read:

"We have given our lives to cancer research. We have reduced ourselves to a state of poverty. Life is not worth living."

In the room were found two letters addressed to the coroner and the police. The young men had died from razor cuts in their throats although one of them apparently also had taken poison.

The scene when the police broke into their service flat on Harley street in the fashionable west-end bore every indication of a double murder until the letters were found.

Friends in Edinburgh tonight expressed the utmost astonishment at the act of the brothers. It was thought that they would have had brilliant careers and no one had imagined that they were suffering from poverty. They were members of several medical societies and had written and published joint papers on their researches including a book on cancer. KELLOGG ANTI-WAR TREATY RATIFIED BY SENATE, 85-1

Senator Blaine of Wisconsin Cast the Lone Vote Against the Pact—Vote Was Taken After Chairman Borah of the Foreign Relations Committee Had Read Committee Report Saying That the Treaty in No Way Impaired the Right of Self Defense of Any Nation—The Galleries Were Crowded When the Vote Was Taken.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—America's adherence to the Kellogg multilateral treaty pledging the nations of the world to renounce war, was voted today by the senate 85 to 1.

Applause of the women-filled galleries echoed the announcement of the overwhelming vote. Mumbling and some hisses, from the galleries greeted the reading by the senate clerk of the name of Senator Blaine, republican, of Wisconsin, as the only one recorded in the negative.

A vote was made possible when Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee in charge of the treaty's two weeks journey through the senate, acceded to the demand for the submission of an interpretative report by his committee. He made the report with the stipulation that it was not to be considered as changing the treaty in any way or as effectuating any reservation of it.

The report reiterated the previously expressed views of Senator Borah that the treaty did not curtail America's right of self defense and that the Monroe Doctrine was a part of this country's system of national defense. The report was laid before the senate but not acted upon.

Last minute attacks on the treaty were made by Senators Johnson, republican, of California, and Glass, democrat, of Virginia, who described it as "nothingness" and "not worth the price of a postage stamp." This resulted in Senator Borah rising in defense of the treaty which was signed last summer at Paris by the representatives of the leading powers of the world. The simple worded instrument negotiated by Secretary Kellogg has since been accepted by 60 of the 64 independent nations of the world.

"When you come to analyze what is behind this treaty," roared Senator Borah to the crowded chamber waiting to vote, "and consider what there is behind all the other treaties of the world why should this be considered as impractical or as an ideal beyond the power of man to attain?

"Is the honor or good faith of the nations signatory to this treaty any less than the honor or good faith of the nations behind all the other treaties? After all, there is nothing else save honor and good faith behind any treaty.

"If you say it is easier to mobilize the passions for war than the passions for peace, I challenge the proposition. I say the most searching, universal and profound passion in the human breast today is the passion for peace. If it is organized it will control in international affairs."

While the senate leaders were busily bringing about the agreement on the stubborn controversy over an interpretation of the pact it was made known at the white house that President Coolidge believes the treaty will do more to stabilize conditions, give expression to the sentiments of the world and increase the probabilities of permanent peace than any other factor within his knowledge.

True to their promise Senators Reed, democrat, of Missouri; Moses, republican, of New Hampshire, and Bingham, republican, of Connecticut, who have held out against the treaty for an interpretation, voted for ratification after Chairman Borah had reported the foreign relations committee's interpretation.

Of the nine senators absent, it was announced that all would have voted for ratification had they been present. Senator Blaine, the lone opponent, had offered a resolution declaring that the senate did not consider the correspondence of the other powers in connection with the treaty negotiations as granting them any reservation under the treaty. Senator Borah insisted this was not necessary and without a record vote Blaine's resolution was rejected overwhelmingly.

The name of Great Britain was drawn into the discussion in the closing debate just at the time Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, entered the diplomatic gallery. He became a very attentive listener.

Women who had marched to the capitol earlier in the day from the conferences on the causes and cure of war to plead for approval of the treaty crowded the galleries during the afternoon. In the member gallery, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth heard Senator Glass declare that her father—President Roosevelt—had not been "fooled" by "these pious proposals of brotherly love."

Announcing that he was voting for the treaty because he felt its defeat would be a "bad thing psychologically" Senator Glass said he did not want any one in his state to think he was "simple enough to believe that the treaty is worth any more than the price of a postage stamp in obtaining permanent peace."

Senator Johnson announced he also was voting for the treaty "under no delusions at all." He said it had been analyzed by its proponents "practically into disintegration."

As the senate was about to vote and Senator Borah presented the controversial committee report, Senator Harrison, democrat, of Mississippi, wanted to know if Senator Borah had the consent of Secretary Kellogg to the submission of the report.

"I am acting on my own responsibility," Borah firmly replied.

"I have been trying to follow the senator's leadership and that of the secretary but I have gotten lost trying to keep up with their meanderings," Harrison continued.

"Well, that senator has only to follow me and he will go right," Borah countered.

INTERPRETATIVE REPORT SUBMITTED IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—The report of the senate foreign relations committee on the Kellogg treaty to renounce war, reads:

"Your committee on foreign relations reports favorably the treaty signed at Paris, August 27, 1928, popularly called the multilateral or Kellogg-Briand treaty, the two articles in this treaty are as follows:

"The treaty in brief pledges the nations bound by the same not to resort to war in the settlement of their international controversies save in bona fide self defense and never to seek settlement of such controversies except through pacific means. It is hoped and believed that the treaty will serve to bring about a sincere effort on the part of the nations to put aside war and to employ peaceful methods in their dealings with each other.

"The committee reports the above treaty with the understanding that the right of self defense is in no way curtailed or impared by the terms or conditions of the treaty. Each nation is free at all times and regardless of the treaty provisions to defend itself and is the sole judge of what constitutes the right of self defense and the necessity and extent of the same.

"The United States regards the Monroe Doctrine as a part of its national security and defense; under the right of self defense allowed by the treaty must necessarily be included the right to maintain the Monroe Doctrine, which is a part of our system of national defense. Hearing upon this question and as to the true interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine as it has always been maintained and interpreted by the United States we incorporate the following:

(The committee here inserts quotations construing the Monroe Doctrine from the message of President Monroe on December 2, 1823, from the message of President Cleveland on December 17, 1895, from a speech by Elihu Root, July 1914, and from Professor Theodore Woolsey June 1914).

"The committee further understands that the treaty does not provide sanction, express or implied, should any signatory to the treaty or any nations adhering to the treaty, violate the terms of the same, there is no obligation, or committment, express or implied, upon the part of any of the other signers of the treaty to engage in punitive or coercive measures as against the nation violating the treaty. The effect of the violation of the treaty is to relieve the other signers of the treaty from any obligation under it with the nation thus violating the same.

"In other words, the treaty does not, either expressly or impliedly, contemplate the use of force or coercive measures for its enforcement as against any nation violating it. It is a voluntary pledge upon the part of each nation that it will not have recourse to war, except in self defense, and that it will not seek settlement of its international controversies except through pacific means. And if a nation sees proper to disregard the treaty and violate the same, the effect of such action is to take it from under the benefits of the treaty and to relieve the other nations from any treaty relationship with the said power.

"This treaty in no respect changes or qualifies our present position or relation to any pact or treaty existing between other nations or governments.

"This report is made solely for the purpose of putting upon record what your committee understands to be the true interpretation of the treaty and not in any sense for the purpose or with the design of modifying or changing the treaty in any way or effectuating a reservation, or reservations, to the same."

BINGHAM WON FIGHT FOR INTERPRETATIVE STATEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The interpretation fight has been won by Senator Bingham as leader of the movement, whose determination, tact and courtesy to those holding opposite opinions was undisturbed under all attacks. Senator Borah introduced an interpretative statement as chairman, with the result that practically every senator not opposed to the treaty in any form will step up to the front ranks of supporters of the treaty with the Borah statement.

Democrats fell into line when Bingham quoted President Wilson that "an interpretative statement on the league of nations will not harm or invalidate it" and this was quickly followed by Democratic Floor Leader Robinson announcing his support of the Bingham attitude. As a result Senator Bingham has become the hero of the day and the treaty was passed, thus clearing the field for the cruiser bill.

SUIT TO PREVENT BOULDER DAM CONSTRUCTION

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Arizona's Colorado river commission today authorized the filing of a suit in the United States supreme court in an attempt to prevent construction of the boulder dam as contemplated in the Swing-Johnson bill enacted by congress.

The commission authorized the "immediate employment of eminent counsel" and its chairman, Mulford Winsor said an effort would be made to file the suit immediately.

The action was regarded as a climax to Arizona's long standing opposition to the construction of the dam as provided in the Swing-Johnson bill.

This state has opposed the project on the ground that southern California would be allocated waters from the Colorado river rightfully belonging to Arizona.

CHIEF WEBSTER A MEMBER OF FIRE DEPT. 26 YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 15—Wade U. Webster, who was recently appointed chief of the Willimantic fire department, was a member of the department for 26 years from May 4, 1897 until January 25, 1923 when he resigned as chief of the department which was then still under the volunteer system. His position as chief carries with it the affiliated offices of fire marshal, inspector of buildings and superintendent of the fire alarm system.

At the time that Chief Webster joined the department all of the apparatus was hand drawn. He was a hoseman with the Alert Hose company from 1902-03 serving as assistant foreman in 1904-05 and foreman in 1906-07. His appointment as chief of the department was made in 1908 and he continued in that capacity until a change took place in the city administration. He immediately rejoined the Alert Hose company and continued until June 1, 1917 at which time the department was reorganized and the old volunteer companies were disbanded. Mr. Webster was reappointed chief in January 1918 and held that position until he was succeeded by the late James J. Tighe. He has had nine years of experience as chief in the department. Throughout the years he had maintained a keen interest in the local fire department and general fire fighting methods. Through attendance at most of the state and some of the national conventions of fire fighters and visits to other departments he had become widely known throughout the state. He is the proud possessor of a handsome insignia ring presented him by fellow smoke-eaters of the Alert Hose company following his retirement in 1923.

Not a chance conception ... but a deliberate plan ...

Chrysler's matching of slender-profile radiator with cowl bar moulding has its origin in the repetition of motif in the historic frieze of the ancient Parthenon.

Chrysler's New Style is Based on Authentic Canons of Classic Beauty

Chrysler engineering has achieved something never done before in motor car design.

It has searched out authentic forms of beauty which have come down the centuries unsurpassed and unchallenged and has translated them in terms of motor car beauty and motor car utility.

The lengths to which Chrysler designers have gone in this patient pursuit of beauty will doubtless prove a revelation to those who have probably accepted Chrysler symmetry and charm as fortunate but more or less accidental conceptions.

The Chrysler process goes far deeper than any charming but fortuitous design.

For, Chrysler has left nothing to chance.

Chrysler has not relied alone upon the inspiration of individual designers.

Chrysler in its newest products—has found that there are so many glorious precedents and inspirations in art, architecture and design, that the search for authentic and harmonious symmetry can actually be reduced to something like a scientific system in which results are certain.

DANIELSON

SNOW CAUSES TWO MINOR AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 16—Slippery highways caused two more accidents in this section this morning. In an early morning crash on the state highway near Elmville a Danielson Taxi service car with Alfred Vevia operating and with a capacity list of passengers bound for the day's work in a mill to the north was entangled with a car operated by Rudolph Metthe of Putnam It was snowing at the time and both machines were running with headlights burning. The Metthe car turned over in the accident, but Mr. Metthe escaped without injury Mr. Vevia sustained an injury that indicates a cracked or fractured rib and his wife, who was riding with him, was slightly hurt about the head. Other passengers in this car were tossed about, but none seriously hurt. Each car was very considerably damaged, jointly probably to the extent of $300 or $400. State Officer Elton Nolan checked this accident.

C. H. Bullock of Valley Falls, R. I., received a cut on the nose and a general shaking up when the Buick sedan he was driving west-bound skidded on the state highway near the county jail in Brooklyn this forenoon and after sliding one way and another smashed into a telephone pole. The car was damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars and the pole broken off.

State Police on Watch for Bandit

State officers were watching this territory today for a bandit car carrying Pennsylvania numbers and men wanted to answer for an affair in which Officer Francis Gallagher of the Springfield police was shot this morning about 3:30 in that city. It was reported here that the bandits were in or near a restaurant when they attracted the attention of Officer Gallagher and that when he started toward them they opened fire, wounding him severely. However, the officer managed to shoot one of the bandits. There is special interest here in this case because Officer Gallagher is a brother of Officer Raymond Gallagher, who shot it out last Good Friday afternoon with the bandits that early that evening shot and killed State Officer Irving H. Nelson of the Danielson barracks, in Pomfret, and are now serving life sentences for their brutal work. It develops that the car that figured in this morning's affair in Springfield is a stolen machine.

It was indicated tonight that there would be an outpouring of foxhunters Wednesday morning, for, following the snow of today, conditions promised to be about ideal for this winter sport, the best of the season to date. There is just enough snow to make good following and not too much for the hunters to get about easily. Foxes are said to be as plentiful as usually in this territory, which has both the red and gray varieties.

This evening the annual meeting of the Danielson Building and Loan association was held at the banking rooms of the Danielson Trust company. The report of the treasurer, C. H. Starkweather, shows that the assets of the association are now $205,444. During the past year the association has paid off such holders of its maturing shares as cared to have money for them and in other cases, also as desired, has issued certificates of credit. New shares of stock also were issued periodically during 1928, which was a year in which the association continued to enjoy the fine success that has been characteristic of it since organization, about thirteen years ago.

PUTNAM

HEBERT ACQUITTED OF VIOLATION OF LIQUOR LAWS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 15—Philip Hebert of Plainfield was found not guilty of liquor law violation in superior court at Putnam today. He was arrested in Plainfield on Oct. 25, last, by State Policeman R. V. Scranton of Danielson barracks following a raid in which police found a small quantity of alcohol.

The case opened at Putnam Monday morning. An entire day was consumed by the counsels before evidence was complete.

This morning Attorney Bradford Danielson of Plainfield, was the first to argue the case in behalf of the state. He touched upon the condition of liquor found by the police in regards to analysis made by state chemists. Danielson told the jury that he disbelieved statements made by witnesses for defense yesterday, when they, one after another attacked the character regarding the truth and verocity of statements made by Aldor Blanchette, who gathered evidence against Hebert. Danielson was also of the opinion that stories given in testimony by defense witnesses was colored by reason of Blanchette's cirminal sentence to the Atlanta Federal penitentiary for violation of the mann act. Danielson's argument placed no belief in Homer Heberts testimony given yesterday, to the effect that the liquor found in his establishment was for medical purposes.

Attorney Back, for the defense, in his argument felt the state had failed to prove Hebert had sold Blanchette liquor, since there was such an overwhelming volume of testimony to the effect that Blanchette was not a reputable type of person.

State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford followed the argument of Attorney Danielson, explaining a few additional detailed facts contained in the case.

Judge Newell Jennings, of Hartford, read his charge to the jury. Two noteworthy points of Judge Jenning's charge were brevity and equality to both sides.

The jury retired to the afternoon at 11:45 and returned after an hour's deliberation with a verdict of not guilty.

PLAINFIELD YOUTHS PUT ON ONE YEAR PROBATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 15—Joseph Walsh, Jr., and Sidney Rude, both of Plainfield, were before the superior court in this city today on charges of breaking and entering and theft. Both were 19 years of age and were minors in the face of the court.

Judge Jennings appointed Public Defender Harry E. Back of Danielson as their guardian. Attorney Back entered a plea of guilty and asked the mercy of the court in imposing sentence upon the youths, whose widowed mothers are dependent upon their support.

State's Attorney Bradford asked clemency in the matter. According to Mr. Bradford the boys entered a summer home in Plainfield, which at the time was unoccupied and used for a storehouse. The boys stole two canoe paddles and also took a canoe. The boys had the use of the stolen property for about three months. Upon their arrest, the property was restored to its owner, apparently unharmed. Mr. Bradford told the court that Walsh was the oldest of a family of 11 children. His father is dead and his mother is most dependent upon his liberty. Rude, somewhat smaller in physical stature than his accomplice, but needed by his mother to support a large family admitted his guilt.

"I realize the difficulty encountered in the apprehension of depredators breaking into summer residences and the only way this practice can be curbed is by punishment to those found guilty 'of the crime,' said Judge Jennings. Before sentencing the boys, Judge Jennings recognized the need of their freedom and told them he would be liberal. Accordingly he sentenced Rude to serve two or three months in jail and committed Walsh to the state reformatory at Cheshire, because of a previous offense. The judge followed by suspending execution of the sentences for one year and placing the boys in care of Probation Officer L. E. Hill of Danielson. Both Walsh and Rude were warned that violation of the probation meant immediate carrying out of their sentence. They were discharged upon payment of costs of court.

On Drunken Driving Charge

Charles A. Montie of Plainfield was presented on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquors.

It was alleged by the state that Montie had been drinking on the night of October 29. He operated his car in Canterbury and collided with another car operated by George Baker of Canterbury. Baker was slightly injured as the result of the crash and after a heated conversation with Montie was given the impression, by the odor of liquor on Montie's breath, that he was under the influence of liquor and at once summoned the state police at Danielson barracks to investigate the accident.

Several witnesses were introduced into court this afternoon in behalf of the defense, stated that they detected no odor upon the defendents breath before he was under arrest.

At a late hour this afternoon the case was still before court with indications that evidence would not be completed and submitted to the jury until sometime Wednesday.

Court will convene again Wednesday at 11 o'clock.

The weekly indoor sports tournament between the Elks and the Masons was held last evening at the Masonic club and resulted in an 8 to 7 victory in favor of the Elks. The score remained in a neck and neck condition until a late hour, when the final tabulation of scores gave the Elks a one point lead, and also gave them a substantial seasonal lead over their rivals.

LOCAL POLICE SEARCH FOR ASSAILANT OF GALLAGHER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 15—Putnam police were today assisting state officers of Danielson police barracks in a search for Mathew Kelton who was with Edward Montmarquette, who shot and seriously wounded Francis Gallagher of the Springfield police force in Springfield at 3 o'clock this morning.

Kelta, aged 19, is believed to have sought refuge in this vicinity or at the home of relatives in Woonsocket, R. I. The state officers with Captain of Police William Jarvis patrolled roads in the outlying districts leading into Putnam today.

Officer Gallagher is a brother to Motorcycle Officer Raymond P. Gallagher who figured in the recent Lalone-Raymond trial and later obtained a partial ambunt of the state's prize of $500 for identifying the slayers of State Patrolman Irving H. Nelson. A state-wide starch is now being conducted by police for the missing confederate of the assailant.

Putnam awakened this morning to gaze upon a real old fashioned snowstorm, the first of the winter season. The weather moderated somewhat during the early hours of Tuesday morning and snow commenced to fall. Snow fell for several hours and at an early hour this morning the earth was covered with a thick blanket. The snow, now regarded as the worst enemy to the highway department of both the city and the state held its position until noon time, when with the aid of a bright sun, the trucks slowly pushed snow from the roads in this vicinity.

The train schedule of the New Haven railroad was somewhat affected by the sudden storm as trains drew into this city several minutes late. Vehicular traffic was also delayed. At 11 o'clock about six inches of snow had fallen. Several of the older weather prophets who delight in seeing their predictions materialize, realize this, today when they announced last evening that the ground would be covered with additional snow Tuesday.

The New Haven railroad officials took steps Monday to improve the running schedule of the early morning mail train, running over the Norwich branch, between New London and South Worcester, when they assigned officials of the road to check the reasons for delays that are being experienced daily by the train. A Putnam railroad official is riding the train daily and it is expected that his findings will mark an improvement in the train service rendered by the road in the delivery of important morning mail.

State Highway Commissioner John A Macdonald arrived in Putnam this morning after receiving the news of the sudden death of his mother, Mrs. Archibald Macdonald, at her home in this city last evening.

The city highway department received two dapple gray horses Monday, which were ordered to be purchased at the last meeting of the common council. The new horses are majestic in their physical appearance and are about five years of age. The new beasts of burden will supplant the present highway department horses which have been in the services of the city for about 18 years.

TREATY RATIFICATION.

In the ratification of the Kellogg pact the United States senate has done what was expected of it. It places this country along with most of the others of the world on record as renouncing war and committed to the policy of adjusting international disputes through peaceful methods.

That such will end all possibility of war in the future is not believed. It should nevertheless be influential in preventing war and it makes it clear that this, as well as other nations, is taking another and important step in behalf of peace.

The contest which has developed over the ratification of the treaty has hinged upon the manner in which it might be interpreted by others in the future. When it comes to the right of self defense it has never been contended that that is curtailed. Neither has it been claimed or believed that the Monroe doctrine was annihilated under the treaty terms. In order to have this clearly understood by those who might raise various questions in the future it has been deemed imperative that statements to that effect should be recorded. This does not affect the treaty, because it does not alter it, but being included in the report concerning the treaty it permanently displays the interpretation of this government.

In insisting upon such interpretation, the proper protection of this country has been in mind. The advocates of ratification without any such interpretation were confident that it was not necessary. Undoubtedly they were right. Those who insisted upon an interpretation believed it wise. Time will disclose whether such a move was necessary but inasmuch as it has involved no reservations and the treaty terms stand, no harm has been done.

The ratification of the treaty is unquestionably in accord with the sentiment of the people of this country. Even though it is regarded by some only as a gesture, it is certainly in the right direction and the United States stands right in a most worthy cause.

SHADE TREES.

Where individuals were once responsible for the setting out and care of shade trees there are today organizations actively engaged in promoting such work. It has stimulated municipal interest and through town, city and state there are various provisions for setting out, protecting, trimming and preserving shade trees. All these efforts have had a marked effect in increasing individual interest.

It is interesting to note that Inspector Allen B. Cook of the state park and forest commission finds a greatly increased interest in the care of shade trees in villages and along roadsides. His inspection work carries him all over the state and he finds this improvement has developed during the two years that he has served under the law which provides for supervision of town tree wardens.

That towns and cities are displaying a greater interest in their trees is concrete evidence that they are being more and more appreciated for their shade value and the contribution which they make to the appearance of property and street. This is to be noted when changes are made that call for their removal. It is not to be expected that trees can be allowed to stand in the way of progress and development, but there have been many instances of wanton destruction which have aroused no small amount of public resentment.

Through the accomplishments of city foresters, the annual care of trees and the increase in the number, more and more communities have become interested. They prefer to save what they possess when possible rather than to needlessly destroy, and in addition they are more and more leaning to the idea of planting many new trees each year in addition to the replacements. This means the beautification of cities in a practical manner. That it has extended to the towns of the state and is being carried out by the state highway department means that our thoroughfares are gradually undergoing a decided improvement. That the small towns should want to be included in this is natural. That they are rising to the situation is gratifying.

THE EASIEST WAY LOSES.

Probably there has been no better instance of solving the sewage disposal problem by the easiest method, regardless of its effect upon others, than that which prevails at Chicago.

Instead of constructing sewage disposal plants Chicago turned to the idea of utilizing the water from Lake Michigan to flush the artificial canal which it constructed for its sewers, this canal emptying into the Des Plaines river and eventually to the Mississippi. As time has gone on the demand for more water from the lake has been answered by taking it. Chicago was satisfied to take all it could get in order to make its system effective and as it has grown it has from time to time increased its demands.

The result of this has been to arouse opposition on the part of other states which border on the lake and which resent the use of the lake water for such a purpose. They carried the matter to the courts and at last it has gone through the highest court in the land with the result that the lake states win. Chicago, which is now taking 8500 cubic feet of water a second from the lake, has brought about the lowering of the waters of the lakes from five to six inches with the result that it has interfered with and obstructed the navigable capacity of channels and harbors, and caused damage from decay and loss of support to docks and piers.

By the decision of the court this unwarranted diversion must stop. Other means of disposing of its sewage must be provided and the city is given a reasonable time in which to make the change. This means that the use of the river and canal must gradually decrease, that the lake cannot be drawn upon to eliminate the expense that would otherwise be required in disposing of the sewage. Had there not been the steady increase in the amount of water Chicago was taking from the lake the method would not have encountered opposition from that direction. As it is, the lake states, which are dependent upon the lakes for commercial purposes, have finally been able to overcome the apparent determination of Chicago to serve itself regardless of the effect upon others.

SPEEDING AT CROSSINGS.

Whenever fatalities have occurred at railroad crossings it has invariably been apparent that the accident would have been prevented had the driver of the motor vehicle taken the simple precaution of slowing down and getting his car in condition to meet an emergency.

The lack of such care has come to the attention of the registrar of motor vehicles in Massachusetts in connection with two recent grade crossings accidents. As disciplinary action he has suspended the licenses of two drivers indefinitely and has called attention to the fact that henceforth greater respect is going to be demanded from auto drivers for the law requires drivers to decrease their speed at crossings.

In this connection he says: "It is about time that the motorists of this state learned to obey Section 15 of the motor vehicle laws, which requires every operator approaching a railroad grade crossing to slow down and proceed cautiously. Disregard of this law, which calls for the use of ordinary common sense in a dangerous situation, has within a month been the cause of seven fatalities on crossings in this state.

"In addition the inspectors of the registry who have been specially assigned to watch and, if possible, stop improper operating at grade crossings, have within a week reported more than 50 cases of failure to reduce speed and use due care on approaching railroad tracks. So far as this office is concerned, therefore, I intend to use every means in my power to enforce Section 15 of the motor vehicle law."

If you are going to do any driving in Massachusetts it would be well to bear this warning in mind. It might be the means of preventing a bad crossing accident in which you would be the loser, and it might also prevent a conflict with the law of that state which the registrar is apparently going to enforce more strictly.

There are states where it is required that drivers must bring their cars to a stop before crossing a railroad track, with a rather stiff penalty in case of failure. It is for the same purpose as the Massachusetts requirement, and it must be apparent that when such respect is shown to obvious danger places it is bound to bring about a reduction in the accidents and fatalities.

Grade crossing accidents can be reduced by eliminating the crossings. That involves a huge expense without overcoming the attitude of those drivers who are oblivious to danger. Crossings are being removed but the process is bound to be so slow that crossings will be encountered for many years to come.

When, however, their danger can be greatly reduced and most of the accidents and fatalities prevented through the exercise of caution it seems to be the right method to apply, and the Massachusetts registrar is to be commended for his insistence upon a better regard for the law which is so distressingly disregarded. The law is well drawn to meet a bad situation and adequate enforcement is seriously needed.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: It is time to rehearse that poem about the beautiful snow.

Now that we have reached the half way point in January every day reduces the dread of winter.

The strange thing about Senator Borah in connection with the treaty is that he's for it instead of against it.

When the dictator of Jugoslavia discharges 20,000 civil servants it looks as if he had recognized a chance for economy.

Those who indicated that President-elect Hoover would insist upon a simple inaugural knew what they were talking about.

There were the days when icy conditions made business for the blacksmiths. Not so now; it's all going to the auto chain dealers and the handlers of broken cars.

It wasn't expected that the Wilkins expedition into the south polar regions would be bothered by the heat but that was what melted the snow and made flying dangerous.

Governor Roosevelt of New York says the democrats are eager to pay off that debt of $1,500,000. There is no one holding them back and no one will stand in the way. He might act as the starter.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—The subcommittee of the judiciary committee of the house yesterday favorably reported the Bingham bill to reimburse the state of Connecticut $559,373 for expenditures and advances made the United States in the War of 1812.

Representative Tilson is gratified that Speaker Longworth has withdrawn his objection to an extra session in the spring and together with Tilson called on President-elect Hoover late yesterday to recommend such a session. Colonel Tilson has long and consistently advocated a spring session to revise the tariff and act on farm relief, but Longworth, until yesterday, has persistently been against it. He told Mr. Hoover yesterday that he now regards it as inevitable and withdrew his objections.

Leaders of the house, under Representatives Fenn and Tilson, are checking up carefully the prospect of the passage of the Fenn census bill in the senate, to which it now comes, after having passed the house. Someone described the atmosphere and outlook in the senate as "Cloudy but apparently favorable." It is understood the house received tacit approval of the bill from leading members of the commerce committee of the senate, which will be in charge of the measure in that body, that as an act of courtesy to the house, whose membership is affected while that of the senate is not, every effort would be made to secure the passage of the Fenn bill without serious alterations. Moreover it must first be considered by the senate committee on commerce, as there is no census committee in the senate. Perhaps there is not so much danger of the census bill failing to pass on account of its general make-up as that the senate calendar is crowded and the fight to be on the cruiser bill and other matters will absorb about all the time and attention of that body. Representative Tilson is hopeful that the senate will accept the Fenn bill without change, then it could probably get the right of way without much debate, and so pass. If senate opposition to the Fenn bill develops to any great extent it is not likely to pass, if the opposition is light or there is practically none, then it will be slipped in somewhere between the measures already before the senate and pass in time to save the house from further censure regarding its failure to pass a census and reapportionment measure within the time allowed by the Constitution.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—Having talked a bit with press colleagues, old salts of the Hoover Latin-American goodwill pilgrimage, the Bystander wonders how so complete a traveler as Herbert Clark Hoover himself is going to enjoy settling down to the prosaic and confining duties of the presidency.

The press lads had had enough of it, for the time being, anyhow. They had spent five weeks afloat and two ashore. Their first task was to get the sea roll out of their legs. They were very much fed up with the constant round of receptions, dinners, luncheons and what-not the trip entailed for them. What must it have been to the man who was guest of honor and the center of it all?

Ready to Repeat.

And yet, as the good ship Utah shoved her blunt snout in toward the Virginia capes, wadding like a bulky old lady over the roughly friendly home seas somewhere south of Farewell buoy, the president-elect was ready to do it all over again.

Pausing in a stroll about the ponderously swaying decks, he tapped a tripmate on the shoulder, sniffed at the good salt breeze and confessed he would like to see the ship's prow swing off to starboard and head for some place almost any place—else. What a man!

Probably the answer is that Mr. Hoover fully realized the grueling punishment awaiting him in Washington. He could visualize easily enough the army of job hunters and the swarm of politicians awaiting his coming.

Difficult and complex matters of policy, big and little, must be dealt with even before March 4, when he steps up to the seats of the mighty. Without doubt, in many respects almost any place in the world promised him more peace and comfort than Washington at that moment. Who could blame him?

No Loafing.

Not that Mr. Hoover loafed on the trip, even between visits. Far from it. Such is not his habit. He gets most of his relaxation by work. All he does is change jobs a little.

When he sailed south, he carried a small library of information about the countries he was to visit. He came home with a veritable encyclopedia of Latin-American information gathered at first hand and reduced to typewritten form. More than that, it already had been mentally indexed by Mr. Hoover.

As he stepped ashore he had in mind a good working outline of the most up-to-the-minute summary of Latin-American—or rather, Pan-American—problems the world contains.

There was an easy elasticity to his trip, however, which he would miss at home. He revealed in last minute decisions as to the next stop.

Back in Washington he was again at grips with hard and fast prearranged schedules. No wonder he hoped for more traveling delights before March 4.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Germ Received

A man came alone to a neighbor's house on an errand.

"Why didn't you bring the wife along and spend the evening?" asked the friend.

"Oh, she has caught the germ again," replied the disgruntled husband.

"Flu, I suppose?" said the solicitous neighbor.

"No, the malady is gardenitis. She received a new seed catalogue today," was the distressed husband's lament.

"Canned."

A prominent young man after a week-end celebration started for his office Monday morning in a fog. It was his custom to get the garbage can out to the curb for collection. Feeling rather tired after his strenuous time he decided to "ride" the "can" on the running board of the car. As he neared the curb his mind wandered and he forgot the can. A little later as he was speeding down the street where there was considerable traffic he was aroused by a loud crash—the can had fallen from its perch. He turned the next corner and disappeared.

SPRING FEVER

"Tantarrara! The joyous book of spring lies open, writ in blossoms," sang Marybelle gayly one bright May morning as she turned into the house from the front porch after kissing her Peter good-by. She felt as merry as the bursting spring buds. The sun shone radiantly in the clear sky. Such a day for action! And she'd so many things to do! She paused by the front window before attacking the breakfast dishes, looking down the roadway, where lilacs were blooming and robbins hopping about the lawn.

First she'd hurry with the dishes. Then tidy the house a bit and cut out her new rose organdy. Then take a brisk walk to the lake front in the sunshine, find a nice shady spot between the blue water and the encircling green foliage and read her new Russian "problem" novel that every one was talking about. Just before Betty Maitland's bridge-tea she'd hurry home, put on her new spring beige ensemble and drive to the party, stopping for Peter on the way home as she'd already promised. It would be a glorious day! She turned kitchenward when the bright-colored covers of her latest jazz pieces caught her eye from the piano rack. She'd just try them over a few times; the dishes could wait.

Forty minutes later Marybelle arose from the piano bench.

"Oh, well," she told herself as she glanced at the clock, "that didn't take me so terribly long." Making her way to the dining room, she donned a big apron and energetically began clearing away the dishes. The telephone!

"Oh, well," said Marybelle stoically as she again advanced on the dishes, "I really must get in my walk to the lake regardless," and she resolutely piled up the dishes in the kitchen sink to await her return.

In her sport ensemble and low-heeled shoes Marybelle emerged from the bedroom a potential globe trotter and looked about for her novel. After fifteen minutes of searching she found it, hiding its austerity beneath Peter's latest "Dizzy Detective Stories," and on the spur of the moment she tucked the magazine under one arm, the novel under the other and set forth.

She could feel a healthy glow mounting to her cheeks, when suddenly, honk, honk—with a toot of recognition Amy Andrews drew alongside in her brand-new roadster.

"Wanta lift?" she called pleasantly.

"Why—I—I guess not," Marybelle said weakly. "I was just taking a little walk."

"Well, hop in," Amy invited. "You'll get there much faster driving."

Marybelle hopped. About an hour later, after a drive around the parks, Amy deposited her and her literature on the lake front. Marybelle slumped down under a spreading oak tree by the lake and began to read.

She read two paragraphs, then a third, then read the third paragraph over again and yawned. The words jumped around comically. Out of pure curiosity Marybelle, taking a peek inside the magazine cover, read, in emblazoned type: "A Night of Mystery." It was too much. What were the problems of a Russian peasant wife compared to the silver lure of a night in Chinatown? Two hours later Marybelle, stiff and cramped, stood up and stretched.

"Oh, dear," she thought disinterestedly," it must be nearly time for Betsy's party." And, hailing a passing cab, she sped home.

Beneath her front door Marybelle discovered a note from her next-door neighbor.

"Do come over as soon as you get home," she read. "I have something adorable to show you." Without bothering to unlock the door, Marybelle crossed the lawn and rapped on Lucille Grant's front door.

"I've waited for you all morning," Lucille told her, "and now the dressmaker's here fitting my new suit. I want to show you my going-away clothes for the boat trip, so just run up to my bedroom and look them over. I'll be up in a few minutes."

The clothes were spread out on the bed. Marybelle sank down limply, ran her fingers over the soft fabrics, took her hat off and lay back on the pillows. Not a sound from Lucille. The air was hot in the bedroom. Marybelle dozed off.

About two hours later she came to with a jerk as Lucille gentle shook her.

"My dear, your husband's been climbing up to all the windows with a stepladder, trying to get into the house. And he just came over to find out if I knew anything about you!"

"My husband!" gasped Marybelle. "What time is it? Oh, I must have fallen asleep." And, seizing her hat, she sped over to her own house.

"Thought you were coming to the office for me in the car," Peter greeted her glumly. "Have you forgotten we're due at the Youngs' big blowout at 6 o'clock?"

"Six o'clock?" Marybelle wailed. "Oh, Peter, I cant make it, really. I'm too tired out. My dear, you just can't imagine what a strenuous day I've had!"—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

CARE IN SELFCTING MATE IMPORTANT FOR FUTURE PREVENTION OF CANCER

(By Maud Slye, Associated Professor of Pathology, University of Chicago).

Two influences are apparently at work in the causation of cancer: First, an inherited local susceptibility to the disease; and second, chronic irritation or hyperstimulation applied to cancer susceptible tissues. If either of these influences could be avoided, it might be possible to prevent cancer.

Long continued studies in animal cancer have demonstrated (1) that the tendency to be resistant to cancer is inheritable in mice and that the offspring of two animals will be free from cancer if the families of both parents are entirely cancer free; (2) that if one parent has cancer and the other is uninheritable in mice and that the offspring are themselves free, but they can transmit susceptibility to cancer to some of their offspring; (3) that if both parents are cancerous the offspring inherit the tendency to be susceptible.

These three genetic facts strongly emphasize the value of eugenics as one of the important factors in the elimination of cancer. In mice by the selection of cancer free parents, it is possible to prevent cancer in an entire family.

In regard to chronic irritation, it should be said that in this laboratory the same type of irritation applied to various strains of mice produce entirely different results. One type of irritation studied was a wound on the face, leg, neck, or tail, caused by an accidental blow from a case door.

(a) If the mouse is a member of a family free from cancer, such a wound produces only scar tissue which eventually is partly or wholly absorbed, leavong no bad results.

(b) If the mouse is a suspectible member of a family with breast carcinoma, no tumor arises unless the breast tissues are injured by the blow. Normal healing takes place.

(c) If the mouse is susceptible to any type or types of internal tumors, either thoracic or abdominal, and to no other locations, such a blow produces no cancer. The healing takes place exactly as in a.

(d) If the mouse is a susceptible member of a family carrying subcutaneous sarcomas, such a blow generally will be followed in brief time by a rapidly growing sarcoma at the site of the wound.

(e) If the mouse is a susceptible member of a strain carrying squamous—cell carcinoma, such a blow will often occasion squamous—cell cancer of the skin in the region injured.

These facts seem to indicate that avoiding chronic irritation or injury to locally susceptible tissue will do much toward avoiding cancer.

Should the facts of heredity and of the results of chronic irritation applied to susceptible tissues prove to be the same in man as they are in mice, then care in the selection of cancer free mates, and avoidance of all forms of chronic irritations, should do much toward eliminating cancer from the human race.

Little Talks on Thrift

Beginning of New Year Opportune Time To Begin the Saving Habit

What will the new year, on the threshold of which we now stand, mean to you in the way of personal advancement?

In a general way, the answer to this question will depend upon your willingness to adhere to the principles of thrift. Occasionally, one may hear the statement made that the old-fashioned idea of saving money for the purposes of getting ahead has gone out of style. The great book of human experience, however, does not relate such a story. It was through saving that such men as Carnegie, Wanamaker, Hill, Armour, Marshall Field, Pullman, Rockefeller and others of that school, who were at the heyday of their activity and usefulness at the beginning of the present century, laid the foundations of their future success. In the field of statesmanship, the book of experience tells us that Gladstone, Lincoln, Washington, Franklin, Jefferson owed their success fundamentally to patient habits of thrift acquired in early life.

Habit is a tremendously important thing. Habitual saving in the years of youth will develop habits of frugality which, no matter how prosperous we may become in later years, will be of incalculable benefit. On the other hand, the habit of easy spending is a dangerous thing to cultivate in youth or at any time in life. It warps the judgment, leaves the individual unprepared for emergencies and unready for opportunities.

The frailties of human nature make it easier always to yield to the temptation of spending than to resist. As Roosevelt once said—the spending habit rots character. No one can hope to go through life without meeting obstacles and the development of habits of economy fortify one to conquer circumstance. How can one ever hope to possess a sturdy will if the habit of non-resistance has become definitely implanted in one's routine of life?

No better time can be found than the present for self-appraisal. If you have been drifting along without getting ahead, regardless of how old or how young you may be, you can take no better step than the firm resolution to make 1929 a period of thrift for you. If you do this you can at this time next year look back with feelings of high satisfaction and increased self-respect.—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

Water Carrier

A father was quizzing his ten-year-old son about his history and thinking to trip him up, said: "Well, Bob, I bet you don't know who Molly Pitcher was."

Without any hesitation the youngster said: "She was the one that carried water to the soldiers."

Down the Alley

Little Ruth, age two, went to a funeral recently with her mother and, of course, watched everything. After she came home and was playing with her dolls she started to sing, "We're

IN DAY'S NEWS

Goteborg, the Birmingham of Sweden.

The harbor of Goteborg (Gothenburg) Sweden, where are found Levantine merchantmen, trading vessels of the Baltic and the North Seas, huge transatlantic liners and tiny trawlers of Scandinavian fishermen, is brought into the daily news through the announcement of improvements to be made there in 1929.

"The location of Goteborg on the west coast of Sweden, at the mouth of the Gota river, makes it a busy shipping center. Ships from Goteborg circle the globe in their voyages," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Goteborg's harbor already has most modern improvements. Extensive quays on either side of the Gota river have railway connections to speed the transportation of imports. Ice-breakers keep the harbor open during the long winter. Visitors to Goteborg who enjoy water travel may go by boat from there across the country to Stockholm by means of the Gota canal, a feat of modern engineering.

"For land travelers, six railroads keep Goteborg in constant touch with the rest of Sweden nd many of the larger Norse towns.

"Goteborg contrasts with the quiet towns of Swedish Dalecarlia much as Birmingham, England, might contrast with Stratford-on-Avon. The variety of its manufacturers runs the gamut from elevators to sugar refining machinery. Although it ranks second to Malmo in commercial importance, Goteborg justifies the expectation of its founder, Gustavus Adolphus, that it would be a memorial to Sweden's industry.

"Outside Goteborg proper lie modern suburbs which house most of the working queraters and which connect with the city by electric railways. In the old portion the canals built by the Dutchmen charged with the planning of the city by Gustavus Adolpheus, in 1619, are largely filled up. Fragments of them remain and form picturesque little lakes.

"The Storahamn, Ostrahamn and Vestrahamn canals still exist almost in entirety. A semi-circular moat which divides the old town from the suburbs has been converted into a landscape feature. Its banks are planted with shrubbery and on one side lies an extensive park of which a famed botanical garden is a feature.

"At another place along the moat is found the daily market. Here the market women sit behind little stands and trade in a variety of produce which ranges from fresh fruit to squawking chickens. In the summer outdoor restaurants set in the Slottskogen park form an attractive phase of Goteborg's social life. Memories of its founder are evoked by the tall statue of Gustavus Adolphus in big boots, military cloak and befeathered hat, in one of the city squares.

"No aspect of the past confronts the visitor to Goteborg. The streets are wide and straight and the houses modern. The university is fully as modernized as the state universities of Upsala and Lund. The Lorensburg theater, one of Sweden's leading playhouses, presents ultra-modern drama.

"Even the East India company's house whence Goteborg merchants formerly directed commerce between Sweden and the Indies now houses a complete and modern museum. Goteborg claims one distinction of which no American city of equal size acn boast—every private house and every kiosk in the street possesses a telephone."

A woman doesn't always achive greatness when she gets a husband.

KEEP STOMACH YOUNG!

Eat What You Want

When the food you eat goes into your acid-soaked stomach, it sours and can't digest, makes foul gas and sour bile. The blood takes these poisonous acids and carries them through the body. Naturally it makes you miserable and despondent, because your system is not nourished—you lose weight.

Pape's Diapepsin dissolves the acids and sweetens the stomach. It digests the food; no more sour bile is taken up by the blood. Your appetite is like a youngster's again, and gradually you get back your health, flesh and energy.

Chew a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin after meals. It tastes good, and relieves the misery of indigestion in five minutes. It will keep your stomach young and vigorous so you can eat anything you want without being afraid of the consequences.

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

In all history, no Indian was ever known to have constipation. Nor need YOU. He chewed the bark of a tree called cascara. Today, we have the candy Cascaret.

Cascarizing the bowels never forms a laxative habit. If already formed, an occasional Cascaret will usually break the habit. For cascara strengthens the muscular walls of the bowels, and their need of any aid at all grows constantly less. What other cathartic has this characteristic?

An evacuation brought gently about by cascara will, nine times in ten, be followed by full functioning of the bowels on the morrow—and for days after. For there is no REACTION as with sickening salts, or any of the manmade purgatives that go through one's system like a bullet.

Physicians tell us cascara is the ideal laxative—and the tongue tells us candy Cascarets are its ideal form. At least a million people know this; what a pity there are any who don't! Especially parents; because children love to take a Cascaret. After which, for days-on-end, the bowels will be seen to work of their own accord.

The only habit from cascara is that of regularity! Cascarets tone and train the bowels. Put at the first sign of returning sluggishness another Cascaret is as effective as the first.

There isn't a druggist who hasn't Cascarets, so WHY experiment with laxatives?

ALL SHOULD HAVE PLENTY OF MILK

Bones and Teeth of Children and Adults Need Milk in the Diet

Two famous nutrition authorities emphasize the need of the human body for the calcium and phosphorus found in milk. Children and expectant or nursing mothers should have from three-quarters to one quart of milk a day, according to these authorities, and other adults should have from three-quarters of a pint to a pint of milk a day. These authorities point out that too little calcium in the diet retards bone growth, causes rickets, may result in bone deformities, produces poor quality of teeth and lowers vigor and vitality. Whole milk also is rich in phosphorus.

Unfortunately there are many people who do not like the taste of milk. For all such people, a delicious milk drink should be made

One mother makes her children eager for milk by giving it to them in milk shakes. "They call one drink a chocolate froth," she says. "I take a level teaspoon of cocoa and 1½ teaspoons of sugar, mix in the bottom of a glass with a few drops of milk until it's smooth, add a drop or two of vanilla flavoring, fill the glass with milk and shake it with an ordinary tin shaker. The youngsters are crazy about it," she goes on to say. "They like it sometimes without the chocolate, just the vanilla and sugar."

Sugar is Nature's ideal flavor. "Help make children drink milk," says an eminent food scientist, "by adding chocolate and sugar." The Sugar Institute.

CHICAGO AUCTION HELD AT MRS. T. B. BLACKSTONE'S

A Chicago paper of Friday said: True to the traditions of earlier days, the doors of the old Blackstone mansion at 1912 Prairie avenue swung wide again yesterday to scores of guests—but there was a red flag in the window, and the hum of talk was drowned in the whang of an auctioneer's descending gavel. All the household effects of the late Mrs. Isabella Norton Blackstone, widow of Timothy B. Blackstone, were sold at auction.

It was late last evening before the last of the furnishings of the twenty-two rooms had been disposed of, for amounts sometimes almost ridiculously small in contrast with the actual value of the pieces. Oriental rugs, fine oil paintings, silken hangings, wall panels, chairs and tables, exquisitely carved and inlaid pieces of furniture, and various pieces of silver were sold at fraction of their original cost.

Three years ago Mrs. Blackstone deeded the old family home to the Presbyterian Training School of Chicago, with the proviso that it be left as it was until her death.

The paper pictured the crowd gathered about the auctioneer, as the auction went on.

Mrs. Blackstone was a native of Norwich and at her death in September last left a large proportion of her great fortune to charity and in public bequests, after legacies to her Norwich relatives.

HAS NATIONAL REFERENDUM ON HIGHWAY ADMINISTRATION

Referendum No. 53 on the report of the special committee on highways and motor transportation respecting state and local road administration, was received Monday by the local chamber office and President Joseph C. Worth has announced the appointment of the following committee to consider its recommendations: Shepard B. Palmer, Arthur L. Peale and Carl W. Brown.

A letter accompanying the referendum from David A. Skinner, secretary of the United States Chamber of Commerce, states as follows:

"Planning, construction and maintenance of highways have assumed greater importance in every state. The chamber of commerce of the United States has a special committee on highways and motor transportation. This committee has prepared a report with recommendations which are now submitted for a referendum vote and which are most timely for consideration by the membership."

The statement of the question indicates the following report of the committee:

1. The committee recommends that state legislatures should give the highway departments or commissions wide authority, within financial limitations properly fixed in relation to the whole financial program of the state, to develop highway programs on sound social and economic grounds and maintain adequate organizations with the needed continuity.

2. The committee recommends that state highway departments or commissions should have advisory relationship or actual technical and administrative supervision over road programs of smaller political units outside of municipalities to insure well-planned and economical development and maintenance of the entire road system.

3. The committee recommends that in states where the state highway system does not include all of the improved roads, smaller political units unable to afford adequate technical organizations for their road work should be joined together into suitable larger highway units, to the end that they may co-ordinate their respective programs and secure economic administrations.

4. The committee recommends that the responsible authorities should establish definite plans for local road work, taking into account in determining economic justification the actual or potential use of each existing road and the best means of providing the necessary highway access.

5. The committee recommends that co-ordinated planning of the highway systems of metropolitan areas, including connections with surrounding territory, be provided through voluntary agreement of the responsible authorities of the several jurisdictions, or, if necessary, by legislation.

6. The committee recommends that programs for construction and maintenance of highways of general motor use should be financed as far as possible by highway users, and that revenues derived from other sources should be limited by the general benefits resulting from the improvements and by the ability to pay.

Several applications for mortgage loans were received and referred to the board of directors. The report of the secretary Henry D. Johnson, was received and accepted. Matured shares in the fourth series, 22 in number, were paid to 12 share holders.

The election of officers was the next business. The report of the nominating committee was made by Herman Stelzner, as follows:

For president, Ernest O. Rodier; first vice president, Herbert M. Leroy; second vice president, Roy D. Judd; secretary, Henry D. Johnson; assistant secretary, Alexander Sharp; treasurer, Charles I. Smith; assistant treasurer, James F. Fleming.

Directors, L. M. Crandall, William S. Elliott, Louis H. Geer, Hermon I. Gibbs, Edward J. Graham, Robert McNeely, Archibald Mitchell, John J. O'Rourke, George S. Powers, Jacob R. Slosberg, Herman Stelzner, Earle M. Wood; attorney, Charles V. James; auditors, Frederick H. Topliff, Charles D. Foster, James E. McCormick.

The report of the committee was accepted and the officers were unanimously elected. The board of management reported on the several loans completed since the December meeting and several new applications for loans were referred to the appraisers. Committee reports were heard and accepted.

During the meeting President Rodier spoke on the value of the building and loan association and of the loyalty the officers and directors have shown in the past. He predicted another successful year for the association during 1929.

Secretary Henry D. Johnson called attention to a folder which the association has had printed containing the address given at the state convention by Harrison G. Streeter of Bridgeport, which is an admirable presentation of scope, value and strength of building and loan associations. This, Secretary Johnson said, is for free distribution and the officers would be glad to have those thinking of becoming shareholders secure one of these folders, so that they may be fully informed of what building and loan associations are doing and of the security they give to their shareholders.

MISS WEIR LECTURED ON MODERNIST ART

The Norwich Art association held its January meeting in Converse art gallery Saturday evening. A brief business meeting was held. The members of the association and their friends then listened to a delightfully informal and instructive lecture by Miss Irene Weir, B. F. A., Yale university, director of the School of Design and Liberal Arts, New York city. Her subject was The Modernist's Point of View in Art.

Miss Weir first gave a rapid survey of the trend of modernism in contemporary culture, stressing especially the modern note in poetry and music. Then turning to her real subject she gave an interesting discussion and enlightening interpretation of the term modernism as applied to art. That the successful repetition of an age cannot be accomplished is one plea of the modernist, because to repeat the past means the doing of a thing less well. Therefore tradition and custom must be cast aside. Something new must be attempted.

Changing standards in all phases of modern life are reflected in modern art in a freedom from tradition and custom. New values mean new standards of appreciation. A modernist must keep up to date in subject matter and in the interpretation of subject matter. A modernistic spirit must include the ability to be en rapport with life, to understand all things.

Art must change to take its proper place in modern life, since the art of every period reflects contemporary life Therefore, the art subjects of the Middle Ages of the Renaissance have no place in the world of today.

One of the difficulties of modern art is the fact that it must portray subjects against the proper backgrounds in order to properly interpret them. The immensity of the scope of many modern subjects, in contrast to the definitely limited scope of many Renaissance subjects, necessitates the use of a suggestive background for proper interpretation.

Modernism does not believe that literal imitation is creative art, although technique is a very necessary foundation. Modern art, through its creative spirit, leaves much to the spectator's imagination in suggesting rather than giving a finished picture. It has a spirit of buoyancy, of experiment, of constant progress, a sense of solidity in the organization and structure of material.

Miss Weir illustrated many of these characteristics of modern art through concrete references to some of her own oil paintings, watercolor sketches and crayon drawings hung on the walls of Converse gallery. Her quietly humorous, informal comments on her work, many of them rapid travel sketches in vivid color, enhanced greatly the enjoyment and value of her lecture.

Very briefly she spoke of the international relationships in art, greatly influenced by the World war. She spoke of the part which various countries have had in the development of modernism in art, among them France, Germany, Russia.

France was the first to experiment, to break away from the traditional manner. Monet, an exponent of pure color, Cezanne who developed the architectural element in art which led to structural solidity in drawing—both helped to forward the movements of Impressionism and Cubism. Germany was interested in the problem of light, color and the stage. Russia became interested in the problem of portraying the reality of life.

PARIS BESTOWS HONORS ON TWO NORWICH WOMEN

It is an interesting fact to their friends in Norwich society that in one day recently, in Paris, the French edition of the New York Sunday Herald-Tribune had conspicuous notices regarding two former Norwich women With a cut, the paper had the following:

In the New Year honors list of the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs appears the name of Mrs. Charles H. Sherrill, wife of General Sherrill, of the United States army, who is named Knight of the Legion of Honor. The honor bestowed on Mrs. Sherrill is in recognition of her work in connection with the organization of the American Ambulance Corps during the war and her co-operation in hospital work at Fez during the recent French campaign in Morocco, as well as her interest in the charities of the town of Brie-Comte-Robert in the Seine-et-Marne. General Sherrill is a commander of the Legion of Honor. As trustee of New York university she recently concluded an agreement for an exchange of students between that body and the Sorbonne and the Louvre Fine Arts school.

Mrs. Sherrill was Miss George Barker Gibbs, of Norwich.

The same paper said of a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hubbard, of Sachem street, Norwich: Frenchwomen have shown their appreciation of the paintings and sketches of Mrs. Henry McHatton, of New York, and Athens, Ga., by electing her to membership in the Lyceum de France. Mrs. McHatton has been studying in Paris with Emile Renard and has recently completed a sketching trip in Portugal and Spain. She will leave for North Africa in January and return to her studies in Paris the following month.

Allison Whipple of North Stonington in the superior court here Tuesday morning by Judge C. L. Avery. She was also given the custody of a three-year-old child. The divorce was granted on the grounds of intolerable cruelty. Mrs. Whipple testifying, among other things, that her husband threw a victrola record at her, pulled her out of an automobile and locked her in a corn-crib to keep her from going with him. The marriage of the couple took place on the day before Christmas, 1922.

MOLINAROS INSANE; SENT TO STATE HOSPITAL

Fortunato Molinaro and his wife, Mariateresa, of this city, charged by the state with criminal libel in connection with alleged libelous circulars which they caused to be distributed about the county and sent to people in high positions in the nation and in Italy, were committed to the Norwich State Hospital for the insane by Judge Christopher L. Avery in the criminal superior court here Tuesday, after three alienists had submitted a report of their examination of the couple.

Neither of the accused or their counsel were in court.

Charles Tillinghast, 13, of North Stonington, pleaded guilty to theft of $45 from an elderly woman in that town, Mrs. Josephine Roy, who said that her two grandsons were also implicated in taking sums from a trunk in her house.

Tillinghast received a jail sentence of 60 days, the execution of which was suspended and he was placed on probation in charge of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. The cases of the two grandsons were disposed of some time ago in the juvenile court.

James V. Barry, 24, of this city, pleaded guilty to the theft of $70 from R. Knight at a rooming house where Knight was living and was sentenced to five months in jail.

Barry was brought into the criminal court on a bench warrant for his case had only come up Monday in the city court. Raymond Thompson who is accused with Barry is out on bonds and his case will come up in the May term of court.

This concluded the criminal term of the court and it took an indefinite recess.

County Sheriff Sidney A. Brown took Mr. and Mrs. Molinaro to the state hospital after the court session.

YALE PROFESSOR COMPARES TWO WAR TIME POETS

Dr. George H. Nettleton, head of the English department at Yale, gave an interesting talk following the business meeting of the Women's City club at the Wauregan hotel Tuesday evening. Mr. Nettleton took for his topic, Rupert Brooke and Allen Seegar, two poets of the World war period, the latter being an American and the former an Englishman. In his introductory remarks, which were of a very humorous nature, the speaker told several of his personal experiences as a lecturer, particularly of an incident that occurred at a women's meeting at which he was the speaker. The audience was very appreciative of the humorous stories.

After referring to his subject as a war topic, Dr. Nettleton then gave his audience a glimpse of the similarity of the lives of the two poets.

Dr. Nettleton read from the poems showing their state of mind while in various parts of the world and under different conditions. Dr. Nettleton was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his talk.

At the business meeting, at which Miss Marion L. Bishop presided and was the five minute speaker, the secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and accepted. Miss Bishop in her brief remarks referred to the enjoyable Christmas party given at Slater hall under the auspices of the Women's City club and the large audience of youngsters that was present for the event. She also announced that the short stories must be handed in to Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn of the literary committee by Feb. 1 and of the Americanization meeting of this (Wednesday) evening, at which Miss Mary Potter of the state board of education, will be the speaker. Other announcements of interest to the club were also made.

DRINK HOT WATER TO END INDIGESTION

INSTANT RELIEF

Thousands of unfortunate people suffer almost daily from stomach acidity, gas, sourness and indigestion after eating. If they would start the agreeable practice of taking a glass of hot water containing a teaspoonful or four tablets of pure Bisurated Magnesia, they would soon find their stomach so strengthened and improved that they could eat the richest and most satisfying meals without the least sympton of indigestion.

Nearly all digestive troubles are caused by an excess of acid and an insufficient blood supply in the stomach. Food ferments and sours before digestion can take place. A glass of hot water draws the blood to the stomach and Bisurated Magnesia neutralizes the stomach acids and keeps the stomach strong, sweet and healthy and promotes normal painless digestion. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative, is harmless, easy and pleasant to take, and can be obtained from any well stocked druggist in either powder or tablet form. Try this today and enjoy your meals in peace.

KATZ' LICENSE SUSPENDED FOR LIFE BY N. Y. COMMISSION

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—The New York state athletic commission today revoked for life the manager's license of Abe Katz, pilot of Sid Terris, Sammy Baker and other boxers, as punishment for using abusive language to Dan Skilling, deputy commissioner.

The action was taken in summary fashion after an altercation in the commission offices this morning, when Katz appeared in response to a summons for coaching from the ringside during a fight in which one of the more obscure members of his stable was engaged at the St. Nicholas arena a week ago yesterday.

Katz is the first manager of some prominence to receive such drastic punishment, according to the commissioners who declared themselves ready to wage war on managers who flout their authority. Katz was said to have told Skilling he was going to have him removed and followed it up with even more outspoken verbal abuse.

AGGIE BASKETEERS MEET TUFTS THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Jan. 15—With the first contest of a three game series that is sure to tax the Connecticut Aggie quintet to the utmost not far off, Coach Louis A. Alexander set his charges off at a light pace today in the final practice session before meeting Tufts tomorrow evening. The varsity went through the drill minus the duties of Osterling and Duffy, regular guards who were confined to bed this afternoon following a lapse yesterday. They could not participate in the drill period yesterday afternoon which was virtually the only session left, before the Aggies take up the war path. Rather than have Duffy and Osterling take part in the scrimmage practice held yesterday, Coach Alexander ordered them to bed expecting that they will recover in time to leave with the squad of ten players at noon Wednesday.

AL KOZIOL, LOCAL BOXER, SCORES HEAVILY AT BOSTON

That Al Koziol of Norwich, R. I., state lightweight champion, made Boston fight fans sit up and take notice is evidenced in a special dispatch to a Providence paper. The crowd came to jeer but stayed to cheer the local lad. Koziol was sent against the toughest boys that the Bay State could produce but they were far from tough when Al was through with them. The account follows:

"Boston, Jan. 15—They don't make 'em too tough for Al Koziol, amateur lightweight boxing champion of Rhode Island.

Last night the Cranston bricklayer trekked to the Boston Garden to match his ability against a pair of strong Hub favorites in the open class of the annual international tournament. When he left the huge arena with Barney Keenan, the guy who has always been a mystery in Koziol's corner, Cranston, Rhode Island, was put on the pugilistic map. Koziol cleaned up everything in the 135-pound division of the open class tournament with plenty to spare.

It was the general opinion that if the boxers did not know Koziol's style of fighting they were due for a surprise, and one, Joe Nanickas of Lawrence, got it. Nanickas was favored to win and give another favorite, Sammy Mango of Dorchester a slashing battle for the trophy, but he failed.

When a voice bellowed through the big amplifying horns the name of Koziol, the crowd giggled; when he came out from his corner, they laughed, but a minute later they moaned.

Al flashed that time-worn trick of leaping for his opponent at the bell and before the Lawrence idol could raise his arms the Cranston bearcat had planted a few mean ones over his heart. A few seconds later Al dropped Nanickas with a right hook to the chin to the surprise of the crowd and after several times staggering him by his wild rushes Joe went down for nine and barely made his feet. A hard right smash to the chin put the Lawrence boy out of the picture.

Koziol was given a big hand when he appeared against Sammy Mango of Dorchester in the finals. Mango was no stranger. Last May they met twice and Koziol beat him both times, once by a knockout in the third round. During the entire bout Mango had all he could do to stave off the battling tactics of the Cranston youth and repeatedly was given the "raz" by the crowd for stalling. Mango wanted to show Koziol how to box but the latter was there to fight and he had the Dorchester battler wobbling all over the ring no less than six times while he deftly slipped left counters harmlessly over his shoulders. Al tried hard to end the fray by a knockout but Mango was apparently very much satisfied to wrestle the time away and the Cranston boy won an easy decision."

Koziol is now in Providence working out with Young Montreal in preparation for his bouts on Friday evening at the Arcadia arena.

SMITH AND VON ELM LEAD PASADENA FIELD

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 15—(AP)—Macdonald Smith of Great Neck, Long Island, N. Y., successful defender of the $10,000 Los Angeles open crown, and George Von Elm, blonde amateur of Detroit, deadlocked today for low honors in the 18 holes of qualifying play of the $4,000 Pasadena open golf tournament. The pair rounded the tricky municipal course in 69, two strokes under par.

They showed the way to a field of approximately 165 players as they flashed over this city's mountain-bound public links in par smashing rounds. Smith continued the consistent play that characterized his Los Angeles victory, while Von Elm was turning in the best showing he has made during any of the recent western tournaments.

Play today in the 54 hole tournament saw the elimination of Leo Diegel of the Mexican Agua Caliente Country club and national professional champion. Scores of 77 or better qualified for the final 36 hole drive tomorrow and Diegel saw himself just outside that divisional mark with a 78.

BEAUREGARD LOSES VERDICT TO LUCCI AT NEW HAVEN

Beauregard weighed 119 and Lucci a half pound more. In the main bout Willie Hussey of Bridgeport outpointed Georgie Day of New Haven in ten rounds.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

The Yale basketball tournament will be held this year March 14 and 15. This is for Class A and B. The C and D titles will be decided at Storrs the same dates.

The first of the "ancient rival" basketball clashes this season comes next Tuesday with the Putnam-Killingly go. There are not near as many of these objective games in basketball as in other sports. For instance, Stonington's main rival, Westerly, has no court representative, and Bulkeley, chief adversary of the Academy, also registers absent in sports during winter months. The Academy's basketball rival is Windham.

Chapman Tech will meet Plainfield Thursday at Plainfield instead of Friday, as was scheduled.

KILLINGLY TAKES HARD GAME FROM BACON ACADEMY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 15-Bacon Academy dropped a fast game to Killingly high at the Killingly gym tonight by the score of 43 to 21. The Red and White quintet was always in the lead in spite of Bacon's men who fought to the last minute. Killingly seconds were sent in for the last five minutes of play and scored 11 points on Bacon. McKeon, Killingly center, started the fireworks with a nice basket followed by a long shot from Deitch. The game looked hot for a few minutes but McKeon put the ball in the hoop twice before the end of the first quarter, which ended in Killingly's favor, 6 to 3. Killingly still maintained the lead throughout the second half through the good shooting of McKeon. The score at the half was Killingly 15, Bacon 7. In the second half Polakevitch opened up an attack for Bacon which was put down by Young and McKeon of the Red and White. The last period saw Coach Ernest Warren send in the seconds which outplayed Bacon to the end. The game ended 43 to 21 in favor of Killingly.

McKeon was high scorer with 14 points. Volakevitch held the honors for Bacon with 9 points. Killingly, with four wins and one loss, is ready for its rival, Putnam high, which has also a fine record.

The preliminary game was won by the Killingly Independents over Dayville Y. M. C. A., 18 to 15. The summary:

PUTNAM FIVE WINS EASILY FROM PLAINFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 15—The Putnam Headquarters Company Five, vanquished the Plainfield Stars in a fast one-sided game here tonight. The final score was 40 to 22. The fans delighted in the fast an dspeedy work of Jack Cronin and Dom Bove as they crashed the five-man defense plan of the Plainfield team with excellent passwork. Weiss and Bove displayed skill in tossing the ball through the hoop on several occasions while Cronin and Murphy were responsible for several of the points scored. The score at half time was 18 to 1 in favor of the Headquarters Company, Plainfield managing to close the gap in the remaining quarters. Since the Danielson protest against Cronin's alleged rough play the loyal Putnam fans, who have upheld him since the first, turned out tonight to fill the Armory to capacity and enjoyed his fast court work.

DEMPSEY UNDECIDED AS YET ABOUT FIGHTING

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 15—(AP)—Jack Dempsey tonight said that he has not decided whether he will enter the ring in the elimination bout to pick the heavyweight champion to succeed Gene Tunney.

"I can't tell yet," the former champion and the director of the Sharkey-Stribling fight plans said when shown a statement from William F. Carey, head of the Madison Square Garden corporation that Dempsey would return to the ring.

"I am beginning to feel pretty good down here, but I don't know what I will do until I work out," Dempsey said. "I am the only person who can tell whether my body is in trim for a fight, and until I have the opportunity to test it, it is impossible to tell what I can do."

Dempsey came here to work out, but he declared today that his recent activities have had the February 27 fight as a motive and that his duties in preparing for the battle constituted his road work to date.

PLAINFIELD PROS CLASH WITH OLSEN'S TERRIBLE SWEDES TONIGHT

What is without doubt one of the feature basketball attractions of the season is slated for the Plainfield Community house this evening when Olsen's famous Terrible Swedes clash with the Plainfield Pros. All followers of basketball know that the Terrible Swedes of the mid-west rate very near to the top in basketball circles throughout the country. For those who only casually follow basketball it might be well to say that Olsen's club is absolutely one of the fastest quintets touring the country today. Recruited from the leading college fives in the mid-west during the past few years the Swedes present a line-up second to none. Each man is an individual star picked for his basketball ability alone.

The Swedes last season hung up a record of over 100 games won as against less than ten lost which stamps them as quite some basketball aggregation. In hanging up this record the Swedes met practically all the leading clubs of the country including the leaders of the American Basketball league. It was estimated that this club played to a quarter of a million fans during the season, which only goes to show that they are quite a drawing card. Each man on the club holds some record or other and it is with difficulty that Manager Olsen keeps his men from being snapped up by some of the big league basketball teams. Last Saturday at New Britain the Swedes came from behind to beat out the New Britain club which is a man sized task for any club.

Plainfield will be pushed this evening to nose out a victory from the invaders who are reputed to be a tricky combination featuring a novel back-hand passing attack that never fails to baffle their opponents. It is expected that Plainfield will use "Pop" Williams again tonight as Brusso is not fully recovered from his attack of flu although Brusso will be present at the game. Kasper will be Williams' running mate with Bernot at center, Tisdale and Dissinger at guards.

In the preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies will clash with the Putnam Headquarters Five of the Southern New England league in what is expected to be another fast game. Dancing will follow the big game as usual.

Sonnenburg Throws Malcewitz.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Gus Sonnenburg recently crowned the world's heavyweight wrestling champion, used his famous flying tackle hold to dispose of Frank Malcewitz of Utica, N. Y., in short order here tonight. Sonnenburg won the first fall in 8 minutes and 30 seconds, the second in one minute and fifteen seconds, both by flying tackles.

Olsen's Terrible Swedes Who Play Plainfield Tonight

CAREY CERTAIN DEMPSEY WILL FIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—William F. Carey, the "big Bill" of the Madison Square Garden corporation, headed for Florida tonight to plunge into final arrangements for the Sharkey-Stribling bout, confident that Jack Dempsey, promoter for the time being, would be back in fighting togs again before another winter rolls around.

"Dempsey hasn't said he will, but he hasn't said he won't either," Carey said today as he discussed plans for the heavyweight elimination joust in Miami Beach, February 27. "He feels that he is fit and eager. Every indication is that Dempsey will fight again. I'm sure of it."

Stepping into the place of Tex Rickard with all the energy of the late promoter, the first vice president and treasurer of the Garden wound up his affairs here and planned a busy six weeks ahead. For the time being, Carey has abandoned a brokerage business that made him a millionaire for boxing industry he knew only as a stockholder.

On the way to Florida, Carey plans conferences with heads of two railroads. He wants tickets for the fight sold along with reduce drate excursion tickets in every railroad station in the south, a plan Rickard adopted with success before the Tunney-Dempsey match in Chicago in 1927.

Selection of the referee for the match, Carey revealed, will be in the hands of Dempsey, the promoter, if the contestants are unable to settle upon one man seven days before the bout. He said there was little likelihood that Dempsey, with his second come-back in mind, would consent to referee the bout when there was a possibility of his fighting the winner during the summer season.

SHARKEY-STRIBLING BOUT ASSURED

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 15—(AP)—Final official details assuring the Stribling-Sharkey heavyweight boxing bout here, February 27, were completed today with Jack Dempsey, acting for the Madison Square Garden corporation, and W. L. Stribling, Sr., father of one of the principals, signing the contract.

The contract gives the Georgia pugilist 20 per cent of the gross gate receipts, but no guarantee. The Garden corporation takes an option on Stribling for his succeeding fight.

Inasmuch as Jack Sharkey, the ex-gob from Boston signed through his manager last week with $100,000 as his stipulation, the fight is considered a certainty for this city.

Stribling, Sr., said "we are slated to get anything for the fight. We would fight Sharkey for nothing. I know my boy will go on to the title."

Dempsey, in the role of successor to his friend the late George L. (Tex) Rickard, will confer with John Levy, Garden corporation seating expert, who will supervise the erection of stands to handle a crowd of approximately 30,000 spectators. The arena will be around the Rickard Kennel club oval, near the beach.

Another task Dempsey was called upon to handle was the tentative selection of training camps for the fighters whose contracts call for them to begin work here February 1.

William Carey, vice president and treasurer of Madison Square Garden, is expected here Wednesday.

BACKFIRE IN SEDAN DELAYS WESTERLY FIRE POLICE FEAST

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 14—A brand new Velie sedan of Harold Boney, 23 Hobart street, was badly damaged when it caught fire from a backfire near his home and burst into flames, about 9 o'clock this evening. Officer Robert Kessel saw the blaze from his home and telephoned in the alarm which was sounded from Box 37. Two pumpers of the Westerly department, Fire Chief Egger and men responded; also the new hook and ladder truck of the Pawcatuck fire department came over into Westerly, as the Westerly truck is undergoing repairs. The fire was held down by garden hose. A line of booster hose from the Seagraves pumper extinguished the blaze, and the house and garage threatened by the fire were saved.

The fire police were delayed by this alarm in arriving at their annual dinner. Additional officers elected were: Auditing committee, Samuel Patton, Alexander Greig and Harry Barber; steward, Samuel Patton; delegates to the state firemen's league, Hugh Mulvey; alternate, Alexander Greig; first aid detachment, a branch of the fire police, held their meeting and the officers named are as follows: Captain, Robert A. Wilcox; lieutenant, Clarence Stenhouse; secretary and treasurer, "Gus" Larsen. At the close of the banquet following a discussion on reporters being allowed to enter the fire lines, Samuel Patton moved that the reporters be named special members of the fire police and badges be given them.

Napatree Corporation, by John M. Goetchius, president, transferred Jan. 14 to Calvert B. Cottrell, 3rd of Westerly, land on Napatree Point, Watch Hill, bounded easterly by land now or formerly of Frank Larkin, being Lot No. 1, Tract 1 and 2, Napatree Point, together with easements and rights of way.

A Shannock, R. I., inebriate Monday afternoon was at Westerly station of the New Haven road. His actions attracted the attention of a member of the New Haven railroad police to whom he confided the nature of the contents of several packages carried by him and where he had obtained it—the contents being liquor. Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Officer Robert Kessel were soon making the acquaintance of the Shannock visitor but they were told the liquor had been secured on the Connecticut side of the Pawcatuck river. The alibi was not sufficient to clear the wet goods, for it was seized by the police and the contents spilled into the sewer by way of the station lavatory.

Tuesday morning's fall of snow, the third snow storm of this winter in Westerly, proved the heaviest thus far this season, although it did not begin until after 7 a. m. and snow ceased falling about noon. The roads, streets and countryside were whitened and the process of shoveling sidewalks was begun. The coating of ice left by Sunday's storm, although covered by gravel in the highways, was a good foundation and autoists used chains. Alternate wet, icy and snowy sidewalks made pedestrians careful of falls.

THREE RIBS FRACTURED—BOY STRUCK COASTING

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 15—Tuesday at noon Walter Mroz, 13, of 40 Chester avenue, received three fractured ribs, when struck by an automobile while coasting down Scholo street. Herbert W. Maggs of Wells street was driving a Ford sedan, west-bound, on School street and the car ran into the sled just below the junction of School and Chestnut streets. The Mroz boy was on his way to school at 12:45 o'clock. He was taken into the Elm street school building and placed in charge of Principal Herman Driggs, Dr. L. H. Johnson when summoned ordered the child removed to Westerly hospital. An examination showed that three ribs had been fractured on one side close to the backbone and it was feared that another rib on the other side had been broken.

The Pawcatuck board of trade has re-elected Frank L. Furness president. The other officers elected are:

Karl G. Stillman, vice president; Alexander Marr, secretary; Fred M. Robertson, treasurer; Karl G. Stillman, L. C. Purtill, L. L. Foster, H. M. Barber, A. H. Chapman, Albert Sylvia, S. D. Fisher, F. W. Harvey, H. C. Crandall and William A. Maxwell, board of directors.

The following committees have been chosen Entertainment, Alfred H. Chapman, James A. Reale and Albert Sylvia; industries, Earl G. Stillman, Stuart D. Fisher and Elbert W. Clarke. President Frank L. Furness and Representative Henry A. Stahle were appointed a committee to meet with the public utilities commission, relative to having improvements made at the Palmer street crossing. Residents of that vicinity have complained of excessive blowing of whistles as trains approach the crossing.

The speical committee plans to request the building of an underpass at Palmer street and thus have the present crossing eliminated. They also will ask the abandonment of the Burdick Lane crossing.

Another special committee, President Furness and Sidney C. Wood, has been instructed to meet the Connecticut road commissioner, Mr. McDonald regarding the road line over the Hinckley Hill road. The World War Memorial committee presented a report which showed that the project was completely paid for.

Avoid Ugly Pimples

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull listless, "no good" feeling constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Facing the cruelest test a skin can meet

"Without smooth skin, no girl can be lovely," say leading directors

IT is the most precious charm a girl can have—clear velvety skin. All Hollywood agrees on this, leading stars and directors alike.

For there is something about lovely skin that sends a ripple of emotion through every heart.

And for the screen star, skin as smooth as a flower petal is a prime necessity.

"People open their hearts instantly to the appealing loveliness of exquisite skin," says Edward Sedgwick, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer director, expressing the experience of 39 Hollywood directors. "Every star knows how essential it is to have beautiful, smooth skin."

The huge new incandescent "sunspot" lights stream down heartlessly on the star's skin while the close-up is being taken. Any tiniest defect will be registered on the film, now more highly sensitized even than before. In consequence, of the 451 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 442 guard the smoothness of their skin with Lux Toilet Soap.

JOAN CRAWFORD, fascinating Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, meets the brilliancy of the new incandescent "sunspot" close-up lights with perfect self-confidence—because her lovely face and arms and shoulders are kept beautifully smooth with Lux Toilet Soap.

"I have tried innumerable French soaps but never have I had anything like Lux Toilet Soap for keeping my skin fresh and smooth. And 'studio skin' is the all-important asset for the star who must face into the glaring lights of the close-up."

Joan Crawford

JOAN CRAWFORD finds this delicately fragrant white soap delightful both in this lovely bathroom and in her special dressing room on location. It keeps her skin in such marvelous condition.

The next time you see RUTH TAYLOR in a close-up, notice how softly smooth Lux Toilet Soap keeps her fair skin. This little Paramount blonde says: "No art of make-up can deceive the close-up. I guard my skin as my most priceless possession and know that Lux Toilet Soap treats it gently."

9 out of 10 screen stars guard their smooth skin this way

HOW well the lovely girls whose beauty stirs a million hearts every time they appear in a close-up, know that the skin must be kept rarely smooth!

Of the 451 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 442 depend on Lux Toilet Soap to guard their skin.

The very next time you see Joan Crawford or Ruth Taylor in the close-up, notice how captivatingly smooth Lux Toilet Soap keeps their skin.

Following the example of the stars, every one of the great film studios has made this soap the official soap in all dressing rooms.

If you haven't already discovered for yourself just how smooth this fragrant white soap keeps your skin, try it today.

You'll like it in your bath, too. It lathers so generously! Remember: 9 out of 10 screen stars use it.

Mrs. Reddy's Return

'Tis love that doth for others plan
With bird and animal and man.
—Old Mother Nature.

Mrs. Reddy Fox hunted long and hard. She herself was very, very hungry, for, like Reddy Fox, she had been without food all during the big storm. But when at last she caught a careless Wood Mouse she didn't eat it, although it was not more than a mouthful. No, sir, she didn't eat it. She picked it up and carried it along with her. But, though she hunted and hunted, she could not find another Wood Mouse. At last she gave up and started for home in the Old Pasture. On the way there she crossed a corner of the Green Meadows and, by sheer good fortune she surprised and caught a fat Meadow Mouse.

Now, Mrs. Reddy had been a long time gone, but all the time she had been thinking of Reddy and how he had lost his toe in a trap, and how he couldn't hunt for himself, and how very, very hungry he must be. She was taking those two mice home to Reddy. She had denied herself that Reddy might have something to eat.

Before she reached home she discovered tracks in the snow that disturbed her much. Those tracks led straight up toward her home in the Old Pasture and they were the footprints of one of those two-legged creatures whom she and Reddy so much feared. "It's probably the one who set that dreadful trap," thought Mrs. Reddy. "I do hope he hasn't set a trap where Reddy is likely to step in it. However, if he has been up to the house, Reddy will know it and will be on the watch." She sniffed in the tracks and faintly caught the man-smell. It made the hair on her back rise ever so little. She hurried now, because she was anxious. She was fearful that those tracks in the snow might mean mischief, so Mrs. Reddy hurried. Perhaps you can guess how she felt when she came in sight of the doorway to her home and saw Reddy lying just outside in the snow gnawing a bone.

Mrs. Reddy barked sharply. Instantly, Reddy put up his head and barked a reply. A look of relief swept over the face of Mrs. Reddy. It was evident that all was well.

"See what I've brought you!" cried Mrs. Reddy.

"See what I've saved for you," replied Reddy.

Now Mrs. Reddy looked and her face fell. The two mice she had brought were nothing compared with the feast that Reddy had there. Reddy saw that look of disappointment.

"I am so sorry you lost that toe," murmured Mrs. Reddy softly.

He got to his feet and limped over to her. "Did you bring these Mice for me?" he asked.

Mrs. Reddy nodded and, when Reddy asked her how many she had eaten herself, she turned her head away and pretended not to hear him.

"You haven't eaten a single Mouse," declared Reddy. "These are all you caught and you brought them both to me. But I wouldn't have eaten both of them, even had I nothing else. I'll eat the Wood Mouse and you'll eat the Meadow Mouse. But, also, you will eat a big dinner. I have saved it for you. You see, while you were thinking of me, I was thinking of you."

"Who brought that big dinner?" Mrs. Reddy asked suspiciously.

"Farmer Brown's Boy," replied Reddy.

Mrs. Reddy's face cleared. "Oh!" said she. "If he brought it it is all right. Who do you suppose could have set that dreadful trap in which you lost your toe?"

"I don't know," replied Reddy. "But I do know that it wasn't Farmer Brown's Boy."

"I am sorry you lost your toe," murmured Mrs. Reddy softly.

"I'm thankful that I didn't lose more than that," replied Reddy. "That foot will soon be as good as ever."

POETRY

A Hymn to Happiness

Let us smile along together,
Be the weather
What it may,
Through the waste and wealth of hours,
Plucking flowers
By the way.
Fragrance from the meadows blowing,
Naught of best or hatred knowing,
Kindness seeking, kindness sowing,
Not tomorrow, but today.

Let us sing along, beguiling
Grief to smiling
In the song.
With the promises of heaven
Let us leaven
The day-long,
Gilding all the duller seemings
With the roselight of our dreamings,
Splashing clouds with sunlight's gleamings,
Here and there and all along.

Let us live along, the sorrow
Of tomorrow
Never heed.
In the pages of the present
What is pleasant
Only read.
Bells but pealing, never knelling,
Hearts with gladness ever swelling,
Tides of charity unwelling
In our every dream and deed.

Let us hope along together,
Be the weather
What it may,
Where the sunlight glad is shining,
Not repining
By the way.
Seek to add our meed and measure
To the old Earth's joy and treasure,
Quaff the crystal cup of pleasure
Not tomorrow, but today.

—James W. Foley, in "The Voices of Song."

The Road of Remembrance

The old wind stirs the hawthorn tree:
The tree is blossoming;
Northward the road runs to the sea
And past the House of Spring.

The folk go down it unafraid;
The still roofs rise before;
When you were lad and I was maid,
Wide open stood the door.

Now, other children crowd the stair,
And hunt from room to room;
Outside, under the hawthorn fair,
We pluck the thorny bloom.

Out in the quiet road we stand,
Shut in from wharf and mart,
The old wind blowing up the land,
The old thoughts at our heart.

—Lizette Woodworth Reese.

He made it in a wagon drawn by two horses, of which the off one is twenty-nine years old and the near one fifteen. The journey was made in about six months. Mr. Morton estimates his horses walked about 5,200 miles, and he says that he was guided only by a map and a lantern.

SHEA BROS. FINDS ICE SEVEN INCHES AT DORRVILLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 15—Shea brothers took measurements on the Dorrville fields Tuesday afternoon, finding seven inches of fine ice, covered with six inches of light snow. James Shea said he hardly thought it necessary to remove the snow on ice that had reached over six inches. Cutting will begin at about 9 to 10 inches and unless rain comes in considerable amount the light snow will be of no damage to the crop of 5,000 tons, which will be housed in record speed, the minute opportunity offers.

All the hoisting gear and the lift and plow engines have been inspected.

Ice in this section was handled at a very small margin last summer. The one-third of a crop which was secured in February was too thin, not only for the dealer but for the consumer as well.

Mr. Shea handled a dozen carloads from New Hampshire, but on account of the exceptionally hot summer of 1928, he declares the shrinkage made it a close proposition to make both ends meet.

When it comes to displaying quick wit and ready answers it remains for mere man to leave it to the female of the species. One day last week, not far from here, a woman, lady-of-the-house, wash-woman, wife and mother, and all that goes with it, was hanging out her washing from the rear stoop. Up the stairs, half staggering as he came, approached a tough looking character of the Wandering Willie class.

"Hey," said he, accosting the woman, "are you the lady of the house?" "I am the wash-woman," was the reply. Further inquiry from the hobo, "Is the lady of the house inside?" "No, she is out." Willie bundled down the stairs, meditatively, scratching his towsled bean. The woman in the case had spoken the absolute truth, and it did the trick with neiness and dispatch.

NO BAND ORGANIZED—BUT PLAYER LOST A TOOTH

At the meeting held in the town hall Monday evening to organize a band, 25 local musicians were present. No definite start was made, but a list of names was prepared of other players and at a later meeting it is believed all will be present. "Sol" Paquette the barber, with medals too numerous to mention and fame beyond question, was there with his new horn. Nobody else had brought an instrument. Subsequent events seemed to prove that disaster must have been slated for "Sol," from the beginning. Mounting the platform to test the tone of his resplendent tuba, "Sol" blew a mighty blast, followed immediately by a peculiar far away look. The admiring gallery halted in their storm of applause. "Sol" halted also, felt around in his moustache, put one finger in his ear, then turned the tuba top end down, and, with a sepulcral rattle out dropped Sol's front starboard incisor. There followed a muffled grin, the boys looked taken back a bit, yet allowed as how "That was certainly blowin' some." He had blown out one of his front teeth.

DECISION OF SALVATION ARMY LEADERSHIP TODAY

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES, England, Jan. 15—(AP)—The question of the future leadership of the Salvation Army which was to have been adjudicated by the high council, has gone over until tomorrow. It was understood that the council in the course of the afternoon and early evening passed several reformist resolutions, but no vote was taken on the question of displacing General Bramwell Booth as commander-in-chief.

The terms of the reply were not disclosed, a statement to the press tonight in behalf of the general shows that he refuses to retire, denies that the high council has any legal power even to propose changes in the constitution of the Army, and intimates that the council acted as it did because it thought he was a dying man.

Quick relief for COLDS since 1889

Where are Granny's flannels

Perhaps they called them the "gay nineties" because the underwear was so red and so itchy. As a girl, how Grandma used to dread October 25th, the day on which the entire family switched to heavy flannels!

Then early in 1890, the good news spread that a pleasant medicine for colds had been discovered. Tiny tablets, easy to take, which gave quick relief and left no distress.

Every year since, Grandma has used or recommended GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. The old reliable remedy, she calls it. Four generations of her family have used it. The laxative and tonic ingredients don't merely eliminate the symptoms. They help nature to side-step the cold entirely or throw it off quickly. So Granny wears no flannels any more .... For your own sake, make sure of getting the genuine! Emphasize GROVE'S when asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

GROVE'S BROMO QUININE LAXATIVE TABLETS

A PECULIARITY of influenza is that its toxins upset the digestive system.

Too much "dosing," especially in the case of children still further disturbs the digestion, and should be avoided except on advice of a physician.

Vicks Vapo-Rub is especially valuable because it is applied externally, and so can be used freely without upsetting the most delicate digestion.

--avoid "dosing"

FLU

How best to use Vicks VapoRub

1. As A Preventive

Several times a day, insert Vicks up the nostrils, also melt a little night and morning in a bowl of boiling water and inhale the steaming medicated vapors.

2. If a Cold Starts

If possible, go home and go to bed. Apply not wet towels over throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thickly and cover with warm flannel.

Leave the bed-covering loose, so that the vapors, released by the body-warmth, may be freely inhaled. At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice.

Repeat this treatment every four hours, eat lightly, and stay in bed until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body to throw off the cold more quickly.

3. After a Flu Attack

Physicians advise that the chief danger in this epidemic is after Influenza. Then, more than ever, colds attacking the weakened system may lead to bronchitis, sinus-trouble or pneumonia. This is especially true of children or old folks.

Heed even the slightest cold as a danger signal and treat it promptly without "dosing."

1918-And Now

In the present epidemic as in 1918, Vicks is proving to be the family standby in millions of homes. In spite of increased equipment it is again necessary to run the laboratories night and day.

JUMP OF 9 PER CENT IN CALL MONEY

RATE TURNED MARKET REACTIONARY

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—A jump to 9 per cent. in the call loan rate, coming at this time of greater sensitiveness to the credit situation, turned the stock market sharply reactionary today Although constructive operations made some headway in the morning, most of the gains were more than cancelled in the afternoon, and a long list of pivotal issues closed from 3 to 17 1-2 points lower.

Call money renewed at 7 per cent. but moved up to 9 as the banks called about $30,000,000 in loans to meet mid month requirements and adjust their positions at the federal reserve. Bankers said that the quick response of the loan rate to this moderate withdrawal of funds illustrated the rather touchy situation that has arisen with the sharp reduction in time loans and increasing tendency to finance the market with day to day borrowings under present conditions. bankers state that a 12 per cent. call loan rate is likely over any month end.

The bullish operations in the morning were largely based on the statement of conditions of the federal reserve members banks, issued last night, disclosing a reduction of about $275,000,000 in reserve bank borrowings. The sharp rise in call money, however, indicated that the improvement in the banks' condition had been over-estimated, and that the present supply of surplus funds is inadequate to finance any sustained bull movement.

The days business news was rather meagre. Reports that steel mill activity has experienced a slight setback caused something of a shock, following upon the heels of numerous brilliant descriptions of the condition of the industry. There was a tendency to regard the recession as merely temporary, however, and further railway equipment orders indicated that steel requirements are holding at a fairly high level.

The violent contortions of the stock of Ford of Canada on the curb market, recalling the sharp breaks in Bancitaly and Canadian Marconi which precede the drastic breaks on the stock market of last June and last December, had an unsettling effect upon speculative sentiment.

The high priced issues broke sharply in the late trading. Wright Aero sold down 21 points and closed 17 1-2 off. Allied Chemical lost 13, Case Threshing and National Bellas Hess each 11. Philadelphia Co. dropped 15 points in a small turnover. Such important issues as American Can, Kennecott Copper, General Motors, General Electric, Montgomery Ward, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, and U. S. Steel closed 2 to 4 points off. Radio sold off 8 1-2 points, but reduced its loss to 4 at the close.

Otis Elevator was a strong point, climbing more than 21 points to a record price at 324 1-4. Communications issues encountered good buying for a time. American Telephone again crossing the 200-mark in an extreme gain of more than 5 points. International Telephone touched a new high at 216, but closed at 211, off nearly 3 points. Western Union made a 5-point gain but lost most of it.

Industrial Rayon, in which W. C. Durant is said to be heavily interested, moved up about 7 points, and American Radiator made a like gain, only to lose more than half of it. Kreuger and Toll was accumulated in considerable volume, but closed off fractionally. Hahn Department Stores improved on reports of pending acquisition of a New York store. Although coppers were generally heavy, Chile was well bought.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—A violent advance of 160 points in Ford of Canada, all but 5 points of which was lost, and a brisk demand for Standard Oil of Indiana, which advanced nearly 9 points to 99 3-4, the highest price in seven years, divided speculative interest in today's irregularly lower curb market. Prices showed a tendency to move upward in the early trading but the advance in call money from 7 to 8 and thence to 9 per cent, cast a damper on bullish enthusiasm and led to heavy selling for both accounts in the afternoon.

The sensational rise in Ford of Canada to a new high record at $90 was based on wild rumors of a 100 for 1 stock split-up, large earnings last year and accumulation of stock by the Ford interests, but the stock broke to 710 on publication of an official statement that these stories were without foundation, closing at 735 for a net gain of 5 points. Ford Limited dropped back more than a point, and heaviness cropped out in Auburn and Stutz Motors.

Competitive buying of Standard Oil of Indiana stock by the Stewart and Rockefeller interests in their battle for control of the company was the generally accepted explanation for the rise in Standard Oil of Indiana, although the company also is reported to have set a new high record in earnings last year. Other oils were mixed. Imperial and a few minor issues pointing upward while Gulf, Vacuum and Humble lost ground.

Public utilities also lacked a uniform trend. American Superpower issues were in brisk demand, the A stock soaring nearly 10 points to a new high record at 83 while the B crossed 31 for the first time. Cities Service changed hands in large volume and Tampa Electric sold at the best price of the year but Electric Bond & Share, Electric Investors and some of the other recent favorites fell back 1 to 3 points.

Most of the aviation issues drifted lower although with the exception of Aviation Corporation of America, which fell back more than 3 points, most of the losses were held to fractions. Aluminum Co. of America, Firestone Tire, Libby Owens Sheet Glass, New Jersey Zinc, J. C. Penney and Tubize Artificial Silk, for which there is a rather thin market, dropped 3 to 23 points.

Trans Lux Pictures touched a new high at 12 on a heavy turnover but lost its gain and closed nearly a point lower. Thompson Products A ran up 8 points to a new top at 69 3-4 and then fell back to 64.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre Tonight

The American Legion Follies to be presented at the Palace theatre tonight will surely offer the best and latest in songs and dances. The cast is composed of the most popular and talented young folks in this vicinity and the choruses, likewise the first part will be of the minstrel type and the second part will be more on the style of condensed musical comedy, snappy songs and peppy dances and the gowns and wraps will be of the very newest styles.

The American Legion committee are working very hard to make this play the best that they ever put on. The chairman of the talent committee, Wm. Dougherty, scoured the town for talent, and he got the best. The Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion will be chaperones, Mrs. Wm. R. Dennison will be the chairman and her committee will be as follows: Mrs. Wm. R. Dennison, chairman, Mrs. Wm. F. Bogue, Mrs. John Bennett, Mrs. Herman A. Bruckner, Mrs. John B. Ont, Mrs. Harold Bennett, Mrs. Harlow Bogue.

Breed Theatre

Romance, thrills and adventures in the life of a newsreel cameraman make "The News Parade," the Fox picture feature Nick Stuart and Sally Phipps, a fast-moving entertainment. It will open at the Breed theatre today as the main attraction of a double feature bill.

The exciting adventures of a young newsreel cameraman attempting to film a camera-shy millionaire. In pursuing his elusive subject, he finds a plot to kidnap the old man. By capturing the kidnappers, he saves the capitalist and wins his charming daughter.

Many laughable experiences of cameramen trying to photograph Mr. Morgan, the elder Rockefeller and other shy Wall street magnates have been used in the picture.

A thirteen year old boy elevated to stardom after less than a year in moving pictures!

That's the history of the screen career of Buzz Barton, the only juvenile western star in pictures, now appearing in "The Boy Rider," FBO picture, at the Breed theatre.

The freckle-faced Buzz started playing small juvenile parts with Jack Perrin, western player. After seven pictures with Perrin, Buzz was signed with FBO, and was featured in a picture with Tom Tyler. So clever was his work in that production, and so fearless his riding ability that he was immediately elevated to stardom.

Palace Theatre

Starting tomorrow for three days the Palace will offer their much heralded Winter Carnival show consisting of five big time acts of vaudeville, a smashing comedy afterpiece in which every actor will take part and a fine feature picture.

The vaudeville bill will consist of "Supper Club Revue" a laugh provoking and novel sort of Revuette with a cast of extraordinary comedians who can dish out corking comedy together with songs and dances as you like them.

Another "flash" act on this same bill will be a Max Woods production "Romany Revels" with seven capable artists in a song, dance and musical offering.

Steppe & Pierce will see how many giggles they can turn into hearty laughs in a comedy skit called "The DeBate" and from advance advices we would venture to say that they will succeed.

Ryan and Moore are songsters par excellent and their own inimitable style of song delivery will win you from the start of their classy little act.

The Cycling Martells were seen in New York recently by the Palace manager and he immediately decided that they must form a part of the Palace Carnival show, so through special arrangement with the vaudeville booking agency they have been switched from a New York engagement to the Palace for this last half.

At the conclusion of the regular five act bill the Palace will stage a comedy afterpiece in which every act on the bill will take part. If you recall the Spring Carnival afterpiece from last April, then nothing more need be said at this time. But if you don't then you can look forward with anticipation to a marvelous entertainment.

On the screen you will see "Broken Barriers," a new and unusual photo-drama with a sterling cast.

Helene Costello stars in the new feature, "Broken Barriers" coming to the Palace theatre on Thursday. Playing opposite her is Gaston Glass and in the supporting cast are Joseph Girard, Frank Beal, Carleton Stockdale and Frank Hagney.

"Broken Barriers" is from the story by Caroline F. Hayward. Much of it has to do with the political machinations of one clique; showing the dominating, powerful political boss of old. Set against him is one of the community's powerful newspapers. The battle between these two strongly entrenched groups furnishes the basis for the play.

Hartford Symphony Orchestra Coming for Segovia Concert

Very pleasing, indeed, is the increasing evidence of keen interest being shown in the coming of Andres Segovia, the great Spanish guitarist, to Slater hall Friday evening. Among the most significant indications of that interest this week is the request received by the committee from the Hartford Symphony orchestra for the reservation of a large block of seats at the concert for its members. Mr. Segovia has not yet given a recital in Hartford and this group of music-lovers and producers, realizing the opportunity that his coming to Norwich offers the state, have been very anxious to take advantage of it.

It is not alone to that part of the musical public who produce music, however, that Mr. Segovia's programs make extraordinary appeal but to that other half of music-lovers, those who only appreciate it, as well. He plays much music of Bach, Handel, Haydan and other composers whose names are not usually associated with the guitar and with them all proves the instrument of his choice an entirely worthy one for the medium of interpretation of those great compositions. Whether with music from such as these, the works of Spanish or modern French composers, or merely "a piece for the guitar" his playing radiates beauty, an indescribable magic and, the feeling and touch of a rare artist. See adv. for particulars.

Conn. College Concert

Two instruments of great antiquity used in the concerts of the Society of Ancient Instruments, founded by Henri Casadesus, and scheduled to appear in New London under the auspices of Connecticut college next Thursday evening are the viola da gamba and quinton. The former is the predecessor of the modern cello. Because of its many strings (six to seven, sometimes with an additional set of sympathetic strings like the viola d'amore) and its relative ease, it continued in vogue longer than the other forms of the viol family. It is a cross between the tenor violin and cello but with a weaker voice than either. Bach was the last of the strong writers to hold to it, for it ceased to be a virtuoso instrument prior to 1600 and became obsolete in Italy much earlier than in Germany, France and England. Gambas were of several sizes, therefore formed a family of their own. It was the favorite instrument of musical epicures of the 18th century and its disuse, as with others of the viol group, was due primarily to the fact that they added little to existing means of producing mass musical sound being chiefly employed for solos.

The extinction of the ancient viols is to be regretted inasmuch as they have a distinct character totally absent from instruments of more recent date. Certainly the old-time music written for them is entirely out of the province of the modern string quartet. The Quinton is a small treble viol with a sweet and dulcet tone, soft and resonant and was a fashionable instrument for ladies of quality. As the fingering and tuning obviated the necessity of employing the fourth finger, it is easily played by small hands. The quinton completes the ensemble of five instruments, the others being the viola d'amore, viola da gamba, bass viol and harpsichord, a combination that presents the music for the past centuries even more artistically and more delightfully than the players of those times could; for this little company of artists possesses a maximum of skill, knowledge and ability rarely, if ever, evident in the concerts of antiquity.

FARMERS' TAX MONEY USED TO IMPROVE COUNTRY LIFE

Farm taxes have increased nearly 160 per cent in the last 15 years, whereas land values are now approximately 20 per cent higher than in 1913, reports the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States department of agriculture. In an analysis of what becomes of farmers' tax money.

Most farmers, the bureau says, do not pay any direct taxes to the federal government, and are little affected by changes in the federal income tax. They pay taxes on their real estate, and in most cases on personal property to the local county or township treasurer. They pay license fees on their automobiles, and a tax on each gallon of gasoline they buy, unless they live in one of the three states where no such tax is levied. In some states they pay a small poll tax, and in a few states a small amount of state income tax is paid by farmers.

Most of the direct taxes that a farmer pays, says the report, are based on his land and buildings and on his automobile; he undoubtedly pays other taxes in the price of goods that he purchases, but their amounts and kind are matters of dispute.

The first item of expense in the average community is the school from one-third to one-half of all public money spent going into schools. Roads probably account for about a fourth of the total. The salaries and expenses of local and county officers are a small part of the total expenditures and finally there is the amount that goes to maintain the state government.

There are several reasons why both schools and roads cost more now than they did 15 years ago, says the bureau. In the first place all prices have risen, so that if we were only getting the same amount of schools and the same kinds of roads now that we had in 1913 their cost would be higher. The number of children attending school has increased by over one-third, due partly to the fact that the states have been raising the ages of children covered by compulsory school laws, and partly because parents want their children to receive more education.

The average length of the school term has been increasing. More children are going to high schools than formerly and the education of a high school student costs over twice as much as that of one in grammar school. All of these items have been factors in calling for more money for education. Every effort has been made also to raise the quality of education, and with such changes have come increased salaries.

Much the same story is true of increased expenditures for roads. Labor and materials cost more. We are building vastly better roads, and giving them much harder usage. It costs more to maintain them.

Taxes have gone up partly because of the general rise in the price level and partly because the average community wants things which require more and more taxes to buy.

OAK TREES FAVORED FOR ROADSIDE

Oak trees, of which there are species native to nearly all parts of the country, are more generally used for roadside planting than any other kind of tree, says the bureau of public roads of the United States deartment of agriculture.

Maples are next in importance for a large part of the country, but as the most-used species are not well adapted for the purpose, the selection must be carefully made.

For the cooler dry regions the most promising trees are the green ash, common locust, hackberry, thornless honey-locust, and poplars, with boxelder, willows, and poplars for the extremes of cold and drought.

In warm, dry climates the eucalyptus, or gums, the palms, the Jerusalem thorn, and the mesquite are good.

Only thrifty, vigorous trees

STORM HAS SLIGHT EFFECT ON TRAFFIC AND TRAVEL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 15—The snow fall of today provided pleasure only for the kiddies and they made the most of the first real good fall of the winter. About an inch fell and it was wet enough to pack quickly so that on about every hill in the city children were amusing themselves coasting from noon until late tonight. The snowfall resulted in only a slight and temporary interruption of trolley traffic, this occurring during the early forenoon. Otherwise the cars were operated upon schedule. The busses to the suburban towns also made trips practically according to schedule. Trains on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad were but a few minutes behind and practically all of the trains delayed were those arriving in New London from Boston.

Guarding Against the FLU

Any cold can mean the flu; the surest way to avoid flu is to avoid colds.

To avoid coming down with a cold make prompt use of Bayer Aspirin.

Don't wait to see if that first sneeze or cough is going to be a cold. Take Bayer Aspirin at the first sign of any cold, and be safe.

And whatever you do, don't neglect a sore throat these days; gargle with Bayer Aspirin and remove the infection.

Guard against the flu by guarding against the colds that make you susceptible to the flu germs that lurk in crowded and poorly ventilated places.

De Soto

Multum pro parvo

EAGERLY BOUGHT . . because of its greater value

The motoring public has found something in the new De Soto Six that sets it completely apart from others in its field.

It is not surprising that a car so beautiful, so comfortable, so powerful and responsive, and so safe and easy to drive should find a ready market.

But it is significant that even such a car should set a new sales record for the industry during the first five months of its existence.

The answer must lie in a widespread public conviction that the genius and resources of Chrysler confer upon De Soto a standard of value that is unmatched by any car of comparable price.

Faeton, $845; Roadster Espanol, $845; Sedan Coche, $845; Cupe Business, $845; Sedan, $885; Cupe de Lujo, $885; Sedan de Lujo, $955. All prices at factory.

Doctor Found Women And Children Sick More Often Than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice, he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and placed it on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a public success as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us it helped when everything else failed.

W. B. Caldwell M.D.

AT AGE 83

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, its mild gentle action is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

ST. NICHOLAS CHURCH HOLDS CHRISTMAS EXERCISES

The St. Nicholas Orthodox church and Sunday school held their Christmas tree exercises at Union hall Saturday evening with 150 children and their parents attending. The children gave pieces relating to Christmas and sang several Christmas carols. The Russian choir, under the direction of Prof. Nicholas Stenchewko rendered several new Russian songs in a very pleasing manner. Santa Claus made his appearance in the hall at 9 o'clock and distributed presents to the Sunday school children from a beautiful Christmas tree, which was in the center of the hall, prettily decorated with gala colors and electric lights. The hall was very artistically decorated with streamers of evergreen and laurel. After the exercises dancing was enjoyed until midnight. Saturday was Baptism day in the Russian church with a large number of adults and children being enrolled. The exercises were opened by a procession of the parishioners headed by the pastor, Rev. V. V. Richloff, assisted by Rev. Father Stephen. The Russian Christmas is on January 7th and it is the only church today that has kept to the old calendar. Rev. Richloff delivered a sermon relating to the Christmas season in which he said in part that Christmas was a time that peace should be made with all the world and its people, especially to God, to church and to our country, the United States and Russia. Friendly relations should exist between members of the families of the parish instead of evil feelings toward each other. Christmas season was a time for high prayer, thanking God for the good favors he saw fit to bestow upon our families, church and government the past year and that he will continue to send his blessings the coming year. In closing, Rev. Richloff wished his large congregation which consisted of people from New London, Montville, Westerly, Jewett City, Putnam, Plainfield, Providence and Arctic, R. I., a blessed and merry Christmas. Rev. Stephen also made pleasing remarks, praising the Russian people for the advancement they have made since they had built their church and rectory on Convent avenue. He also said that they should feel proud of the edifice that they had made a place for God to dwell in.

Miss May Quinn has returned to Hartford after spending a few days with relatives in Greeneville.

TRANSLATION OF 1517 BOOK IS GIVEN THE OTIS LIBRARY

There has been placed among new books at the Otis library a most remarkable volume, The Compendium Universitatis Parisiensis, Robert Goulet, a. d. 1517. It is the gift of Dr. James Hosmer Penniman of Philadelphia, alumnus of Norwich Free Academy, and will be of great interest to all teachers.

The title page in red and black indicates how such a rare book can be put into the hands of local readers: "Compendium on the Magnificence, Dignity and Excellence of the University of Paris in the year of grace 1517. Lately done into English by Robert Belle Burke for Josiah Hamar Penniman, Provost of the University of Pennsylvania: and to be sold by the University of Pennsylvania Press in Philadelphia and in London by the Oxford University Press. MCMXXVIII."

The foreword by Dr. Burke explains that the volume is an annotated translation of the Compendium of Robert Goulet descriptive of the University of Paris. Rashdall in his work entitled The Universities of Europe in the Middle Ages makes the following statement in regard to this Compendium: The earliest historical account of the University of Paris is a little black letter quarto by Robertus Goulet (Compendium recenter editum multiplici Paris. Univ. Magnificetia, Parisiis, 1517), which is more valuable as a contemporary sketch of the university than for its historical information. The Allgemeines Gelehrten Lexicon of Jocher contains a brief account of the author of The Compendium.

The Compendium of Goulet is frequently mentioned in the Dictionary of Medieval and Law Latin of Du Cange.

The translation was made at the request of Dr. Josiah H. Penniman. Professor Burke also acknowledges the courtesy of Dr. Andrew Keogh, librarian at Yale, for permission to use the copy of The Compendium which is one of the treasures of the Penniman Memorial library at Yale university.

The volume is dedicated "To James Hosmer Penniman, B. A. Yale, 1884; Litt. D. Franklin and Marshall, 1914; Litt. D. University of Pennsylvania, 1918. With affection and respect, and in grateful recognition of his generous and untiring devotion to the cause of education. A teacher of long and inspiring service, a scholar and author of wide learning, a student of the History of Education, and of American History, especially as it relates to the life and influence of George Washington, he has manifested his filial devotion and his desire to foster research in the field of education by establishing, in honor of his parents, memorial libraries of education in the University of Pennsylvania, Yale University and Brown University."

The faithful reproduction of two pages of the celebrated Compendium precedes a copy of the license granted Toussains Denis, bookseller, dwelling in Paris, by Monseigneur the Civil Lieutenant, to sell and distribute the book. All merchants, printers, booksellers and others were warned for three years to come not to "print or sell, other copies than those of the aforesaid Toussains under a fine of ten pounds."

The book contains an index or table of the present compendium, a statement on how the School of Paris has been rendered very famous in various ways; there is a very devout prayer to the sainted Thomas Aquinas to be said by every loyal student before he studies, reads or preaches. There is much that is historical relating to the faculty, the nation, the officers of the university, hours for study and relaxation, lectures and disputations, books "for the more ignorant and youthful pupils," precepts and poems.

This edition of the Compendium is the first known English translation and consists of 1,000 copies, printed on rag paper, and numbered 1 to 1,000. The copy given the Otis library by Dr Penniman is No. 43. While essentially practical, the volume is a fine example of the book-maker's art.

NORWICH TOWN EVENING STORY HOUR SUNDAY FEATURE AT METHODIST CH.

"A Mean Hard Job" was the theme and Isaiah 40:31, "But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength," was the text of the sermon given at the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning by the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter. The junior choir under the direction of Mrs. Lewis Aldrich sang the anthem "God Is Calling Yet." Mrs. Potter told a children's story, "Loving Like Jesus" was the topic at the C. E. meeting and the leader was Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter.

At the evening service, in place of the usual sermon there was a story hour given by Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter. Since Mrs. Potter began the children's story as a part of the morning service many have expressed appreciation of this feature and among them were some adults. Therefore this special story hour was arranged particularly for the adults. Among the stories told by Mrs. Potter were "Martin the Old Shoemaker," by Count Leo Tolstoy; "The Love of a Mother," "The Sphinx" and "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes," by Eccleston; "For Remembrance" and "Two Ways," by Richards. Virginia Ward played a number of selections.

HOME CHAPTER RE-ELECTS MOST OF ITS OFFICERS

At the January meeting of Home chapter of the King's Daughters, Monday afternoon at Johnson Home, the leader, Mrs. William E. Manning, presided. She read her annual report. All other reports covering the past year's work, were read by the several officers and committees. The meeting, which opened with singing, Scripture reading and prayer, had for its study lesson the fifth chapter of Exodus. At the meeting of the chapter in February, the sixth chapter of Exodus is to be considered. A profit exceeding $50 on the recent food sale by Home chapter, was reported by the efficient chairman, Mrs. Edmund A. Prentice. The report of the Christmas gift committee, Mrs. John Olsen, chairman, noted that to each member of the Johnson Home a crisp $1 bill encased in an attractive folder was presented. The members of the Home family very much appreciate this gift, which has been the custom of Home chapter for several years. When presenting this gift, the committee called on each member in her room.

In recognition of the faithful services as chairman of the membership committee, Mrs. William R. Balcom, who has resigned after 15 years, Mrs. Charles Cross, in behalf of the chapter, presented a leather pouch handbag to Mrs. Balcom. Mrs. John Olsen entertained with a piano solo, and following the closing exercises, the retiring chairman of the entertainment committee, Mrs. Edmund A. Prentice, assisted by other members, served cake and coffee. The following officers were elected, many being re-elected: Leader, Mrs. William E. Manning; vice-leader, Mrs. Charles Cross; recording secretary, Mrs. Earle Christman; treasurer, Mrs. Herbert R. Branche; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Fred N. Clark; chairman membership committee, Mrs. Edmund A. Prentice, to succeed Mrs. William R. Balcom; flower committee, Mrs. James Gilmore, chairman; entertainment committee, Mrs. David M. Dean, chairman; Silver Cross magazine, Miss Maria Briggs, chairman; first directress of work committee, Mrs. William H. Whiteman. For 1929, the auditors are Edmund A. Prentice and Earl H. Christman.

The nominating committee was Mrs. Walter Cowan, Mrs. Flora Noyes and Mrs. Homer Gager.

Following is the annual report of the leader, Mrs. W. E. Manning:

We held ten meetings at the customary time and place. At five of them there was a short program and at our anniversary several members gave a very good playlet. The Bible lessons have not been the success we wish they were, but we continue them and hope for much improvement. Our membership has decreased, as only two new members have been admitted, while several have gone on to their eternal home. Through the efforts of our vry efficient entertainment committee we have earned considerable money and have spent most of it in the Master's service. Our sewing society has done a great deal of work and is in a flourishing condition. A very good representation of members went to the Almshouse in April, and the Near East Relief collection went over the top.

To keep the chapter up to the standard we shall have to buckle down to work and make the meetings more interesting, bring in new members, put new pep into our work. May we each put forth our best effort to make 1929 an excellent year.

Much might be written of this car's new Monopiece Body; its new beauty, new luxury, and new power; the score or more of important engineering betterments it introduces

But the marrow and substance of it all is summed up in a single sentence:

Walter P. Chrysler inspired the new Dodge Brothers Six; the great Dodge Brothers organization built it.

AL. SMITH MOVES TO MEET DEM. DEFICIT OF $1,500,000

Defeated Democratic Presidential Candidate Appeals to the Rank and File to Help Raise the Fund—Appeal Was Made Over Coast-to-Coast Radio Hook-Up—Mr. Smith's Contribution Will Be Income From Book of His Campaign Speeches, For Which, He Said, He Had Had Several Offers From Publishers.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York and defeated democratic presidential candidate, appealed to the rank and file of the democratic party by radio tonight to help raise the $1,500,000 deficit that stands as an aftermath of the "happy warrior's defeat." He spoke over a coast-to-coast hookup of 20 stations under the auspices of the National committee.

Mr. Smith announced that his contribution would be the gift to the democratic committee of his campaign speeches, for which he said he had had several offers from publishers. A bound copy of the speeches, illustrated with photographs taken on his campaign tours and published by the National committee with no profit for the former governor, will be sent to each contributor who sends in $2 or more.

In making his appeal for funds, the former governor seconded the recent assertions of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt that the democratic party needed more consistent national publicity between campaigns.

"Immediately following every national election," he said, "there is always apparent a general lack of interest in the welfare of our party. It has been the habit of the democratic party to function only six months in every four years. This is demonstrated by the fact that no attempt was made to liquidate the deficit left from the national campaign of 1924 until the spring of 1928. When the democratic party finds itself facing a national convention, it begins to shop around the country for a place likely to put up the most money towards the liquidation of the deficit.

"More than that, it has been the custom right along to have the party deficit taken care of by a comparatively small group of people, and usually the small group has an interest in some particular candidate. This I hold to be an unwholesome condition for any political party. It tends to place too much power exactly where it should not be—in the hands of the few."

Asserting that he personally "would regret the necessity of asking any small group of people to meet such a deficit," the former governor observed that "there must be a great many people who can afford to send the national committee $100—a great many could afford $50—a great many more $10 or even $5."

He urged that the democratic party be a progressive, militant party and pointed out the need of a minority party under a system of government such as that of the United States.

"The dark chapters of American history from 1921 to 1924 are an indication of what can take place in the government of our country in the absence of an active minority party," he said. "Were it not for the vigilance of the democrats and progressives in congress, the whole shameful story of the oil leases might never have been told."

A political party, he asserted, "that polls nearly 16 million popular votes should be a tremendous factor in the politics of the country, and the strength and force of that great body should not be lost by failure to maintain an organization which would enable them to make themselves heard and felt in the affairs of our nation."

HOOVER TO DEAL WITH PROHIBITION PROBLEM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—A far-reaching investigation of all phases of prohibition is planned by President-elect Hoover early in his administration. His views were outlined today to prominent wet and dry leaders in the senate, who were told that he proposed to appoint a nonpartisan commission to conduct an inquiry and make such recommendations as it might deem advisable.

The scope of the investigation would be almost unlimited, with the commission carefully studying the eighteenth act itself to determine whether the difficulties in enforcement are inherent in that law.

News of this intention of the president-elect constituted the principal developments in the ninth day of his conferences here with party leaders, although many other subjects besides prohibition came under discussion.

After a luncheon conference with the next chief executive, Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, republican leader in the house, said there was no change in the plan to limit the special session to enactment of farm relief and tariff revision. He disagreed with Representative Newton, republican, Minnesota, that inland waterway development should be taken up at that session.

While recognizing this development as part of the whole general farm relief program Mr. Tilson said this could be taken care of at the regular session.

GRADE CROSSINGS TOPIC OF ROAD BUILDERS' ASS'N

CLEVELAND, Jan. 16—(AP)—Taking into consideration the insurmountable difficulties in preventing grade crossing accidents, which take a heavy toll of motorists' lives, E. W. James of the United States bureau of roads outlined a plan for grade crossing elimination at the constructors' session of the annual convention of the American Road Builders' association here today.

James said it is impossible to eliminate all grades, or to make trains or motorists stop at crossings.

A definite classification of crossings, based upon the relative value to the traveling public in their elimination. The classification would be based on a complete census at each crossing of the automobiles and trains that pass.

A definite annual program by each state and railroad for the elimination of certain grade crossings of the highest classification.

Restriction of the authority to create new grade crossings. With reference to this he said, "The record of grade crossings in existence shows that the number is actually increasing in spite of a constant and growing program of elimination."

A definite progressive program in each state for installing safety warning devices rigidly standardized.

The readjustment between the public and railroads of the share of cost of elimination and of the installation of safety devices.

STAY IN FLORIDA NO VACATION FOR EDISON

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 16—(AP)—Other folks may come to Florida for a winter vacation, but not Thomas Alva Edison, who at almost 82 years of age will resume work at Fort Myers tomorrow.

The inventor, eager to arrive at his home and scene of his experiments with rubber producing plants, received newspapermen for a brief period as his train stopped here today.

"I'll start work tomorrow," he said simply, with a twinkle as he puffed on a long black cigar. He told one impertinent questioner that he expected to live "a few years more."

Interviewers noted the electrical wizard appeared heavier than when on his last visit to Florida. He has gained 20 pounds.

"He began picking up when he had his teeth taken out," Mrs. Edison explained. "His teeth gave him trouble for years so he decided to get rid of them. He did and he's feeling better."

Mr. Edison said he would be too busy to go to Miami to see President-elect Hoover. "If Mr. Hoover wants to see me, he'll have to come to Fort Myers," he announced.

NEGOTIATORS FOR SOLUTION OF THE ROMAN QUESTION

ROME, Jan. 16—(AP)—It was revealed today that Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, was instructed by Pope Pius to direct all negotiations for solution of the Roman question and that indeed the negotiations were conducted according to the cardinal's plans by Monsignor Borgongini Duca, secretary of extraordinary affairs at the Vatican, and Monsignor Pacelli.

The fundamental basis of discussion between the negotiators of the agreement for solution of the long-pending problem was a project for conciliation which Cardinal Gasparri drew up as long ago as 1918 when it was submitted to the then Premier Orlando during the Paris peace conference.

During the present negotiations Cardinal Gasparri has been most useful to both parties especially because of his vast and profound judicial knowledge. Vatican circles therefore consider that if the solution of the Roman question is definitely accepted by the pope and Premier Mussolini, it will represent a great victory for the cardinal who will then rank next to Cardinal Consalvi, who concluded the concordat with Napoleon in 1801, as among the most celebrated of the papal diplomats.

INSANITY DEFENSE BEGUN IN THE HARSH MURDER TRIAL

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 16—(AP)—An array of alienists today began the insanity defense of George R. Harsh, former college student, by telling a jury that he could not resist the impulse to commit the crime of murder and robbery charged to him.

The specialists began their story after the state had abruptly rested the trial of the scion of a wealthy Milwaukee family was well into its secondary. So swiftly did state witnesses move in and out of the courtroom, that the defense took a tenminute recess before launching into a figurative x-ray of Harsh's body and mind.

One of the alienists testifying today was Dr. George R. Carhart of Milwaukee, physician and neighbor of the Harsh family for 20 years, and the other Dr. Frank Eskridge, Atlanta nerve specialist. They agreed Harsh had an inferiority complex, and Dr. Eskridge said the youth was a psychopath, "totally incapable of controlling his impulses."

They asserted he did not appreciate the enormity of the crime of slaying Willard Smith, 22-year-old drug clerk, during a holdup last Oct. 16, as charged.

"BLUE SKY" LAW TO BE INTRODUCED IN HOUSE

HARTFORD, Jan. 16—(AP)—The bank commissioner, insurance commissioner and tax commissioner, would constitute a state board to control the sale of securities in Connecticut and the licensing of brokers and securities salesmen under the terms of a fraudulent securities act or "blue sky" law which will be introduced in the house tomorrow morning by Representative Kenneth F. Cramer, of Wethersfield. The bill provides machinery by which the commission can secure sworn statements concerning securities to be sold in this state and provides "the commission may issue and publish warnings to the public."

HOUSE VOTES [illegible] JUDGE FO[illegible] CONNECTICUT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—The bill providing for an additional judge for the federal court for the Second circuit, which includes Connecticut, passed the house today.

FORFEITS MEMBERSHIP IN AMERICAN BAR ASS'N

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 16—(AP)—Membership of Carlos S. Hardy, one of two judges of the criminal court of Los Angeles county, Calif., in the American Bar association, was declared forfeited today by the association's executive committee. The action was taken after a four hour executive session and was declared to be the first such disciplinary action by the association.

An official statement issued by the committee announced Judge Hardy's membership had been forfeited for violation of three of the association's canons of judicial ethics and one of the canons of professional ethics.

The professional canon refers to upholding the honor and maintaining the dignity of the legal profession.

The first citation for violation of judicial canons was for alleged conduct that would "justify impression that any person could influence him or unduly enjoy his favor." The second referred to alleged violation of the canon stating that members should not incur obligations, pecuniary or otherwise, which would in any way interfere or appear to interfere with devotion to the expeditious and proper administration of official functions. The third citation was for alleged acceptance of presents or favors from litigants or from others whose interests were likely to be submitted to him for judgment.

BODIES OF YOUNG COUPLE FOUND IN AUTOMOBILE

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 16—(AP)—The bodies of a boy and girl, each 16 years old, were found in a small closed automobile along a country road here today, and authorities expressed a belief they were victims of carbon monoxide poisoning, the intense cold or a combination of the two elements. The couple, Elizabeth Ayers and Edward Price, both of Elm Grove, a suburb, were last seen alive when they went for a ride last night.

Deputy sheriffs who investigated said they found no evidence of foul play, except a small discolored spot on the car which might have been made by blood. They added, however, that there were no marks of violence on the bodies. The ignition switch of the car was turned off when the bodies were found and it was suggested they might have stopped the motor when partly overcome by fumes and died from the cold before they revived.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—Nicholas H. Putnam, 20, a descendant of the Revolutionary general, Israel Putnam, wa committed to the Bloomingdale asylum in White Plains, N. Y., today for treatment of mental disorders under an order of State Supreme Court Justice Thomas Churchill.

Application for the commitment was made by Dr. Samuel Feign of Bellevue hospital, where Putnam was taken last week by his brother, Carleton, for observation.

WATERTOWN, Mass., Jan. 16—(AP)—Relatives of Mrs. Helen Ruth, wife of Babe Ruth, issued a statement through counsel today that "there is no breach between them and the Babe and none is expected."

Mrs. Ruth lost her life last Friday night in a fire at the home of Dr. Edward H. Kinder, Boston dentist, where she had lived for more than a year and had been known to neighbors as Mrs. Kinder. When it was discovered that she was the wife of the champion home run hitter an investigation into the circumstances of her death was begun.

HERMIT OF THOMPSONVILLE FOUND DEAD IN HIS BED

THOMPSONVILLE, Jan. 16—(AP)—The hermit of Thompsonville is dead.

Frank D. Howlett, a curiosity here since the day 25 years ago he entered a shack on the outskirts of the town and established himself in it, was found dead in bed this afternoon by a neighbor who had gone to the hut to bring him food and newspapers. He had not been seen since Sunday.

It had generally been believed that Howlett, who worked from time to time as a farmhand, was poor, but bank books showing deposits of $5,000 in his name were found near the body.

Dr. Frank F. Simonton, medical examiner, said death was due to heart disease.

SUSPENDED EMPLOYES TO ASK FOR HEARINGS

LOWELL, Mass., Jan. 16—(AP)—Fifteen of the 17 clerks and inspectors suspended from the municipal service last Saturday by Mayor Thomas H. Braden, on grounds of economy, had filed formal petitions for hearings with their department heads when the legal time limit for filing such applications expired late today.

The first of the hearings will be held tomorrow morning.

President Will Sign Kellogg Treaty Today

Cabinet Members and Senators Will Attend Ceremony on East Wing of the White House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—A white house ceremony was arranged today by President Coolidge for his formal signing at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning of the document of ratification of the Kellogg treaty pledging the nations of the world to renounce war.

Members of the senate who yesterday ratified the treaty by a vote of 85 to 1 were invited to attend by Mr. Coolidge who also will have with him the members of the cabinet. The ceremony will be held in the east room of the white house.

Vice-President Dawes announced to the senate this afternoon that the president had requested him to extend the senators an invitation to be present at the signing of the document.

In the wake of the drawn-out fight in the senate over an interpretative declaration on the treaty there arose some speculation today as to whether the interpretative report on the treaty finally submitted by the foreign relations committee had not spread on the record a new and stricter construction.

Chairman Borah of the committee who drafted the report, which was not voted upon, took the position that the report limited America's right to interfere in South American affairs only in the question of self-defense. It was further contended by some that this is a stricter construction than was adhered to by the Coolidge administration in its Nicaraguan policy.

The committee report stated that "the United States regards the Monroe Doctrine as a part of its national security and defense." Inasmuch as the committee report was accepted by those demanding an interpretation of the treaty as an authoritative construction upon the treaty, there was some speculation as to whether those in doubt about its interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine would seek modification of the report in this respect.

However, Senator Bingham, republican, of Connecticut, one of the group demanding the committee report on the treaty, expressed the view that no modification of the report was necessary. He took the position that the interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine was a question solely for the president and said he did not believe the committee report would or could limit the chief executive in the exercise of his duties under it.

NEW BRITAIN, Jan. 16—(AP)—Henry P. Roche, judge of city and police courts, died late tonight, a victim of influenza. He was graduated from Dartmouth college in 1866.

Australia No Place For Drunken Drivers

Motorist is Liable to Be Hanged if He Kills a Person While Under the Influence of Liquor.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 16—(AP)—Australia, although without a prohibition statute, has avoided the drunken driver problem by making the penalties so strict that motorists fear to incur them, according to Charles W. Lloyd, of Adelaide, Australia, who is here to study highway and traffic questions at the annual convention of the American Road Builders' association.

A motorist is liable to be hanged if he kills a person while under the influence of liquor, Lloyd said. Or if the driver is convicted only of manslaughter in such cases, he is subject to eight to ten years imprisonment.

Knocking another person unconscious in traffic accidents is punishable by two to four years imprisonment if the driver is intoxicated, while the lowest penalty for drunken driving is a fine of $125, six months imprisonment and loss of license.

Lloyd said he found the most perfect system of traffic lights that he has yet seen in America in Toledo, where the street names and an indication of the numbers are worked in with the stop and go signs. Lloyd is representing the South American government at the convention.

EUROPEAN NATIONS WILL RATIFY KELLOGG TREATY

PARIS, Jan. 16—(AP)—European nations which, out of diplomatic courtesy have been waiting for the United States to ratify the Kellogg-Briand pact for the renunciation of war, will make haste to follow that example, in the opinion of diplomatic circles in Paris. Those circles today gave America ample credit for leadership in the move for peace.

France probably will be the first country of the Old World to give the pact the stamp of parliamentary approval.

The satisfaction in French official circles over the action at Washington was all the greater because it was believed that the almost unanimous vote of the United States senate would checkmate the policy credited to Moscow of exploiting the multilateral treaty for soviet political purposes among the Baltic states and in the Balkans.

His wife, Agnes, 21.

John Holmes, 40, his father-in-law of Brentwood Park, N. Y.

Anna Holmes, 18, also of Brentwood Park.

The accident occurred at the Brentwood road crossing near the outskirts of town. State troopers said they believed Candell saw the train but that when he applied the brakes the car slid on the ice-covered road to the tracks.

Holmes was janitor of the high school at Brentwood.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—The grand jury today returned two indictments against Mrs. Maria J. Leslie, former housekeeper of Captain and Mrs. Isaac E. Emerson, of Baltimore, Md., charging her with the larceny of $480,000 worth of jewelry procured by her on the credit of the Emersons from the store of John Wanamaker.

Judge Mancuso issued a bench warrant for Mrs. Leslie's arrest. She was last reported in a Connecticut sanitarium.

COUNCIL HAS DEPOSED GEN. BOOTH AS HEAD OF THE SALVATION ARMY

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES, England, Jan. 16—(AP)—General Bramwell Booth, commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, was adjudicated unfit to continue in that office by the high council of the Army here tonight. The vote was 55 to 8.

One commissioner was absent and not voting because of illness. General Booth needed only 16 votes, twice the number he received, to defeat the motion. A general can only be removed because of unfitness by a three-quarters majority of the council.

The council had sat 14 hours today debating the momentous question with adjournments only for meals. No official reports came from the strictly guarded premises of Sunbury Court, but it was rumored that the argument was at times very heated.

Shortly after 11 p. m., it was understood that a vote had finally been taken. It was midnight, however, before the result was announced.

Generaly William Bramwell Booth succeeded his father General William Booth, the founder of the Army on his death in 1912. He had become an officer in 1874 and from 1880 until he was made general he was chief of staff.

He became ill last spring and was ordered to rest although his condition did not become serious until some months later. The high council of the Army had been in nominal existence for 24 years but had never been called. On November 15 it was summoned for the meeting now in session.

Commander Evangeline Booth, head of the Army in the United States, who previously had refused to obey an order of her brother transferring her from that field, was a leader in seeking his retirement and a broadening of the control of the millions in property of which the general is now virtually sole trustee.

The Army has hitherto been led and controlled almost exclusively by the Booth family. It had been thought possible that if things took a normal course the general might name his wife or his daughter, Commissioner Catherine, as his successor after his death.

From the statement issued to the press last night by General Booth and from other sources it was gathered that before the general would relinquish his office at the command of the council.

GOVT. ASKS PROTECTION FOR THE SMALL ARMS INDUSTRY

Col. Whelen, of the Ordnance Department, Tells House Committee That Any Increase in Duties Would Be Detrimental to the National Defense—Asserted That the Private Manufacturers of Small Arms Must Be Protected if They Are to Continue Employment of Men Trained For Such Work—War Department Would Have to Rely on the Private Manufacturers in Order That Our Men Would Not Go Into Battle Unarmed, as the Russians Did in the Last War.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—The war department took a hand in the tariff making business of the house ways and means committee today, entering a plea on national defense grounds that protection be given private small arms manufacturers.

Lieutenant Colonel Townsend Whelen, of the ordnance department, appearing at the request of the secretary of war, told the committee during hearings on the metals schedule that the government was absolutely dependent on private manufacture of small arms, and any increase in duties, provided they did not raise prices, would "rebound very greatly to the national defense."

Colonel Whelen said private manufacturers made over 95 per cent of the small arms used by the American army in the World war and that the Frankford arsenal at Philadelphia could produce only ten per cent of war requirements. He added it would take a year and a half to convert an industrial plant to manufacture small arms and that the private small arms producers must be protected if they were to continue employment of men trained for such work.

"The more business they have," he declared, "the more trained men they will have. This is just as important as having the plants available."

Colonel Whelen said the army is planning to conduct tests next summer with a new automatic rifle, which if found successful would be used by the army instead of the present Springfield rifle.

The army, he added, also will require new tank, anti-aircraft, and semi-automatic rifles soon and reserves of these will not be available unless the private manufacturers are protected.

"We will have to rely on the private manufacturer," he continued, "in order that our men will not go into battle unarmed as the Russians did in the last war."

Colonel Whelen was one of a large group of witnesses appearing before the committee seeking increases in tariff duties on metals and their byproducts ranging from firearms to razor blades.

Approximately 150 representatives of various metal manufacturing industries had requested to be heard in the three days the committee set aside for work on this schedule. At the end of the day so many remained to testify that the committee arranged for them to appear later whenever time permitted during consideration of other schedules. The wood schedule will be taken up tomorrow and Friday.

Stressing the need for maintenance of the industry for national military preparedness, A. A. Dicke, New York, representing the Remington and 12 other firearms manufacturers, urged an increase of approximately 50 per cent in the present duties on rifles and shotguns valued at more than two dollars apiece. He contended that increased imports, principally from Belgium, made it necessary that a higher tariff be levied against rifles.

Maintenance of the present duty of one cent each and 30 per cent ad valorem on razor blades was urged by H. W. Kenway, Boston, on behalf of the Gillett Safety Razor company. While this compound duty was an equivalent to 185 per cent ad valorem Kenway argued it was required because of growing imports, and higher labor and material costs in this country.

Other increased duties sought by witnesses included such articles as scissors, knives, pliers, pinchers, surgical and scientific instruments, files and rasps.

Herbert Kennedy, New York, an importer, protested against any increase in the 20 per cent duty on cast iron pipe, contending the present law had made competition so strong that consumers have been saved $54,000,000.

PLEA TO INCREASE TARIFF ON LOW-PRICED PISTOLS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—Chicago bootleggers do not use machine guns in their feuds, but a weapon combining the machine gun and automatic pistol, requiring a 45-caliber bullet.

This testimony was given the house ways and means committee today by S. M. Stone, of Hartford, Connecticut, who presented on behalf of small arms manufacturers of Massachusetts and Connecticut a plea for an increase in the tariff on low-priced pistols and revolvers to $2 each and 60 per cent ad valorem. The present duty is $1.25 and 55 per cent.

Stone made the reference to Chicago gangsters to correct, he said, reported that they used real machine guns. The higher tariff on lower priced pistols he argued is to keep out "cheap and dangerous" importations from Spain.

ALLEGED SLAYER NORTHCOTT TO CONDUCT HIS OWN CASE

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Jan. 16—(AP)—Gordon Stewart Northcott today took his life into his own hands. In the face of a court ruling that personal cross examination of witnesses would carry with it personal responsibility of conduct of the remainder of the case, Northcott elected to dispense with his counsel.

In a formal statement to the court, the 22 year old Canadian, charged with murdering two young white boys at his Wineville ranch and of slaying and decapitating an unidentified Mexican lad, declared:

"I have decided from now on to take charge of my own case and defend myself. I think it is the only way the truth can be arrived at."

The young defendant expressed satisfaction with the manner in which his counsel had conducted his case so far and absolved them of responsibility for the result, "whatever it may be." The counsel, including Norbert Savay and A. H. De Tremandon of Los Angeles and McKinely Cameron of Calgary, Alta., withdrew from the case but indicated they would remain, for a time at least, as spectators and as advisors if Northcott should so desire. By Northcott's action, however, the attorneys are barred from participation in the court proceedings.

MARSHAL FOCH REPORTED AS "SLIGHTLY IMPROVED"

PARIS, Jan. 16—(AP)—A "slight improvement" in the condition of Marshal Ferdinand Foch was announced by his doctors as they emerged from their early evening consultation over the stricken generalissimo of the Allied army. They made this announcement in their usual guarded style and the fact that they issued no formal communique and that none of the doctors remained overnight with the patient combined to produce some feeling of encouragement among the marshal's friends.

There was, in fact, open joy and exuberance at the Foch offices in the Invalides building where General Weygand, for once forgetting the formal discipline of the French army, slapped Major L'Hopital on the back and exclaimed:

"That is much better. The great marshal will see it through."

The major, who is the favorite aide-de-camp of the marshal, was beaming as were also the other officers on the staff.

MRS. LEMIRA GOODHUE IS LITTLE MORE COMFORTABLE

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 16—(AP)—Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, mother of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the president, had a "little more comfortable day" today, Miss Miriam Curtis, superintendent of the Dickinson hospital reported tonight. A slightly unfavorable change in the condition of Mrs. Goodhue, who has been a patient at the hospital since December, 1927, was reported yesterday.

Miss Curtis said that "while there has been no improvement today, there has been no decline in her condition which remained unchanged."

FIGHT IN THE SENATE OVER THE CRUISER BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—The senate turned today to the other side of the treaty-cruiser controversy, when advocates of the bill for the construction of 16 new warships took the offensive in an attempt to win for their measure approval similar to that given to the Kellogg treaty to renounce war.

Waiting, however, for the opportunity to make a determined fight against the construction of the proposed 15 cruisers and one aircraft carrier was a formidable group of senators who hope to defeat the bill, or at least materially reduce the number of cruisers to be authorized.

Equally determined to keep the measure intact was Chairman Hale of the senate naval affairs committee who was given support in the opening debate today by a democrat, Senator Swanson, of Virginia, who aided the administration in its fight for ratification of the Kellogg pact.

The cruiser bill has been passed by the house and will go directly to President Coolidge if no senate changes are made. Should the bill be altered, however, a conference would be necessary and there then would be a danger of the conference report being caught in a last-minute legislative jam in the senate.

FORMER YALE ATHLETE W. J. MACMAHON INDICTED

PAINESVILLE, Ohio, Jan. 16—(AP)—William J. Macmahon, former Yale athlete, was indicted by the Lake county grand jury today on a charge of assault with intent to kill as a result of an alleged attack he made on his wife, Mrs. Mai Stillwagen Macmahon, near Painesville, last September.

Macmahon, who lives near Conneaut, Ohio, has been at liberty under $5,000 bail. No date has been set for his arraignment.

The alleged attack was made while the Macmahons were en route home in their automobile from New Haven, Conn. Mrs. Macmahon charged that shortly before they reached Painesville her husband stopped the car and without warning struck her over the head with a flashlight. She escaped from the car and fled to a nearby farmhouse where she notified authorities. Macmahon was arrested several hours later.

He had been suffering from effects of gas poisoning received during the World war and was not responsible for his actions.

BELIEVE MONEY WAS MOTIVE FOR MURDER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 16—The pressing of the investigation into the murder of Mrs. Rosaria Lorella led the authorities to the belief today that they had established a motive for the slaying of the woman in the event that it is proven that the crime was committed by her son-in-law, Thomas Mazzola, now being held at the county jail in Brooklyn as a suspect. The investigators would not state what the nature of this motive but information received from various other sources establishes a belief that a craving for the woman's money may have led to her death. Mazzola is alleged to have been frugal and "after the money" according to acquaintances. It was reported today that Mazzola is well behaved at the county jail but that he appears very downcast and worried.

A unique "broadcasting station" program was carried out as the entertainment feature of the annual membership party of Willimantic Council of Catholic Women held in St. Mary's hall Tuesday evening. WINDHAM GRAND LIST SHOWS INCREASE OF $119,516

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, January 16—The town of Windham's grand list increased in value to the amount of $119,516 within the past year, it is indicated in the grand list figure for 1928 which amounts to $17,863,042 as against the 1927 total of $17,743,625. The west division of the town, which mainly represents the city of Willimantic shows an increase of $120,116 while the east division, comprising the three Windhams shows a loss of $600, leaving a total increase for the entire town of $119,516.

Rising valuations in the business section of the city account for most of the increase. There are also 14 more properties listed than there were last year. The figures are: 1928, 3,804; 1927, 3,690 and 1926, 3,393. This year there are 3,534 residents and 270 non-residents listed. While the number of automobiles listed remains about the same decrease is shown in the average valuation of these. A lowering in the cost of new cars is attributed as the cause for this decline.

The work of the board of relief still remains to be done, however, and estimates are that the present grand list total will be lowered approximately $200,000 as the result of exemptions and abatements allowed Exemptions, which climbed to $160,000 after the World war increase in amount each year.

The doubling increase of the grand list in 1912 when a revaluation of the property was carried out, still holds first place for any one year. In that year the list was totaled to $14,047,188 as against a list of $6,859,693 in 1911, indicating that a revaluation of about 103 per cent. had taken place. With the exception of the years 1919 and 1927 the grand list has shown an annual increase, giving an average yearly increase for the past 16 years of $223,500.

The town assessors, M. Eugene Lincoln, Alexis Caisse and George E. Gifford, have turned the completed list over to Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, who will in turn present the list to the board of relief on the first meeting of that body, February 1. It is probable that the present tax rate of 14 mills will remain in effect by vote of a special town meeting. The budget for the ensuing year is $338,500 as against $319,000 one year ago.

COLCHESTER

PAST YEAR'S LOW FIRE LOSS REDUCES INSURANCE RATES

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Jan. 16—As a result of the greatly improved fire loss record in the borough of Colchester during the past year, the local fire insurance agents have been advised by the New England Insurance Exchange that, effective January 14, 1929, the fire insurance rates on dwellings will be reduced about twelve per cent. The yearly rate on houses has been 47c per hundred dollars and is now reduced to 41c per hundred dollars. This reduction has been granted only on dwellings and not on store or factory buildings. In view of this rate reduction, it behooves borough property owners to continue to keep chimneys in good condition and in every way possible to reduce the fire hazard, so that at the end of the present year still further insurance rate reductions may be granted. The fire loss record during the past year is certainly remarkable, for there were only four chimney fires during the year and property loss of only ten dollars.

SOUTH WILLINGTON

VETERAN JAMES ENNINGS ENLISTED AT NORWICH

The following letter has been received from one of Willington's well known Civil war veterans, of interest to friends, as well as members of the order of Masons:

Masonic Home, Wallingford

Dear friends and brothers:

Your letter of January 8th, at hand; surely I was glad to hear from you.

We have a very good home and get the best of care and the Masons of Connecticut should certainly feel proud of it. Besides having a room of our own, a large room is provided, where we may smoke, play billiards, pool and cards.

The food is very good. Breakfast served at 7.30, dinner at 12 and supper at 5.30.

The home is under the care of Past Grand Master Andrew J. Hallock. Quite often we are treated to a show by lodges from New Haven, Hartford and other cities.

Now, one thing more you know about Masonery, there are no ladies. Well, here we have about two ladies to one man. I was quite taken back when I first came here but you know three years has taught me that it is also a home for the Eastern Star.

Most of us are getting old. As for myself I was only 85 last August; I find many here older than I. There are only two grand army men here. Both of us were from the same regiment, First Volunteers of Connecticut.

Best regards to you all,

JAMES JENNINGS.

(Mr. Jennings has been a member of the Masons for approximately 45 years, having first joined in Merrow. For many years he was boss painter for the G. Hall Jr. Co. and was one of the town's most prominent men. He enlisted in the army at Norwich.)

burnt sugar ADDED to gravies

Philadelphia woman gives recipe popular with men

A PHILADELPHIA woman runs a restaurant that is very popular with men at lunch and dinner time. Asked about her delicious brown gravies, she gave the following recipe: Burn one-fourth cup of granulated sugar in a deep tin pan. When the sugar is hot and black pour a cup of water over it. The black liquor in small quantities is a wonderful color for sauces and "pale" gravies. Keep a bottle of it on hand. Use a deep pan, as charred sugar is hard to remove.

No other ingredient adds so much to the enjoyment of other foods as sugar. Sugar is perfection as a condiment. Tasteful, delicious cookery revolves around sugar. Sugar is the inexpensive food, and to be well nourished is necessary to health.

Medical authorities are issuing warnings about the dangers of starvation diets. Too much reducing often results in permanent injuries. To be undernourished is to place yourself at the mercy of diseases such as typhoid, pneumonia, influenza and colds. "Keep children and young people well nourished and up to weight," says a famous doctor, as a guard against tuberculosis.

Eat healthful foods. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

DANIELSON

WALTER ANDERSON NEW PRESIDENT OF B. & L. ASS'N.

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 16—Walter Anderson is the newly elected president of the Danielson Building and Loan association, to serve through the year. The vice presidents are Andrew E. Meech, D. Fred Kenworthy, Louis E. Young, Frank E. Kennedy; secretary, Clifford H. Starkweather; assistant secretary, Attorney Harry E. Back; treasurer, Burdette C. Hopkins; assistant treasurer, J. F. Gardner, Jr.; board of management, Irving W. Davis, John T. Ashworth, Norman A. Reeves, William S. Hunter, W. Irving Bullard, D. E. Jette, John A. Gilbert, Frank T. Preston, Alfred L. Reed, F. E. Bitgood, Harry Brearley, Dr. George M. Burroughs, N. Lorne Greig, James R. Walsh, A. M. Thompson; auditors, Charles E. Austin, Thomas A. Beckett and A. M. Thompson.

Captain Will Stone commanding the merchant ship Scottsburg will sail this week from New York on a trip that will eventually take him to the Orient. His first port of call out of New York will be Baltimore. He is to go thence to Tampa, then to a Texas port before heading south to go through the Panama canal and up the west coast to Los Angeles. Continuing the voyage he will head his ship across the Pacific to call at ports in Japan and then on to China. From China he is to proceed to Manila, and then from the Philippines the return voyage will begin. The entire trip will require about six months. Captain Stone is a native of Danielson and lived here until he went to sea at the age of 14. He has made voyages to all parts of the world. During the World war he made voyages to Europe, taking across a ship load of TNT and running the submarine blockade successfully with that highly dangerous cargo on one occasion. Captain Stone recently was a visitor here with Mr. and Mrs. W. Clarence Bacon.

Quietly, but with considerable success, it is said, members of the French Democratic club, organized here a few weeks ago, are going ahead with their plans to materially increase the membership of the democratic party in Killingly. It is understood that the hope of the members is to add a long list of new names to the voting list of the town prior to the caucuses that will be held to name candidates for town offices next fall. They plan to make both the democratic caucus and the annual town meeting more lively than any such events have been for years. The work to be done meanwhile consists in working for the naturalization of numbers that can readily meet the required tests, listing those who are eligible to vote, but who are not registered as voters and other such preparatory work. The entire town is to be covered within the next few months in a canvass for names of all of those in sympathy with the movement, which those who follow political affairs closely will watch with much interest.

Some old-time residents of Danielson recalled today that they had not seen a snowplow run over the local branch of the New Haven road in nearly a quarter of a century, yet that they were not an uncommon sight prior to that time. This fact appeared to be taken as another argument supporting the theory that winters of recent years do not compare in severity with those of thirty or more years ago. The only snowplows seen in this section for a long time are those fixed to the front end of the great locomotives now running on the line, machines so powerful as to be able to force their way, should occasion arise, through drifts that would have stalled the smaller engines of an earlier day.

The town of Killingly is continuing to escape snow removal costs this winter. No snow that has yet come has blocked any road. There have been years when carting snow off the highways and cutting through big drifts has run into several thousands dollars of expense.

There is the forecast that rails of the Connecticut company's old trolley line through Water and Dyer streets and along the Danielson-Wauregan highway as far as Fall brook, where the trolley route takes to a right of way through territory skirting the Quinebaug river and leaves the highway will be removed at such time as the state undertakes the rebuilding of this route, the survey for the changes to be made having been completed two or three years ago. The proposed layout of the highway would eliminate a number of curves between Danielson and Wauregan.

A request that came from various sources today had to do with the desire that sidewalks that have not been cleaned since the recent snowstorm receive attention. Cleaning of sidewalks in the borough was quite general following the storm, but there are many stretches of walk that are still snow-covered and slipper.

Information seeps through from Wethersfield that Albert Raymond and Roland G. Lalone are quiet but sullen prisoners. These are the two young men who are now serving life sentences for the murder of State Officer Irving H. Nelson in Pomfret last Good Friday night.

Good committee appointments during this session of the legislature are said to be forecast for Representatives A. W. Williams and William S. Hunter, both now serving their second terms as members of the house from the town of Killingly.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 16—Charles A. Montie of Plainfield was found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor by a jury in Windham county superior court here this morning.

Montie was arrested on Nov. 29, by State Policeman James Carmody of Danielson state police barracks following a collision with George E. Baker of Canterbury. In his direct testimony Officer Carmody told the court that the defendant in his mind was under the influence of liquor at the time of the accident and following an investigation, he placed him under arrest.

HANOVER

The Ladies' guild of the Congregational church held its annual meeting Monday afternoon in the vestry. The reports were read and accepted and all of the officers were re-elected. The quarterly committees will be appointed later.

The annual meeting of the church, with the usual supper and roll call, was held Wednesday evening in the parish house. Nearly all the members, both resident and absent, responded either in person or through friends. The clerk, William Storrs Lee, being ill with grip, and unable to be present, his place was taken by William G. Park. The reports as given by the trustees and officers of the affiliated societies indicated that more money had been handled and a larger amount of work done than during the previous year.

So far as known, no cases of influenza have developed here yet, but severe colds are prevalent among the children of the village and there are many vacant seats in the school rooms this week.

Mrs. Irene Mann, principal at the grammar school, conducted the meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. Sunday evening and gave a talk which was worthy of a larger hearing than it was possible to secure at the time of the heavy snow squall which was raging about 7 o'clock.

Flu Milder Than in 1918, But Vicks Sets New Record

Although the type of flu this year is not so serious as in 1918, health authorities are urging everybody to treat even the slightest cold at the start, as colds lower the resistance and make the body an easy prey to bronchitis or pneumonia.

An interesting response to this warning has been the phenomenal call for Vicks VapoRub, the external treatment which proved so helpful in the 1918 epidemic.

In spite of vastly increased capacity, the Vicks laboratories are once more operating all night long and are now producing 375,000 jars daily. A substantial part of this increase is attributed to the widespread use of Vicks as a preventive.

SERVING THE AUTO REGISTRANTS.

Perhaps the time will come some day when the effort to give service to those desiring to register their automobiles will be extended to providing branch offices in all the cities of the state.

That there is need of speeding up the service is recognized in the motor vehicle department. According to a statement released by it this week about 40,000 "stubs" were given out with registration plates "as a special plan of speeding up service to registrants." The stubs indicate that the applicant has met all the requirements but the department was unable to fill out and return the registration cards sought before the time required for their use. Clerks have since the first of the year been busy filling out the cards but it may not be until the first of February that all can be forwarded.

Inasmuch as the department has authorized the recognition of the stubs in lieu of registration cards, until the latter are received it will mean no inconvenience to the auto owners but it does indicate a need of reducing the congestion which has developed again this year concerning the licensing of automobiles.

The department points out that this is the first year that the use of stubs has been resorted to among those making applications through the mail but "it was made necessary by the tremendous increase in this type of application."

If the applicants for registration are using the mail instead of going to the main or branch offices, isn't it further indication that the auto owners are endeavoring to escape the long delays and distressing waits which they face at these offices? Congestion is inevitable in view of the large territory the few branch offices are expected to cover. Waiting for long periods in the cold doesn't encourage a repetition of such experiences.

It is natural that the public should endeavor to avoid annoying waits and the use of the mail is a logical method, even though it means additional expense for those who have to pay to have their applications sworn to, but that congestion would be eliminated if instead of three or four substations one was placed in every city of the state. It is only fair in the interest of giving proper service to all taxpayers alike, and provision ought to be made by the present legislature for doing so.

MORE SCANDAL.

All kinds of highhanded practices are carried on in the big city of New York long enough for many to get rich, many to complain and more to suffer, but there comes a time when there is a revelation of what has been going on. Then there is a great hue and cry, the authorities begin to step around in a circle, prosecutions are demanded and it is impossible to locate the one wanted.

This has been done over and over so many times that there is little new in the demands that are being made for a reform in the manner of handling bankruptcy cases. Just now David Steinhardt is among the missing. He is accused of embezzling receivership funds and there is much being said about loose methods of dealing with bankruptcy cases. It is declared to be a scandalous situation that has been revealed and there is probably no doubt about it, but the strange part of it is that it has been allowed to go on so long without detection.

Whenever anything of that kind happens in New York the question at once arises as to how many others are involved and just what means were employed for covering up such methods. In the quest for such information there is always encountered the difficulty of unraveling the scheme, but it emphasizes anew the belief that such safeguards should have been established in the past and been enforced to the extent of preventing anything of the kind.

It is time now for taking steps that will prevent such practices in the future as well as to bring about the conviction and penalization of all those who may be involved at the present time. Indications point to the fact that the scandal will include many. The time to clean it up is now, but along with the inquiry should go action that will place an effective check upon such a practice in the future.

AMERICAN EXPERTS.

It will unquestionably be conceded that the choice of Americans to serve on the allied-German commission for the purpose of considering the reparations problem and possibly providing a substitute for the Dawes plan is excellent.

The selection of Owen D. Young and J. P. Morgan, with Thomas N. Perkins, a New Englander, as alternate, has been made by the other countries. That they meet with the approval of this government is evidenced by their selection, but they do not and will not be the representatives of the United States government. That was made clear when it was declared that this government would not oppose Americans upon the commission, although it would not appoint them or permit any connected with the administration to serve.

Mr. Young is the first choice because he was a member of the commission that produced the Dawes plan. His previous experience in addition to his ability particularly fits him for the place. All are experts.

Mr. Morgan is selected because of his commanding position as a banker and financier in this country. His knowledge of international financial affairs will make him an invaluable member of the commission.

Mr. Perkins as a lawyer and a banker, though not as well known as either of those for whom he may sit in as alternate, has had a certain degree of experience through the two years that he served as unofficial American member of the reparations commission.

What will be accomplished is not known. There is a desire that Germany be told what it must pay, that the amount be fixed instead of remaining indefinite as under the Dawes pla. Talk then turns to the floating of a big bond issue by Germany in which all countries would be expected to participate. Furthermore there is an effort to have this country wipe out a certain portion of the debts of the European countries if they lower the amount to be collected from Germany.

This government has consistently maintained that there is no relation between the reparations problems and the war debts owed this country, and it doesn't look with favor upon the idea of Americans swinging any German bond issue. Though they are not official representatives of this country these things are unquestionably known to the American experts.

LET NORWICH COOPERATE.

Throughout the length of the Central Vermont road there must be gratification over the cooperation which that company plans to give in the future to the communities along its line for the purpose of industrial development.

This is a new policy which has been set forth by Industrial Agent Fountaine but it is one too long postponed. It holds forth many advantages for all concerned. The road is seeking increased business, a sign of activity that is particularly pleasing for it gives hopes that it contemplates taking greater advantage of this rail line across New England.

With the railroad seeking development and the cities and towns along its line in the same boat there is a chance for real and profitable cooperation. We have gotten to the point in these days where interest in industrial development on the part of railroads has manifested itself but slightly. The possibilities of making more out of this outlet of the Canadian National railways are many. Notice of increased service means something but the promise that there may be further service, even in the transportation of passengers, indicates that the road visions an opportunity to serve and thereby to develop business.

When millions were thrown away on the proposed line from Palmer to Providence there was surprise that such a sum was not devoted to the making of needed and permanent improvements on this Central Vermont line. The new move indicates that attention is being given in that direction.

Though delayed it is nevertheless welcomed and there is every good reason why Norwich should lend full cooperation in this and all sound efforts for industrial development. We have excellent advantages and there is every reason why use should be made of them.

A DRY INQUIRY.

From the efforts which the respective leaders were making it is apparent that both the wets and the drys in congress believe that there should be a thorough inquiry concerning prohibition, the violations and the court procedure. Thus when it is announced that President-elect Hoover plans to name a commission directly after his inauguration to do this very thing, it becomes evident that their efforts become unnecessary.

This matter has apparently been cleared up by a conference with Mr. Hoover and the decision to abandon the resolutions to be offered in the house and senate is the wise one. Such a move as Mr. Hoover plans is only what he called attention to during his campaign and he intends that there shall be no delay in getting started. This means that the next congress will have a chance to act in providing the necessary funds for the commission but that should encounter no opposition in view of the agreed sentiment among the wets and drys.

Just what effect this will have upon the move to provide $25,000,000 additional for the enforcement of the dry law, against the advice of Secretary Mellon, remains to be seen. Possibly Mr. Mellon had in mind the contemplated action of Mr. Hoover when he urged that the exact use of any such sum should be stated in order to insure that it be wisely employed. The inquiry ought to show what is needed, what money is required and where it should be spent.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Why kick, isn't it time for winter and snow?

Perhaps the icemen are worrying, but there's nothing at present to indicate it.

Now that the Kellogg treaty is out of the way, what treatment is the senate going to give the cruiser bill?

With snow keeping some in doors there will start the annual diversion of devouring the seed catalogues.

If an inquiry is started about the enforcement of the prohibition laws in this country there are a few who will desire to be heard.

From the feverish speculation over the Hoover cabinet some in Washington are threatened with exhaustion if obliged to keep it up until after March 4.

NAME-PICTURES.

As Georgia opened the morning's mail she indulged in the game which had yielded her many a pleasant hour. On taking up each envelope she looked at the post mark. This was one phase of the game. She kept her mind in a receptive state and seised upon the first impression which the name of the city conveyed to her.

Sometimes obvious pictures were in her mind. "Elmwood" meant a sleepy little town with wide streets shadowed by great elms. Sometimes the picture was less obvious and she would catch at a subtle implication in the name.

Thus Montpelier—she could not have told why—meant a place where life was lived gallantly. Watteau ladies and gentlemen seemed endlessly to be receiving and paying respectively witty compliments. It was so—and she did not trouble to reason why.

The other and more fascinating phase of the game came with the reading of the signature. Because it was her responsibility to see that the mail was properly distributed, she had to read each letter and assign it to the proper person in the organization. So she had both the name and the letter to suggest to her a portrait of the individual who had written it.

Here was a letter, most deliberately terse in its phraseology, and signed with a flourish. He would be a big man, pompous, with his glasses on a black ribbon, given to sweeping them off his nose and tapping them against his thumb nail as he gave his grave attention to matters of import. Georgia chuckled.

Her chuckle attracted the attention of the telephone operator, with whom she shared this small outer office.

"Now what are you chuckling over?" demanded the telephone operator. Georgia picked up the letter and took it to the switchboard, where she mimicked the self-important individual, whom she sensed back of the letter, and pointed to the boldly flourishing signature.

"Don't be ridiculous," said the telephone operator. "I know him. He isn't like that at all. He's a round little man, and bald, and as mild-mannered as 'please ma'am.' So, you see, you really can't tell what a person's like from reading his letter and signature."

"Oh, I don't know," replied Georgia. "I'll bet I can tell sometimes."

"Don't be foolish," said the telephone operator. "It's a perfectly absurd idea."

"Now, here's an applicant for that district managership in Iowa," said Georgia, opening the next letter. "We'll see how close I come this time. He'll no doubt be asked to come here for an interview. So we'll have an opportunity to check up on my impression of him." She closed her eyes for a moment and then, with a mischievous look, she said, mimicking the voice of a medium conducting a seance:

"I see a man, divinely tall. He has blue eyes and brown—no red hair—no, it's brown, but it's red when the light is on it in a certain way. I think he has freckles. He seems—he seems a pleasant person, young, and with the little crinkly lines at the corner of his eyes that show he knows how to smile. There!" she finished. "How's that?" The telephone operator laughed.

"What's his name?" she demanded. "I'll want to check up on that story if he comes in here," Georgia referred to the letter.

"Donald G. Whitehouse," she said, and dropped the letter into its proper basket.

Three days later, while Georgia was busy elsewhere, a young man entered the reception room. The telephone operator stared at him until he grinned at her and said:

"What's the matter? Do I look like a ghost— Or did I forget to put on my tie?" The telephone operator, in her embarrassment, plunged into the sales manager's line and had almost announced "Mr. Whitehouse" before she realized that she had not asked his name. Georgia did not return to her desk until after the lunch hour.

"How did you do it?" demanded the telephone operator.

"Describe Mr. Whitehouse."

"Oh! He got the job, by the way. And I'm going back with him. I told him to apply. I knew his experience was just what the firm wanted. You see, I've known him since we were kids together in Iowa."—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thoughts of East Main St.

Mr. Editor: I mentioned the fact in one of my recent letters to you that the so-called East Main street was opened for traffic to and from Preston around the year 1817, and in looking up authorities on this subject I find this is approximately correct. My recollections of this street, some 50 years later, picture a street that was shaded on each side with beautiful trees that gave it a charm that it had taken years to produce. But the street itself, you old timers can recall, at certain seasons was well nigh impassable, due to the rains which would make the street almost up to the hubs of the wagons with the mud. And this often took many days to dry up, for the dampness was held from the sunshine by the shade that was engendered by the heavy foliage on the trees. Still, to my way of thinking, this is and was the most historical street among many others in the early life and times when the Rose of New England was holding a place in the sun. And this has continued ever since. What memories are associated with this street, for it seems but yesterday when several of the most prominent men of Norwich came out from the door of the Buckingham Memorial, which at that time was the home of the former war governor of the state of Connecticut, the Hon. William Alfred Buckingham. He was the governor for nine years, from 1853 to 1866. The second man of this group was, if my memory serves me, the Hon. L. F. S. Foster, and the third one I have forgotten but I think was the Hon. John T. Waite. The fourth one will never be forgotten for it was none other than the people's choice for the 18th president of the U. S. A., Gen. U. S. Grant. This was in the early fall of 1868. You young folks of today perhaps have seen sometime, somewhere, in the movies, a very good replica of the original. Even today I can see him in a mental picture, as I saw him then as he stood up in an open barouche and I not more than ten feet away from him listened to him as he explained the issues of the day, for he was then doing his campaigning for the office of president. His running mate was Schuyler Colfax, a native of New York.

Say old timers, don't you remember the parades of those years incident to the presidential elections, the parade of the "Tanner Boys" who typified Grant's early days and business as a "tanner"? Do you recall the uniform they wore, a yellow cap and with it a cape to match; a fair imitation of leather? Didn't we have good times? With all the good things to eat, that was the climax of these parades. Honestly I think we "kids" got into these parades without a very clear conception of what it was all about, but we did have a very clear vision that somewhere, when the parade was over, there would be a lot of fine eats that had been prepared by the loving hands of those splendid women of New England who, among their many other accomplishments, knew how to make the good things that would reach the hearts and tickle the palate of mere man. Some of those eats were so good that a man who had no appetite would become hungry the moment he saw them. Why, oh, why were these parades and good times stopped? We young street "Arabs" liked them for there must have been a certain amount of Scotch in our make-up—something for nothing.

Returning to East Main street, how well I recall the inspection of the Boys in Blue who were here in answer to the call of the one who is today known as the great war governor and, as I write this letter, I see before me his call for men to uphold and protect their country and their homes and loved ones. This call is too long to incorporate in this letter. Suffice to say the call was not in vain for they came from every walk in life.

"For they left the ploughshare in the mould,
Their flocks and herds without a fold."

Just 19 days after the governor had issued his call, more than 1,000 men had answered and were encamped at the grounds of the New London county fair grounds. And this camp was named "Camp Aiken" in honor of one of your very illustrious sons of Norwich, who is living today, at the very advanced age of 95 years.

I, although just a street gamin was at the camp, and why not, for here was my honored father soon to leave me alone with no one to look out for me. Fortunately I fell into good hands. But what wondrous sights were to be seen here at the camp. With the drills and every-day routine it sure was an inspiring sight. The flags flying, the drums beating and everything carried on with military precision, was to some of the Boys in Blue just a great big holiday—just a dream—but what an awakening! For I, though only a boy, can look back and see the old mothers who saw their only boys leaving for no one knew what fate; I saw the young girl as she parted from her sweetheart, wives from their husbands—still so proud of them, yet with eyes filled with tears and with breaking hearts. Although I was young still, I wondered when my father would return.

And the dearest memento that these boys carried with them was their mother's picture or perhaps that of a sweetheart. A story was told of a boy who was dying on the field and in his hand he held a picture. Someone wanted to take it away. And he said, "When I parted from my sweetheart I kissed her and she gave me this, her picture, and I promised to keep it, living or dead." And then he fell back with a smile on his face and died. He was one of the Norwich boys of yesterday.

Is it any wonder, dear reader, that I am so proud to tell the world that I am a native of Norwich and although I only come there at intervals for a short stay, still I see the scenes and days with the actors in this great drama of life as clear as though it was but yesterday.

C. H. "DAD" SHAW.
Passaic, N. J., Jan. 14, 1929.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—Two men who presently will be just George McLean of Simsbury, Conn., and Jim Reed of Kansas City, Mo., with no titles except such as are adorned by the ex- prefix, played a leading part in the senate's struggle over the Kellogg anti-war pact.

Both will be voluntary exiles to private life after March 3. Both have served three consecutive hitches in the senate; both are veterans of the senatorial fight over the League of Nations covenant. McLean was one of the "mild reservationist" persuasion in that warfare, but Reed was a commander of the anti-league battalion of death.

McLean Emerges

McLean wasn't very active verbally. He hasn't ever figured among the long distance talkers of that body, in fact. Which makes his sudden plunge into prominence in the Kellogg pact debate all the more conspicuous.

While those noted political captains, Borah of Idaho and Swanson of Virginia, were sharing honors in leadership in favor of the anti-war treaty from the republican and democratic trenches, respectively, McLean from the republican side and Reed from the democratic side kept up a constant sniping fire of opposition.

Borah is at his best in the give and take of senate debate. He never loses his temper and is a skillful strategist. Swanson, that Virginian with Scandinavian name but the manner and appearance of the old school Virginia cavalier, is wholly different. He's excitable and belligerent in debate.

And the more excited he gets, the farther the letter "R" recedes from his spoken vocabulary. It just ain't. Last session he led an attack on administration handling of submarine accidents. He dealt particularly with the S-4 disaster. At least, that is what he was interpreted as calling it by the ever truthful Congressional Record. What he actually said every time was "S-foe disastah."

Verbal Tilting

McLean heckled Swanson considerably at one point on the wars of self defense aspects of the Kellogg pact. The Virginian was aroused to combative mood, as usual, and Reed derived amusement from that fact.

"I beg to suggest," he broke in, "that we at least ought to be able to discuss this article of perpetual peace in a peaceful way."

Swanson fired back that Reed himself was the greatest probable obstacle to a peaceful discussion.

"He preaches peace in discussion, but he is very vigorous in his blows, and he knows it," the Virginian thundered, and the senate chortled.

Later Swanson described the pact as "an expression of a desire in your heart for peace."

"We exchange a sort of international kiss," Reed commented.

Swanson—"Well, better kisses than blows."

Reed—"Sometimes they lead to blows."

NEW BOOKS

The Electric Word, The Rise of Radio. By Paul Schubert. Cloth, 311 pages. Published by The Macmillan company, New York. Price $2.50.

In this volume the author tells the whole story of radio from the days when Marconi made the first practical use of the Hertzian wave theory in 1896, through the era of maritime adoption, the period of military use and down to date in the present era of popular use.

Mr. Schubert does not overlook the scientific aspect of his subject but he builds his story chiefly about the practical use of radio as a system of communication, and with the political and business intrigues which have accompanied the development of the art. It deals with a subject in which everyone is today interested.

Marconi worked under handicaps and severe criticisms during the early days of developing communication without wires. After he obtained his patents the value of the system was recognized as particularly valuable for ships and directly thereafter its uses in connection with war were fully recognized and seized upon by all the nations.

It was in 1919 that big business displayed interest in radio and backed by the General Electric company the Radio Corporation of America was formed followed by persistent development. In 1921 Dr. Frank Conrad set up the first experimental station for broadcasting and out of that came the station KDKA. In that same year, through agreements concerning patents, radio sets for home use were produced and other stations were started and 589 stations were licensed during the first year the government exercised control over them. Since that there has been no restraining of radio possible. Not only has its popularity grown, and sets are to be found in most every home, but improvements are constantly being made. We are still watching radio grow and realizing that in another quarter century what is now the last word in radio will be regarded as an antique.

How to Change Your Condition. By S. Vadianathan. Flexible Leatherette, 245 pages. Published by The Elizabeth Towne company, Holyoke. Price $1.60.

Professor Vaidianathan points out that a change in your condition can be brought about by redirecting your subconscious. The volume deals with the subconscious mind, what it is, how it can help you, how it influences your condition, your habits, your environment and how it determines your success or failure.

The author, a noted psychologist, points out that your ordinary consciousness is limited while your subconsciousness is not, being ever active whether you are awake or asleep. The activities of the subconscious are not governed by your will unless you choose to control them in that way. While the involuntary processes in you go on without your volition, it is nevertheless possible to control almost all of them, and by moulding the activities of your subconscious in the manner you like you will be able to mould the activities of your consciousness.

The author goes into his subject very thoroughly and carefully explains the various steps in detail.

The World Almanac. By Robert H. Lyman. Paper, 928 pages. Published by New York World. Price 60 cents.

With the new year comes the 44th annual World Almanac, that handy book of a million facts and figures. The 1929 issue is the seventh edited by Robert Hunt Lyman. It grows better every year and is more heartily welcomed. It is the standard reference book of America.

Always the outstanding reference book for politics, the World Almanac gives the election figures by states that brought Hoover and Curtis their great majorities, the nomination conventions and platforms and the new congress. The government figures, rosters and articles have been revised by government officials.

But the Almanac gives one more than public affairs and high finance. The notable feats of aviation are chronicled. In 1928 alone were Lindbergh's good-will tour; the magnificent flight of the French aviators, Costes and Le Brix; the German Bremen's first crossing by air from Europe to America; the Australians' hop, skip and jump across the Pacific from San Francisco to Australia; Sir Hubert Wilkins' flight across the frozen Arctic ocean, and the round trip of the glorious Zeppelin.

Stories That Recall Others

Traffic Officer

Bobby, who evidently knows how to spell his name, was pretending he was a traffic officer arresting a speeder. He said loudly: "Say there! What's your name?"

He answered in changed voice: "I'm Tom Mix."

"How do you spell it?"

"B-O-B-B-Y" came in deep tones.

Explained

The fact that Buddy's home contained a canary bird and that he was fully conversant with its ways and habits probably saved him from his first disillusionment at Christmas time. His mother had taken him on a shopping trip downtown and he had seen his first Santa Claus, who was up to specifications in every way, except that his whiskers kept coming loose. Tragically Buddy's mother felt that this little detail would ruin Buddy's holiday, and she waited to see what his comment would be. It was as blithe and gay as you please. Remarked Buddy: "Oh, daddy, I saw Santa Claus downtown today, and he was moulting!"

The Disputed Chaco.

The Paraguayan Chaco, area of the Bolivian and Paraguayan boundary dispute is no minor morsel of land.

A territory more than 100,000 square miles in area, a region larger than the states of Pennsylvania and New York combined, is the subject of controversy.

Beginning in 1879 Bolivia and Paraguay have repeatedly tried to reach an amicable division of the Chaco. An agreement to arbitrate has been made, but the dispute has not yet reached an arbitration commission.

"The Chaco is an Indian territory," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, "and is known as Paraguay Occidental, distinguishing it from Paraguay Oriental, lying east of the Paraguay river.

"It is a continuation of the Argentine Chaco, a low-lying, level, grass-plains country east of the Andes foothills. The disputed area is a wedge between the Pilcomayo river and the Paraguay river, roughly an equilateral triangle 500 miles on a side. Previous negotiations accepted Bolivia's rights to the apex. How to make an acceptable upside down 'A' out of this 100,00-square mile unpartitioned 'V' is the question.

"Drawing boundary lines in the Paraguayan Chaco has its humorous aspects. Diplomats of the two nations drew lines on their maps in 1879, again in 1887, and in 1894, but no surveyor could have been found to lay out any of the irritating lines. Loud might Paraguay and Bolivia argue, the Chaco belonged to the Indians. Until after 1900 few white men bold enough to penetrate the Chaco came back to tell the story. Expedition after expedition, some with as many as 200 soldiers, went in and was wiped out by the Indians. Because of the aborigines the geography of the Chaco remains hazy to this day.

"For more than two centuries the Paraguay river separated savagery and civilization. Travelers on up-to-date steamers looked out on one bank and saw the towns and ranches of Spanish Oriental Paraguay and on the other a shore empty save for an occasional silhouette of feathered horsemen bristling with spears.

"Two centuries ago the Chaco wilderness became a refuge for remnants of Inca tribes that fled Spanish oppressors in Bolivia and Peru. They had learned their lesson. They would have nothing to do with white men. Most of the Jesuits who dared to enter the Chaco were killed; a few escaped.

"That the Chaco is now passably safe for white men; that permanent settlements have been set up; that settlers' homes begin to dot the river banks, is largely due to one man, W. Barbrooke Grubb, a missionary, sometimes called the Livingstone of South America.

"Grubb placated the Chaco savages single-handed and without a gun. Once an angry Indian pressed an arrow against his chest; another time witch doctors tried to poison his tea; but his closest call came when a trusted Indian guide ambuscaded him, shot him with an arrow and left him for dead. By honest dealing and by a mixture of courage and bluff Grubb won the Indians' respect, and, having done so, established a road into the Chaco and created the central town called Waikthlatingmangyalwao.

"Under his direction a definite effort has been made to conserve the Indians. Paraguay needs the Indians of the Chaco because they alone are adapted to the hazards of Chaco life. No attempt will be made to hurry the savages in the transition from bow and arrow hunters to reacheros and potato hoers. Indians will not be urged to wear the clothes of civilization; in fact, Indians are encouraged to come to church in native dress, consisting of a skin skirt, plus, on the part of the men, feathers fastened to the ankles.

"The Indians deserve credit for survival of the Chaco, which is a Pandora's box of all the pests and scourges of nature. Droughts sometimes last two years, but when it rains the level plain becomes a vast swamp. Mosquitoes, fleas, ticks, scorpions, many poisonous snakes, and jaguars make life exciting. Locust swarms render agriculture next to impossible. Temperatures run up to 110 degrees in summer time. The Chaco is too tropical for the average white man.

"Curious and unlovely customs are the product of life in the Chaco. Infenticide is an evil that missions constantly work to prevent. The Indian mothers do away with many girl babies, on the principle that the fewer the women the more attention a wife will receive from her husband. Wives divorce husbands at will, confident of finding another without delay. Burials must be made at sundown, according to Indian custom, so individuals who are approaching death sometimes are hurried along with a knock on the head. Missionaries are helping eradicate these practices."

YOUR HEALTH

ARE YOU CARRYING A SPARE RIB?

By Dr. Mark Lewis Emerson
Oakland, Cal.

Every now and then we find some individual with one or two ribs to spare; in other words, he is carrying around with him a couple of spare ribs. Unfortunately, these extras do not protect him from future trouble, as do a couple of extra automobile tires. Quite the contary; they too frequently get him into all kinds of real trouble and distress of a somewhat obscure orgin.

By having one extra kidney, more than one lung, several lobes to his liver, a couple of hemispheres to his brain and two halves to his heart, many a person is kept alive indefinitly while one of these orgins—or parts of it at least—are put out of commission, by disease or accident.

Spare ribs, or false ribs so-called, grow right above the first rib. The average rib is attached to the spinous process of the thorocic vetebrae, but these supernumerary ribs are the spinous process themselves, growing out in rib shape at the top of the chest cavity.

There being no regular place for these in the human economy, they seem to grow where they can, through and around the various nerves and structures in their vicinity, acting very much like a foreign body, instead of part of the economy of the human body.

These foreigners or unnecessary ribs will vary in length from one to several inches. If, in their peculiar and foreign growth, these short ribs press on another bone or nerve or artery or vein at the base of theneck, they will surely will make trouble with the possessor.

Certain definite groups of pain are generally associated with this extra cervical rib. Pains radiating through the back of the neck, base of skull; along the upper vertebrae of the back and neck, and especially radiating down the inner side of the arm. All these and many other pains are due to these extra ribs pressing on sensitive nerves or nerve filaments. Back pains, headaches, dull heavy feeling in upper part of spinal column, irritable temper and frequent change of glasses, is the common rule.

This condition cannot be determined except by a thorough physical examination, eliminating many other possible troubles. Much time is lost as a rule before this condition is finally diagnosed. The X-ray has much to tell you these days about obscure pains and their possible cause. A through physical examination is the all important thing here.

See your family doctor about your pains and aches, and don't be satisfied until the source of your trouble is found.

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed: relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug: Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot put away. And it's always ready for the cruelest pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

STUDENTS SPEAK AT CIVICS CLASS ROUND TABLE

The Civics class of the Woman's City club held its round table Wednesday evening at the Wauregan house. The subject for the evening was Americanization. Miss Rosalie Bennett, chairman of the Americanization department, presented Miss Bernice Willey, teacher at the Broadway night school and Miss Willey introduced five of her pupils, who told of their early lives in other countries and of their coming to America. This was most interesting. Two of the pupils who have been in this country but six months, and have shown wonderful advancement in their work in the school and in adapting themselves to American life. The three other pupils being older, were further advanced, one man having been employed in Norwich for several years. He is now building his own home.

Miss Mary Potter, field agent of the state board of education for Americanization work, was next presented by Miss Bennett. Miss Potter told of the Americanization work throughout the state. Where classes have generally been held in the evening, in some cities classes are held in the morning and also in the afternoon. Springfield has one Americanization school conducted from nine a. m. to nine p. m. Miss Potter emphasized the fact that the most important work is with the foreign mothers in the home. This is most important because the foreign mother is the one who is influencing the children in the making of American citizens. Miss Potter urged the women of Norwich to visit the Norwich night school and become acquainted with the work being done here.

LARGE AUDIENCE APPLAUDS AMERICAN LEGION FOLLIES

The American Legion Follies was presented Wednesday evening at the Palace theatre by local talent and was heartily applauded by an audience of several hundred. It was presented in two acts, a minstrel, and a musical comedy, "The Fashion Shop," both of which were splendidly given and received well merited applause from those present. The musical numbers in both acts were excellently rendered and the cast performed their parts in professional style.

The first act, the minstrel, opened with the chorus, "In the Far East," the chorus members being seated at the rear of the stage and the end men, ten in number, along the sides of the stage. The endmen, including two old favorites, Nicholas J. Spellman and Edward T. Connolly, kept the audience in an uproar with their jokes, especially those in which prominent local citizens were mentioned.

As the second act a musical comedy, "The Fashion Shop," was given. The cast carried their roles in a most commendable manner. Features of the sketch were the vocal numbers. NEWSPAPER PREDOMINATES AS ADVERTISING MEDIUM

Thomas H. Moore, connected with the bureau of advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers association, was the speaker at the Wednesday meeting of the Norwich Rotary club. Mr Moore who was introduced by William H. Oat, general manager of the Norwich Bulletin, spoke on the Advantages of Newspaper Advertising. His address which was highly instructive was in part as follows:

Advertising is one of the most important factors in our modern system of distribution—it has made our prosperity possible. It is estimated that we spend more than a billion dollars in advertising a year. It is not hard to see the place the daily newspaper plays in this picture when I add that of this sum more than $725,000,000 was spent in daily newspapers in 1928. Of this sum national advertisers spent more than $225,000,000 and local advertisers spent more than $500,000,000 in newspapers. And I mean by "local advertisers" your storekeepers, your merchants, your people right at home, who form the backbone of your newspaper advertising structure.

What makes the newspaper predominent as an advertising medium?

In the first place everyone who can read, reads it. Reading newspapers is a daily habit. Keeping in touch with the news is part of our life and, strangely enough, there is not one line on any subject that is printed in the daily newspaper that does not have some effect on business.

To present the picture of the newspaper as a national advertising medium it is only necessary to show that national distribution is only selling goods in Norwich, Connecticut, multiplied by a few thousand other places. Just as your Bulletin and Record and other newspapers are interesting to home folks here, other newspapers are interesting to home folks in their own communities.

Do you realize that upwards of 2,000 individual daily newspapers are printed every day and that they have a buying daily circulation in excess of 37,000,000.

In arguing on these two theories of national advertising the Bureau of Advertising some years ago wrote this sentence: "It does not pay to look for business in markets where it does not pay to advertise for it in the newspapers."

A survey that the bureau has just completed on newspaper counties of the country rather vividly dramatizes this statement. That survey discloses that there are in the United States 3,071 counties with a total population of 113,97,569. In 1,022 of these counties or in about one-third of the entire number of counties there are one or more daily newspapers published. In other words, about one-third of the counties of the United States are newspaper counties.

But look for a moment and see what that means to our industrial life.

In these 1,022 counties there are 82,794,407 inhabitants; in these 1,022 counties there are 3,770,354 income tax payers; there are 8,660,405 telephone homes; there are 11,812,969 domestic light users; there are 7,433,001 automobiles (not including Fords).

When this analysis is carried down further we find that the average newspaper county has 11.4 times as much buying power as the counties that are non-newspaper counties.

There are the figures that make it possible to say, "It pays to advertise for business in the daily newspapers because they are published in places where people are and where they have money and inclination to buy."

It was the automobile industry that gave us the most dramatic example of the power of newspaper advertising that I have ever witnessed.

A year and a half ago Henry Ford had been crowded out of his position of leadership and his business was down to a very low point. You remember the months he spent working on a new model.

One day in the latter part of November, 1927, a page advertisement appeared in every English language newspaper in the United States and Canada. It was a simple statement from Henry Ford that the new model was ready and that it would be shown by Ford dealers on Friday of that week. Another page appeared in every newspaper the next day telling a little more about it. Within forty-eight hours public curiosity was aroused to such a point that the new Ford car was the leading topic of conversation.

There were two more pages of Ford advertising and on Friday the car was placed on exhibit. Within a week practically half the United States if not all of it had seen the new Ford car and a large part of those who had seen it were placing orders.

No other advertising was used in introducing the Ford car except newspaper advertising. There have been some supplemental announcements in other mediums since, but not many. After the first announcement Ford did very little advertising for the simple reason that the newspapers brought him so much business it will take him a year or more to catch up with it. He, the master of mass production, is now facing the problem of making cars enough to supply the demand that the newspaper advertising has created. He is going back into newspapers this year, but not until his factories have caught up.

It may be interesting in passing to note that Ford's entire advertising expenditure since the new car was brought out is probably less than $300,000. It has brought him hundreds of millions of dollars worth of business that he has not yet been able to take care of.

One of the great advantages of newspaper advertising is the fact that it can be stopped or started over night and can be changed to meet changes in conditions.

The daily newspaper is the greatest advertising medium we have because it is the most intimate and most usefule thing we have. It is the most profitable thing to the advertiser because it costs less than any other advertising and above all it is more profitable to the advertiser because it brings better results for the money than any other form of advertising.

As it is profitable to the advertiser, so it is profitable to the reader. Newspaper advertising is like any other sound merchandising transaction. It is a transaction of mutual profit and mutual satisfaction.

At the business session President Edward W. Jewett presided and F. Russell Smith was the song-leader. William G. Park, chairman of the committee on arrangements for the concert by Lawrence Tibbetts, baritone, named his committee as follows: Henry J. LaFontaine, Dr. H. B. Campbell, Joseph C. Worth, Charles A. Saxton, E. LaRue Bliven and F. Russell Smith.

Announcement was made of the charter night of the Naugatuck Rotary club on January 30th. Attention was called to the invitation of the Norwich Business and Professional Woman's club which is sponsoring an illustrated lecture by Dan McCowan of Banff, Can., on the Canadian Rocky mountains. A letter from Mrs. A. H. Chase calling attention to the 52nd annual meeting of the United Workers on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 22 was read.

As it was the last meeting at which President Jewett will preside before leaving for California next Tuesday the club joined in wishing Mr. Jewett Godspeed.

One new member Walter E. Pilcher was given the right hand of Rotary by President Jewett. The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

GENERAL MALONE ACCEPTS HARTFORD ROTARY INVITATION

Major General Paul B. Malone who is to be the speaker here Tuesday, Feb. 19 before the chamber of commerce banquet, is to be the guest of the Hartford Rotary club on Monday noon, Feb. 18, and will be the speaker for the Worcester chamber of commerce banquet that evening.

Through Secretary Walter H. Pilcher of the Norwich chamber of commerce, General Malone was apprised of the Hartford Rotary club's desire to have him come there and an invitation was forwarded.

General Malone wired back to Secretary Pilcher: "Delighted to accept Hartford Rotary invitation Monday noon February eighteenth."

This information was immediately conveyed by telephone to Executive Vice President Corbin of the Hartford chamber and in a letter received this morning Mr. Corbin states:

"Colonel D. Gordan Hunter of the 169th Regiment is intensely interested in General Malone's visit here. He is asking all of his officers to attend Rotary luncheon. He will also confer with General Cole as to the possibility of some particular military courtesies".

General Malone addressed the National School for Chamber Secretaries at Chicago last summer, where Secretary Pilcher was in attendance. He created a most favorable impression by his energetic and forceful manner of getting his message across. Later in the year the secretary recommended to the committee on chamber dinners that they adopt a program of meetings for the year and include General Malone for a patriotic meeting in February. E. O. Rodier was the chairman of this committee and they later voted to adopt the suggestion. Accordingly the general was invited early last fall.

Naturally having a speaker of such reputation coming here from Chicago will involve considerable expense so the local secretary communicated with the secretary in Worcester and asked him if the Worcester chamber could arrange for a luncheon in honor of General Malone.

Secretary Goddard of Worcester replied immediately, stating: "We will do better than that, we will have a banquet and turn out 800 to hear General Malone as he is one of the best speakers in the country on military affairs."

In view of the general's request that he would like to attend a Rotary meeting in the east, efforts were made to arrange this for him without seriously inconveniencing his itinerary.

PLAINFIELD PROS LOSE TO OLSEN'S TERRIBLE SWEDES BY SEVEN POINTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 16.—Getting away to a big lead in the first half Olsen's Terrible Swedes piled up enough points so that the Plainfield Pros were unable to overtake them in a spirited rally in the last half here tonight. The Swedes won the game 40 to 33 after a desperate rally by the Pros in the second half. A capacity crowd saw the contest.

The game started in a listless manner neither team scoring during the first five minutes of play. The Swedes then opened a long range attack and time after time the ball trickled through the hoop on shots that seemed almost impossible. The result was that the first half ended with the Swedes in the van 23 to 7. At the opening of the second half Dissinger was sent in at right guard in place of Williams with the result that the team became fairly well organized and snapped out of their lethargy. Bernot came to life after a listless first half and counted six baskets to lead his teammates with 13 points. At one point in the second half the Pros were within five points of the Swedes and it looked as though they might pull the game from the fire but the whistle blew before they could accomplish this.

One of the features of the game was the playing of Campbell, the giant center, who stands six feet seven inches in his gym shoes. Campbell would stand under the basket and with his reach of nine feet would just tap the ball in. Plainfield's defeat is largely attributed to a tough streak of hard luck in the first half when what would have been baskets rimmed the hoop and fell outside instead of through the net.

Buddies Outclassed Putnam Soldiers.

In the preliminary game in which there was fully as much interest as in the main attraction the Plainfield Buddies completely outclassed the Putnam National Guard five winning 28 to 12. The Buddies swung into an early lead which they maintained throughout the game and were never threatened. Eaton and Marriott played brilliantly for the Buddies. Cronin, the center of the storm strife in the Southern New England league, was held scoreless. There was no evidence of any of the rough tactics of which Cronin has been accused. The summaries:

MRS. WIGHTMAN REACHES SQUASH SEMI-FINALS

BOSTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—Mrs. George W. Wightman, of Brookline, entered the semi-final round of the women's Massachusetts squash racquets championships here today at the Harvard club courts, by capturing two matches from Mrs. George Wrenn and Mrs Donald Holbrook, both of Boston.

Mrs. Wightman, the only player to reach the semi-final bracket to date, will next play against either Miss Eleanora Sears, the defending champion, or Miss Orine Boyden. Miss Sears and Miss Boyden were scheduled to play their fourth round match tomorrow morning and the winner was due to face Mrs. Wightman during the afternoon.

FUCHS QUESTIONED REGARDING SUNDAY BASEBALL CAMPAIGN

BOSTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—The Sunday baseball controversy centered today in the office of Attorney-General Joseph E. Warner where President Emil Fuchs of the Braves was questioned for three hours this forenoon and returns for further examination tomorrow. The matter under discussion was the connection of the baseball man with the activities of the Outdoor Recreation League of Massachusetts.

The league last fall raised a fund of $30,000 for its campaign in favor of the Sunday professional sports referendum, which passed by a large majority in the November election. This measure gave the cities and towns local option on the question of adopting its provisions for Sunday baseball and other sports.

When the Boston city council delayed action on its ratification, Charles F. Adams, vice-president of the Braves, charged that an unnamed city councilor had demanded a bribe for a favorable vote. The Boston finance commission held a hearing at which Fuchs testified that Councilman William G. Lynch had demanded $5,000 for himself and 12 other councilmen. Lynch denied this.

In the course of these hearings the charge was made that the list of contributors to the Outdoor Recreation league filed with the secretary of state, had been falsified and that the league's funds had been chiefly supplied by Fuchs. The attorney-general then began an investigation to determine whether there had been a violation of the corrupt practices law.

After the afternoon conference with Warner, which lasted for two hours, Fuchs declined to discuss the meeting with newspapermen. "You will have to see the attorney-general," he said.

Warner said that for the present he had finished questioning Fuchs but that it may be necessary to recall him at some later date. He also declined to divulge any details of the conference.

Fuchs declined to say whether he intended to press the city council for action on his application for a Sunday baseball permit, which is now before that body. The application was tabled when brought before the council. Similar action was taken on an application filed by the Boston Red Sox last week.

Fuchs said he would manage the Braves from the bench next summer. He was emphatic in denying that the team is for sale. Rumors conflicting with Fuchs' statements today regarding his managership of the team had been rife since the investigation developed. After his announcement some months ago that he would personally manage the team, he signed a galaxy of former Braves stars for next season, among them several former major league managers.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—Six players have been selected by the tournament committee to compete in the world's 18.2 balkline billiards championship, to be held here beginning Feb. 4. Entries closed last night and the selections were announced here today.

The list of competitors, which includes nearly every leading balkline player with the exception of Willie Hoppe, who did not send in an entry blank, takes in Edouard Horemans of Belgium, the defending champion; Jake Schaefer, Welker Cochrane, Erik Hagenlacher, Felix Grange, German star, and Kinrey Matsuyama of Japan.

Prizes aggregating $18,000 are offered for the winners in the tournament. The first-place winner gets a prize of $2,500 and a year's salary of $6,000. The title is not subject to challenge for a year. The second place man receives $1,250 and a contract calling for an annual salary of $3,000.

It was tentatively decided that Horemans will play in the opening match with either Grange or Matsuyama as his opponent.

NAISMITH DISAPPROVES OF ELIMINATING CENTER JUMP

LAWRENCE, Kas., Jan. 16—(AP)—Dr. James Naismith, originator of basketball and a member of the faculty of the University of Kansas is not at all in sympathy with the suggestion of Dr. Walter Meanwell, basketball coach of the University of Wisconsin, that the center toss-up in basketball be eliminated.

"Why should we take from the game an interesting phase, the center toss-up, and start the game with a pass in from outside the court?" asked Dr. Naismith.

"No other game starts outside the court or field. Hockey and football begin at the center."

As a substitute for the center toss-up, the Wisconsin coach would start the play with a pass from outside the end lines, using the same method after each goal. Dr. Meanwell contends that a tall center has an unfair advantage under the present system, but the opposite view is held by Dr. Naismith.

"There is no fairness in limiting or handicapping a team because it happens to have a tall center," Dr. Naismith said today. "If we do we might as well penalize a football team because it has a 300 pound center.

"At the Kansas-Oklahoma basketball game here the other night I kept a tabulation on the result of the center tip-off. Only 50 per cent of the times the tall center got the tip did the ball go into the hands of a teammate."

The toss-up at center always has been a part of basketball. In 1891, when Dr. Naismith invented the game at the Y. M. C. A. International Training school at Springfield, Mass., he had his men jump at center for the ball. It was in those early days that the first goals were peach baskets, with the bottom knocked out.

AL KOZIOL EXPECTED TO FIGHT PETE SALEK FRIDAY

Al Koziol, local lightweight amateur star who is to box at the Arcadia arena in Providence Friday night, is the favorite to meet Pete Salek of Lowell in the finals in the lightweight class. Salek has been more or less of a Nemesis for Koziol and holds two decisions over the local lad by virtue of a stinging left jab that has kept the local boy at long range. Koziol in his two bouts with Salek has never been able to get past that left to close quarters with the Lowell lad.

A turning of the tables is anticipated in Friday night's show as Koziol is working out with Young Montreal, a clever veteran of the ring. It is reported from Providence that Montreal is laying great stress on a defense for Salek's left jab and that Koziol is showing rapid improvement. Salek's left does not carry such a great amount of force but it is long and bothersome. If Koziol will wade right in and mix with Salek instead of trying to box his way to close range the local boy should experience no difficulty in adding Salek's name to the K. O. column. Koziol has knocked out men in one round who have stayed with or gained decisions over Salek but Salek seems to have something on the Norwich lad. If Koziol would win from Salek he must fight and not box.

Y SENIORS TO PLAY SUB BASE AT NEW LONDON

The Y Seniors will meet the Sub Base five in New London Friday night in one of their most important warm-up games before the Y state championship race starts. The locals beat the Sailors here earlier in the season when they were on a winning spree. However, the Seniors lately have struck a snag and lost three straight games. They hope to pull out of it in New London. Coach Demarest probably will use Les Pingree and Aubrey Brown at forwards, Capt. Rollin Harris at center and Enos Eccleston and Jim Kelly or Al Grebe at guards. Kelly's ankle has been bothering him quite a bit of late and it is doubtful whether he will see action against the Base team.

Dartmouth Makes Unique Record

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 16—(AP)—The Dartmouth athletic council took unprecedented action here today in awarding 1932 numerals to 11 of the ordinarily unrecognized freshman soccer team.

The excellent record of the freshman booters, who lost but one contest this past season and soundly trounced the Dartmouth varsity team in six of seven games, was responsible for the unique award.

CRAIG WOOD WINS PASADENA OPEN GOLF TOURNEY WITH 138

PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 16—(AP)—Craig Wood of the Forest Hills club, Newark, N. J., today won the Pasadena $4,000 open golf tournament with a card of 72-66—138, a two-stroke margin over the field of contestants. Wood's victory gave him first prize money of $1,000.

Wood's victory was garnered over a rain-soaked course.

The strapping New Jersey pro headed out such stalwarts as Walter Hagen, MacDonald Smith, Tommy Armour and George Von Elm.

Playing through the morning in a heavy downpour, Wood traversed the tricky public layout in figures that were only one stroke above par 71. He returned in the afternoon to "burn" up the drenched course with a 66, five strokes under perfect figures.

Wood hung up his smashing card in the face of two bad holes. He needed a five on the par four 15th and a six on the par five 17th. But for a misjudged niblick shot on the former, and an unsuccessful explosion shot while in a trap on the 17th, Wood would have had an even lower score.

Two strokes behind Wood finished Dallas Jeffers, Long Beach, Cal., professional, who also clubbed out a 66 on his final 18 hole round. Jeffers took second place. He was able to do no better than 74 in the morning. Second place was worth $600.

Prize awards were made on the basis of today's 36 hole final drive scores, yesterday's qualifying play having no bearing on the cards.

George Von Elm, amateur of Detroit, finished one stroke behind Jeffers, with 69-72—141. In a tie for fourth, place were Bobby Cruickshank, of Purchase, N. Y., with 73-69—142, and Henri Culci of Bridgeport, Conn., with 70-72—142. As Von Elm's amateur status does not permit the taking of cash prizes, Cruickshank and Culci moved up in the money list, splitting third and fourth place money, each getting $375.

MacDonald Smith of Great Neck, L. I., took sixth place. The Scot, winner of the recent $10,000 Los Angeles open, took $400 as his share of the purse. Smith had scores of 72-71—143.

Tommy Armour of Washington, D. C., and former national open champion, shot a 69 on his morning trip, but blew up in the afternoon, managing to show a three over par card of 75 for an aggregate of 144. He annexed $250.

Walter Hagen, of Detroit, the British open, repeated Armour's performance of a good round on his first 18 and a bad one in the afternoon. The "Haig" did 70-76—146, a cord one stroke behind that of Olin Dutra of Santa Monica, Cal., who finished with 75-70. Hagen was richer by $175 and Dutra by $200.

Others who finished in the money and the amounts each won, follows:

Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles, 75-72—147, $112.50.

Eddie Loos, Pasadena, Cal., 75-76—147, $112.50.

Johny Junor, Portland, Ore., 73-75—148.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

The next conference game comes Friday night at Stonington when Putnam tackles Bill O'Brien's quintet. Putnam will be the favorite to win as Stonington as yet has failed to score a victory this season. Putnam has lost but two games and stands tied for second place in the conference with a victory and a loss. Tuesday night at New London the Academy tackles Chapman Tech, present league leaders. Friday, Stonington will either slip back into a last place tie with N. F. A. by losing, or go into a first place tie with Tech, by winning.

AMERICAN LEGION POST WILL PROMOTE BIG BOUT

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 16—(AP)—Jack Dempsey moved another step today toward final completion of details for staging the Stribling-Sharkey fight here Feb. 27 as conceived by Tex Rickard before his death.

Florida law in regard to bouts was satisfied when the rugged former heavyweight champion signed a contract with the Miami Beach post of the American Legion which will officially promote the match. Boxing bouts may not be held in Florida except under the auspices of the American Legion or the National Guard.

Meanwhile plans for arranging seats for a crowd of 30,000 spectators crowded out of Dempsey's mind any attention he might pay to making a ring comeback himself. With arrival here of William F. Carey, vice-president and treasurer of the Madison Square Garden corporation, Dempsey will have some of the details taken from his shoulders.

The fight, to be staged at the Miami Beach Kennel club, Rickard's property here, will have a range of seat prices from $5 to $25 each.

SEPPALA HAS 5-MINUTE LEAD IN DOG DERBY

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Jan. 16—(AP)—Leonhard Seppala, of Fairbanks, Alaska, behind a husky-dog team, finished first in the opening day's racing of the second annual dog sled derby here today, covering the 14 mile course in one hour, 13 minutes, five seconds.

Mrs. E. P. Ricker, of Poland Springs the only woman entered in the two day derby, was five minutes behind Seppala, her time being one hour, 18 minutes six seconds. H. Mason of Tamworth N. H. driving a team part bloodhounds part setter hounds and part huskies, was fourth.

All dogs were driven in racing hook up of three spans of two and a leader, making seven dogs to a team. Seppala used neither whip nor rein. The course, virtually the same as that of last year, will be followed in tomorrow's race.

HAGEN'S GOLF EARNINGS ATTACHED BY DIVORCED WIFE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16—(AP)—Walter Hagen, golf professional, was served late today with papers attaching his golf earnings to recover judgments and other alleged debts to his divorced wife, Mrs. Edna O. Hagen. Mrs. Hagen's attorney, F. W. Peck, named the noted golfer as defendant in a superior court attachment proceeding.

The papers were served at the Pasadena municipal golf course, where "The Haig" had just completed play in the $4,000 Pasadena open tournament.

HAGEN MAKES PLEA FOR FOREIGN BORN PROS NOW AMERICAN CITIZENS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16—(AP)—Walter Hagen tonight declared for representation of foreign-born golf professionals who have become citizens of the United States on teams entering international competition. He would have the change become effective after this year.

Hagen, who will captain the Ryder cup team sailing for England April 16, made his declaration in behalf of the foreign-born pros at a dinner at his Hollywood home in honor of eight of the 12 native-born players who have been nominated for this year's team. The dinner menu was featured by wild ducks shot by the golf star on a recent hunting trip.

The Professional Golfers Associated has nominated a dozen home breds for the 1929 teams which in addition to the Ryder cup matches will play German and French teams abroad. Ten will be picked to make the trip; eight regular players and two substitutes.

Hagen said that foreign-born professionals now living in the United States who are naturalized citizens feel slighted, and that something should be done to place them on an equality with native sons.

The dinner was attended by Hagen, Leo Diegel, Al Espinosa, Horton Smith, Ed Dudley, John Golden, Bill Burke, Al Watrous, players; Alex Perie, president of the P. G. A., and Robert L. Harlow, Hagen's manager.

Telegrams were sent to Johnny Farrell, Gene Sarazen, Joe Turnesa and Willie Klein, four Ryder cup nominees who are in Florida, regretting their absence and advising them that Captain Hagen hoped to have the 12 together at Pinehurst, N. C., at the North and South open, just before sailing time.

"The biggest objection to selected foreign - born professionals," said Hagen, "originates not in America but in Great Britain, where it is impossible for us to win any recognition or American golf except with native-born players. If one of our foreign-born players wins in Europe, America is not credited with this win, even if the particular player removed from the old country when one day old.

"Two years ago in Worcester we defeated the British with a team of home breds and this year we are going to Europe with a team of 100 per cent home breds. I think in these two matches, one in the United States and one in Europe, that we can demonstrate sufficiently the strength of our native-born professional golf and that in the future we should look at the situation from a broader angle and give our foreign-born players who have become citizens an opportunity to win a place on our professional team.

"There is a certain prestige which goes with membership and citizens of the United States, native or foreign-born, should be entitled to equal opportunity.

"There is no discrimination in time of war when the foreign-born citizens fight as quick as the native-born. There should be no discrimination in sport. We can stand being told in any foreign country that we have won, if we do win, with some of their men, if they persist in taking this view, far better than we can stand the thought that the boys who come over here and become citizens are not getting an even break."

Hagen pointed out that the international matches were, after all, only a game and that the winning or losing of them did not make much difference, so long as the United States was represented by a team of players who conducted themselves in such a manner as to be a credit to America.

He intimated that while his team would of course do the best it could to win, that if Great Britain were to come out on top it would not be a bad thing for international golf.

"There must be," said Hagen, "something like equality in international competition if the keenness is to survive."

Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet.

George M. Cohan,
America's Stage Favorite

NO longer need a trim, slender figure be your envy. No longer need you face the rigid requirements of harsh dieting methods. Overweight is banished when you banish fattening sweets and eating between meals and light a Lucky. "Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet."

20,679 physicians have confirmed the fact that Lucky Strike is less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes. These professional men realize the value of toasting, the secret process that eliminates impurities and irritants. Lucky Strike is a delightful blend of the world's finest tobaccos. And toasting develops a flavor which is a delightful alternative for fattening sweets.

Many prominent athletes testify that Luckies steady their nerves and do not harm their physical condition. Men have long known this and practiced it successfully. These are the men who watch their health, who keep trim and fit, realizing the dangers of overweight. And now, women may enjoy a companionable smoke with their husbands and brothers—at the same time slenderizing in a sensible manner. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

"It's toasted"

Sunshine

A little bit of sunshine,
A sprig or spray of cheer,
Do more to help the weary
Than a frown or gloomy tear.

When your heart is hanging heavy,
Filled with thoughts quite dark or sad,
A little bit of sunshine
Does much to make it glad.

When the day is long and tiresome
And the sky is bleak and gray,
A little bit of smiling
Makes the whole world seem more gay.

The birds will warble sweeter,
The sun glows a golden hue,
Your task of life grows lighter
And the skies have turned to blue.

The thunder roars in the heavens,
Oh, threatening, menacing sound!
The trumpet announcing the coming
Of a torrent to cover the ground.

But after the storm comes the sunshine,
The soil is washed sweet and clean,
And gleaming o'erhead in the azure sky
A sparkling rainbow is seen.

—Virginia Chumley, in The Pathfinder.

The Highway

All day long on the highway
The King's fleet couriers ride;
You may hear the tread of their horses sped
Over the countryside.
They ride for life and they ride for death
And they override who tarrieth.
With show of color and flush of pride
They stir the dust on the highway.

Let them ride on the highway wide.
Love walks in little paths aside.

All day long on the highway
Is the tramp of an army's feet;
You may see them go in a marshaled row
With the tale of their arms complete;
They march for war and they march for peace,
For the dust of gold and fame's increase.
For victories sadder than defeat
They raise the dust on the highway.

All the armies of earth defiled,
Love dwells in little paths aside.

All day long on the highway,
Rushes an eager band,
With straining eyes for a worthless prize
That slips from the grasp like sand,
And men leave blood where their feet have stood
And bow them down unto brass and wood—
Idols fashioned by their own hand—
Blind in the dust of the highway.

Power and gold and fame denied,
Love laughs glad in the paths aside.

—Louise Driscoll.

FORBES AND GRENIER WILL GUARANTEE GOOD PLUMBING

This is the time of year when people realize most what good plumbing has meant.

Forbes and Grenier of 62 Shetucket street, phone 1363, have always done efficient work and they stand ready now to handle your heating problems or plumbing work.

Before rushing ahead kindly why not consult them about plumbing or heating arrangements for your house or garage. Carefully prepared estimates always mean a saving of dollars in a new house. Careless plans, a mistake in radiation or boiler capacity, means the loss of hundreds of dollars during the lifetime of a new house owner.

A few more dollars spent at the start, the installation of a heating plant of sufficient size to properly heat house, and with no need of forcing of tons of coal as the winters roll by.

This type of service, one which looks ahead to the future savings, is the type specialized in by Forbes and Grenier. Let us handle your problems for you, and rest assured that we will handle them carefully.

ELDREDGE HARDWARE CO. KNOWN FOR GOOD HARDWARE

After having been in the hardware field in Norwich for many years we feel that we have the right to claim that the Eldredge Hardware company ranks among the leaders in the city. For years the quality of goods carried at this store has been kept at a high standard. Nothing has ever been handled by this store that has not been looked into by a representative of our firm to see that the good name of this company would not be injured through our selling that product.

At this time of the year we are making a special mention of articles and implements for use about the farm and home.

Of course you know that these things are but a few of many hundreds that we have on hand for home use. We welcome a visit by you at any time. Perhaps there is something you need about your home, something you have long denied yourself.

Come in and see us and let us show you why you should no longer deny yourself. A timely investment saves many dollars. See us and save now.

AETNA BOWLING ALLEYS PROVIDE EXCELLENT SPORTS

The Aetna Bowling alleys, located in the Majestic building, 55 Shetucket street, offers the Norwich people a fine home for fall and winter sports.

Bowling is always a pleasure at this time of the year and at the Aetna alleys you will find seven of the finest alleys in eastern Connecticut fairly tempting you to roll them down the alleys to beat that 100 mark.

For years the Aetna alleys have been conducted in a manner which makes it possible for the men of eastern Connecticut to bring their wives and daughters with them to enjoy a game or two. Alleys at any time may be reserved for women, excepting of course specified alleys which are held for tournament games now underway.

Besides the bowling alleys there are over a half dozen excellent billiard tables. Here again is a game which is as suited for the ladies as for the men.

The policy of the Aetna alleys has always been that of allowing only gentlemen to use its alleys and tables for pleasure and because of this policy has established the reputation of being an ideal place for winter games for the entire family.

LOCAL MERCHANTS CAN PROVIDE FINE SERVICE

Whether it is in the automobile tire business, the hotel business, contracting, or in any other line of business, listed on this page is the firm or the business house which stands ready to give prompt and courteous service.

In rainy or pleasant weather, whether it is hot or cold hundreds of local business men await the calls of the patrons for service, that kind which they alone cannot be provided by the concern in cities miles away.

In particular this is true of the automobile accessory business. A tire or tube purchased from these dealers, if it gives trouble, can be serviced best by the concern from which the purchase was made. If it's radio trouble it's the local dealer who gets the call for assistance. If it's any type of quick service you need—it's the local dealer who supplies it.

Back up this type of local service by trading at home. The local dealer stands ready to serve you—isn't it fair that you should give him your trade?

STOCK MARKET WAS STRONG, ALTHOUGH THE SESSION WAS DULLEST OF YEAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—The stock market developed impressive buoyancy today, although trading was the dullest for any full session so far this year, with total transactions of but 3,670,300 shares. U. S. Steel, the traditional bell wether of the list, came within a fraction of the high mark for the present stock, and Chemical and Public Utility shares made violent spurts.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent, the highest renewal rate since the passing of the year end credit conditions, and held at that figure all day, despite the calling of about $15,000,000 in loans. Time money was scarce around the abnormally high rates of 7 1-2 and 7 3-4 per cent.

The liquidation set in motion by the rising call loan rate yesterday appeared to have run its course by midday today, despite the continued stringency, but the market was left rather thin, with the public definitely holding close to shore until the credit situation clears.

Fears of a rise in the New York Federal Reserve bank's rediscount rate at its weekly meeting tomorrow were less in evidence than a week ago, but the opinion prevailed in brokerage circles that such action may be taken before the middle of February. A rise in the New York rate is expected to be preceded by increases in the rates of the four reserve banks now on a 4 1-2 per cent rate, or by an increase in the Bank of England rate.

An increase in the federal reserve total of brokers loans is fairly generally expected tomorrow, but estimates are vague owing to the heavy financing of new investment trusts. There has appeared a marked disinclination on the part of the New York banks to increase their loans on security collateral, and the loaning rates on stocks have been marked up in many cases. On the other hand, the banks have not been supporting the market for bills in the way the federal reserve authorities have hoped.

Continued optimism of the weekly iron and steel trade reviews were the bright spot of the scant business news of the day. Mill operations were reported to be holding at the December rates, although some delay has developed in the placing of new orders by the motor companies. Steel scrap at Pittsburgh was advanced to above $19 a ton, in contrast to $11 last summer.

Allied Chemical, which closed at 262 yesterday, a drop of 13 points, more than made up its loss today, soaring 18 points to a new record high at 280. Mathieson Alkali also shot up about 15 points in buying largely based on a rumor that Du Pont was negotiating to acquire it. Du Pont interests denied the rumor too late in the session to influence the stock. In the utilities, Commonwealth Power and Detroit Edison made extreme gains of 8 and 9 points.

U. S. Steel touched 172 1-4, just a quarter point under the highest figure since the payment of the 40 per cent stock dividend. Bethlehem, American Steel Foundries, Colorado Fuel and Iron and Vanadium were other issues in this group to sell 3 to nearly 6 points higher. Copper shares stiffened, and St. Joseph Lead jumped more than 6 points. Automotive shares improved. Continental Motors and General Motors selling up about 3 points, and Electric Auto Lite jumping nearly 10 points to a new peak.

Borden Co. gained 8 points in buying in expectation of a stock split up, and Curtiss Aero improved on reports of an affiliation with the Caproni Aviation company of Italy. Pan American Petroleum B was bought in expectation of better earnings from its new refinery.

Radio fell 7 points, but regained most of its loss. General Gas & Electric B lost more than 7 points, and Allis Chalmers slipped back 3.

The commodity markets generally closed higher. Rubber advanced sharply in sympathy with the London market, and cotton firmed up after a series of mixed movements. Wheat was strong, helped by an upturn at Winnipeg, and corn was firm.

Foreign exchanges were quiet. Sterling was steady until late in the day when Cables fell below $4.85.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 16—(AP)—Somersaulting prices turned the corn market end over end today, and established new high-price records for the season, with May delivery vaulting above $1.00. Mixed buying activity developed after rains reported in the drought-stricken Argentine corn belt were apparently shown to be inadequate. Meanwhile wheat demand was stimulated by word that Canadian mills had booked their full capacity four months ahead with trans-Pacific flour orders.

Closing quotations on corn were unsettled, 3-4c to 1 1-8c net higher. Wheat finished 1 1-8c to 1 1-4 and 1 3-8c up, oats varying from 1-8c decline to 3-8c advance, and provisions at 7c setback to a rise of 11c.

Corn trading was spectacular both on account of sudden reversal of price trends today and because of the big volume of transactions, as well as owing to the fact that two out of three of the principal future deliveries of corn have now attained the long-coveted goal of $1.00 a bushel. At first, the market underwent a decided downward swing as a result of Argentine rain advices, but later dispatches indicated that moisture though scattered over three provinces had proved light for the most part, and that dryness continued in Buenos Aires province, easily the heaviest producer of Argentine corn. Moreover, export interests here were credited with buying corn on the decline in price.

Further impetus to the subsequent upward jumps of corn values came from rumors taken that 15 per cent of the United States corn visible supply is now at seaboard points and readily available for export, whereas the seaboard a year ago had on hand less than 3 per cent of the domestic stock. Another bullish factor was evidence of a decrease in country offerings of corn to Chicago, implying that farmers were holding back for higher prices, although at the maximum reached today the market was about 24c a bushel above the season's bottom level.

Wheat displayed strength today from the start. By far the most important development was in the shape of Winnipeg reports of huge flour shipments in progress from Canada to North China, and assertions that some of the flour is going to Russia, besides. Liverpool wheat quotations were higher than expected, and advices were current that much domestic wheat, especially east of the Mississippi, continued under an ice pack, and was therefore in danger of smothering. Oats were swayed chiefly by the action of other grain.

Provisions turned easier on account of hedging pressure and scattered liquidation which more than counterbalanced the effect of upturns in the value of hogs.

STANTON S. THOMPSON DIES AT THOMPSON'S CORNERS HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan 16—Stanton Sheffield Thompson, 82, died early Wednesday afternoon at his home at Thompson's Corners, on the Westerly-Watch Hill road. Three weeks ago Mr. Thompson suffered a slight shock and was forced to take to his bed. Some time ago he fell and broke his hip, from the results of which he never fully recovered.

Farmer Brown's Boy Hears a Complaint

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Never to conclusions jump.
Lest you fall and get a bump.
—Old Mother Nature.

Who stole the chickens? That is what Farmer Brown's Boy was wondering. You see, one of his neighbors who lives a mile or so up the road had come to complain to Farmer Brown that a Fox had been stealing his chickens and that that Fox lived in the Old Pasture. He wanted that Fox trapped or shot. Farmer Brown's Boy had overheard all this.

"Of course," said Farmer Brown's Boy to himself, "it must be true that a Fox has been taking the chickens, and, of course, it may be that Reddy Fox, or Mrs. Reddy, who live up in the Old Pasture, or perhaps both of them, have done this. But somehow I don't believe it. You see, ever since the big storm I have been feeding them. I don't believe they have been hungry enough to take the chance of stealing chickens."

"What I want," said the neighbor to Farmer Brown, "is for you to give me permission to set two or three traps up there in the Old Pasture. Two Foxes have a den up there and, of course, it is one of those Foxes, or perhaps both of them, who have stolen my chickens."

"Perhaps," said Farmer Brown, "it is some other Fox."

The neighbor shook his head. "I have followed the tracks straight up into the Old Pasture," said he. "I know you don't like to have traps set on your place, but neither do I like to have my chickens stolen. Now, what do you say?"

"Let me think it over," said Farmer Brown. "It is a fact that I don't want traps set on my place. My boy used to set traps but he doesn't any more. However, if I am convinced that it is either or both of the Foxes that live up in the Old Pasture, I'll see that they are taken care of. I want to be sure first, however, that they are the ones who are guilty."

The neighbor agreed to this and finally went off. Farmer Brown's Boy at once asked if he might look into the matter and see if he could find out whether or not Reddy or Mrs. Reddy was the guilty Fox. Farmer Brown nodded his head. "Of course you may, Son," he said, "and I don't mind telling you that I hope you will find that it was some other Fox altogether."

He followed them back quite a distance

So that afternoon Farmer Brown's Boy tramped up to his neighbor's house and went out to see the tracks in the snow. He looked at them long and hard. Then he took a little measure from his pocket. "What are you doing now?" asked the neighbor.

"I'm measuring one of these footprints," replied Farmer Brown's Boy.

"What good does that do?" asked the neighbor.

"Well," replied Farmer Brown's Boy, "it looks a little large to me. That is, it looks larger than the footprints of Mrs. Reddy, who lives up in the Old Pasture. It looks to me about the size of the footprints of Reddy Fox."

"Well, Reddy Fox is just the one I suspect," replied the neighbor. "Just follow those tracks right back and you'll find that they lead straight up to the Old Pasture. Of course, it is Reddy Fox. There isn't a doubt in my mind."

Farmer Brown's Boy didn't say anything. He continued to study the tracks. He followed them back quite a distance. It is true that they headed in the direction of the Old Pasture, but Farmer Brown's Boy smiled as he looked across the snowy landscape. He smiled because he knew that those were not the tracks of Reddy Fox and that they were not the tracks of Mrs. Reddy.

MORE TIME NEEDED BY FACT FINDING COMMITTEE

The fact finding committee appointed by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins has notified him by letter that it has not been able to complete its work in investigating the gas and electric department in time to make a report by Jan. 15. The commission, whose members are Albert Boardman, chairman, Martin Cohen, secretary, Adelard Morin, John A. Holland, and Morris J. Bernstrasser, notified the mayor of this situation by the following letter which he received Monday:

January 12, 1929.

The Fact Finding Committee, Norwich, Conn.

Hon. Lee Roy Robbins, Norwich Conn.

Dear Mayor:

The fact finding committee appointed by the city meeting of Nov. 7, to confer with the gas and electrical commissioners and to investigate the city's Gas and Electrical department and made a study of the general situation in order to recommend just rates for gas and electricity, has been very diligent since their appointment, meeting several times each week and gathering a mass of valuable information and data.

We find, however, in spite of our earnest efforts to complete this task within the time specified that it has been impossible to do so with justice to ourselves and the citizens who have placed their reliance on us.

As the importance of the work we have undertaken demands a thorough and complete study to arrive at satisfactory results and as anything short of that would prove valueless, we find it necessary respectfully to ask that you postpone the call of the meeting to receive our report until we communicate with you again.

Very truly yours,

The Fact Finding Committee,

ALBERT BOARDMAN, Chairman.

HOW TO FIGHT EXCESS FAT

There are hard ways, like starvation, but fewer and fewer employ them. There is a pleasant way, modern and scientific, which combats the cause. A vast number of people now use it. And the slender figures now seen everywhere are largely due to that.

That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. And everybody, in almost every circle, sees the change. New beauty, new health, new vitality.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So users have no fear of harm. Learn the facts about Marmola, because of the good it has done. Ask your druggist—now—for a $1 box with the book. Then decide.

Face and Neck Covered With Itchy Pimples. Healed by Cuticura.

"My face and neck became covered with little pimples that were hard and red. They itched and burned so that I scratched them, which only made them worse. I could not sleep or get any rest on account of them. They continued for about six weeks and I thought I would go insane.

"Finally I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a free sample and found that the first application somewhat relieved my trouble. I purchased more and in about two weeks I was healed." (Signed) George Estok, 34 N. Fourth St., Ansonia, Conn.

"Yes, Suh!

... it's the Heart-Leaves that are kind to yo' Throat"

Only a few of these silky beauties grow on each tobacco plant... that's the kind OLD GOLD buys.

"Down here, in my country, where the fine cigarette tobacco grows, every planter knows what keeps the coughs out of the carloads.

"There are three kinds of tobacco that grow on the same stalk. The ground-leaves ['sand lugs' in plantation language] are thin and dry: they have little taste or flavor. The top-leaves ['gummy tips'] grow rank and weedy: they are harsh to your throat. But the heart-leaves ['golden cutters'] are fragrant as a peach blossom and cool as a dipper of spring water.

"OLD GOLD buys the heart-leaves. Just a few golden beauties from the heart of each plant. That's how OLD GOLDS get their 'honey-like smoothness.' That's why you can smoke them mornin', noon and night."

PARIS GROUP FIGHTS RIGHT-OF-WAY DRIVING

PARIS—(AP)—More and more pressure is being exerted to abolish the law giving the right-of-way to a driver coming from the right.

The general council of the Seine department, which is Paris and its suburbs, adopted a strong resolution urging a return to the old practice of according the right of the road to drivers on main highways.

So many accidents are attributed to the present law, the general council said, that is imperative to change it.

Those who support the present practice say it is difficult for a driver to know always the importance of the road on which he is driving, while if the one from the right has precedence the rule always works.

Opponents assert that most of the traffic is on the high roads.

SOUTH AIR LINE LINKS THREE CITIES

NEW ORLEANS —(AP)— Another link is to be added to the rapidly lengthening chain of air highways in the south when service is begun on the New Orleans-Beaumont-Houston air mail and passenger line some time early in the year.

St. Tammany Gulf Coast Airways, Inc., holders of the air mail contract on the route, announced recently that four Fokker cabin planes, equipped with Whitney wasp motors, would be used.

The planes will fly on a four-hour schedule between New Orleans and Houston, leaving New Orleans at 11.30 a. m. daily, stopping at Beaumont and arriving at Houston at 3.15 p. m. In addition to pilots, baggage and mail, five passengers can be carried in each plane.

It is planned eventually to extend the line from Houston to some city on the Rio Grande to connect with air line to City of Mexico.

CANADIANS PROSPECT FOR GOLD IN PLANES

WINNIPEG, Man.—(AP)—As the wagon, so the "twenty-niners" their modern counterparts, are using the airplane in explorations for gold in barren wastes of the Canadian northwestern territory.

Capt. Charles Sutton, former Royal Flying Crops pilot, credited with three German planes, has added three new monplanes to his aerial caravan, which takes expert geologists over territory where gold may be hidden.

The geologists say they can determine from the air where gold-bearing veins are likely to be by exrocks. These sites are marked on a map and miners later are flown to them to do the actual prospecting.

Captain Sutton is chief pilot for Dominion Explorers, an expeditionary subsidiary of the Thayer-Lindsley mining group.

As soon as we can get along without ice it ceases to melt so rapidly.

NEW YORK-MIAMI IN 10 HOURS BY PLANE

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Ray Applegate, Curtiss Flying Service pilot, placed Miami within 9 hours and 52 minutes of New York when he made a non-stop flight to take charge of Curtiss operations at the municipal airport here. His time was the fastest ever recorded for the 1,275 mile trip.

The Sikorsky amphibian biplane which he used has been put into service for the winter residents of Miami who want to fly to Nassau, Atlanta and points along the gulf coast.

GLASS TUBE REPLACES BIRD MINE GUARDIANS

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—The sacrifice of canary birds' lives to save miners from the perils of deadly gases is no longer necessary.

The United States bureau of mines has perfected a little tube, which by changing color, indicates the presence of gas. It is said to detect gas as unerringly as do the birds, which are affected by the creeping poison before it becomes noticeable to human organs.

NEW ELECTRIC MACHINE TO HELP FIGHT DISEASE

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)— Perfection of an electric machine which measures instantly the hydrogen ion concentration of the blood in terms of thousandths of a volt is announced at the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Ellice McDonald, under whose general direction the machine was developed, says that its value is in diagnosis and study of cancer and other diseases.

TAIL WIND HELPS FAST DETROIT-BOSTON FLIGHT

DETROIT, Mich. —(AP)— Lieut Frank D. Klein of the army air crops brought Detroit within three hours and 35 minutes of Boston on a recent flight from Selfridge Field.

Aided by a strong tail wind Lieutenant Klien was in Boston at 8.05 o'clock in the afternoon after hopping into a pursuit plane at 11.30 o'clock in the morning.

YOUNG ARKANSAS FARMER CLEARS $1,091 IN YEAR

CONWAY, Ark.— (AP) — Caridon Potton of Wooster, who held the "best boy farmer" title in Faulkner county, has $1,091.96 to show that farming, as he does it, will pay.

Some Patton's yields included 1,206 pounds of lint cotton on three acres, four tons of oats and five tons of lespedeza hay on three acres and 104 bushels of corn on three acres.

Spray Defies Rabbits

GAINESVILLE, Fla.—(AP)—Dr. W. E. Pieger, state plant board entomologist, has composed a spray solution to keep rabbits and other enemies of tender young foliage at bay. It is made of 1 1-2 ounces of lead arsenate and 1 ounce of linseed oil to each quart of water, and may be applied with an atomizer, or a squirt gun such as is used in the household for killing flies. A spray tank uses too much fluid.

A good appetite isn't necessarily a good thing.

The Lindon Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has received its strangest donation, 67 cents, which was "willed" by a dog. Joey, a fox terrier, hoarded this amount and on his death it was found concealed in his dog house. Joey was paid a cent a day by his master for accompanying him to the station. Much of this money was spent on little luxuries, like cakes. The dog became accustomed to enter a shop with the cent in his mouth and buy a cake. One day he discovered in a neighboring store that he could get two cakes for a cent, and transferred his patron-

SIMON L. EWALD DEAD—ILLNESS BEGAN WITH SHOCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 16—Simon L. Ewald, 65, died yesterday at his sightly residence, 320 Mohegan avenue, after an illness of several years. He is survived by his wife and a daughter, Mrs. George Gadbois, of this city. Mr. Ewald was a member and director of the New London Beneficial Loan Co., and for many years was junior member of the former hardware firm of Lyon & Ewald. Prior to becoming associated in business, Mr. Ewald was employed by various hardware firms. Shortly after his retirement from business about four years ago, Mr. Ewald suffered a shock and since that time he had been confined to his home. A fortnight ago, Mr. Ewald's condition became critical. Mr. Ewald was born in New London, May 22, 1863, and had always resided in this city.

An automobile owned by William D. Harris, 15 Garfield avenue, was stolen last night and has not been recovered. It is a Buick and carries Connecticut registration, 2326. Mr. Harris parked the Buick sedan on Church street and attended to a business engagement. When he returned an hour later the car was discovered to have been stolen. Mr. Harris reported the theft at police headquarters and the police of surrounding cities have been requested to be on the lookout for the missing machine.

Patrolman Henry Sylvia is confined to his home on Ocean avenue by illness, although it is not serious.

ALLYN-PAYNE SITES FOR PROPOSED BUILDINGS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 16—With a favorable report being before the present session of congress recommending the appropriation of $1,700,000 for the United States coast guard and marine corps in this city, it is known that plans have been prepared calling for the location of the new reservation. In the event that the bill for the appropriation as recommended is passed, north of the Thames river bridge and Thames Towboat marine railways. It is understood that the site for the proposed home of the two federal units has already been negotiated for, and that the last property procured is that formerly owned by the late Nehemiah Payne, on the east side of the New London-Norwich highway at the corner of Williams street and Mohegan avenue. Bluep rints showing the proposed site have been prepared. It is stated that the city of New London will donate 40 acres of land adjoining Connecticut College for Women, the property being known as the Allyn property. The merchant marine base will be for the location of ships and their repair, while the coast guard academy will be located south of the location for the establishment of a repair base for the ships. In the event of the bill passing, it is estimated that the members of the marine school will number close to 2,000.

Segovia Master Guitarist

Not only is the playing of Andres Segovia, the Spanish master-guitarist who comes in recital to Slater hall Friday evening, beautiful, sincere and full of exquisite musicianship; his Schubertian appearance and personality of poise, reserve and yet warmth, most interesting; but his programs add much to the wonder and charm of his concerts.

One would think that the long-breathed phrase that begins the Sarabande from the E minor suite, Handel, the opening number of his program for tomorrow evening, would scarcely be effective on the guitar, yet—to quote Lawrence Gilman, critic of the Herald-Tribune—"Mr. Segovia delivers it with an effect of a sustained legato that quite takes one's breath away." Into his program also comes a group written by Bach, originally for the lute (of which the guitar is for us today the closest approximation) and a Hayden minuet.

But in the opinion of Olin Downes of the New York Times, "the most remarkable of Mr. Segovia's performances are not those by Bach, interpreted with so much taste and musicianship, but the pieces, principally by Spanish masters, composed for the guitar." Of these Mr. Segovia plans to play a number here, one of which by Joaquin Turina, is dedicated to him.

In regard to his resemblance to Franz Schubert, mentioned above, many have noticed it in the picture, now famous, used on the posters displayed about town—a painting by Miguel del Pino, a Spanish artist. See adv. for particulars.

At Bulkeley Auditorium.

The following program will be presented in Bulkeley auditorium, New London, this evening by the Society of Ancient Instruments from Paris which appears as the second attraction offered by Connecticut college this year.

2. Concerto Pour Quinton — Bruni

3. Partita Pour Clavecin — Ayrton
   Allagramente, siciliano, toccatta

4. Divertissement Pour Viole D'Amour — Cimarosa
   Introduction, madrigal, largo rondo
   Henri Casadesus

   Quatuor des violes et clavecin

Clavecin-harpsichord pleyel, Paris.

The Quinton, the Viole d'Amour, the Viole de Gambe and the Basse de Viole are the magnificent authentic instruments of the eighteenth century. They are absolutely perfect models which only the great Luthier Francais Marc Laberte has been authorized by Henri Casadesus to reproduce in every detail.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Slapstick that is good slapstick will always bring down the house. "Beware of Bachelors," the Warner Bros.' comedy of newlyweds does just that. It is the uproarious type of play that makes the grouchiest forget his grouch.

"Beware of Bachelors" comes to the Palace theatre today for a run of three days. The story is by Mark Canfield, the scenario by Robert Lord, and the direction by Roy Del Ruth. The cast is headed by those favorites of fandom, Audrey Ferris and William Collier, Jr., this time cast as flapper bride and gallivanting sheik doctor. Clyde Cook, the wee Australian funny man, is in it, too, and Andre Beranger, in another of his bizarre characterizations of the effeminate male and Dave Morris, the mountainous, who first saw the light of day in a circus tent. Then there is the charming lady from Utah, Margaret Livingston.

The tale has to do with the ways and means adopted by the jealous wife to get her medico husband weaned from the lady patients of his clientele, to whom he has been giving unwarranted attention. The startling adventures which she encounters keep the audience in a furore of amusement from start to finish of the clever comedy. And it is with the very good will of the audience that both bride and groom hie them back to the home fires.

Three very entertaining acts of Vitaphone are offered of the usual enjoyable quality in addition to the rib tickling feature.

Lecture at Slater Hall.

From a collection of ten thousand photographic negatives, made in the mountains of Alberta and British Columbia, Dan McCowan of Banff, noted writer, speaker on natural history, has selected two hundred choice pictures with which to illustrate his lecture "A Naturalist in the Canadian Rockies" to be given in Slater hall on January 21 under the auspices of the Business and Professional Women's club. Mr. McCowan, a native of Scotland but with a keen sense of humor has during the past few years gained international repute as a platform speaker. His knowledge of natural history of the Rocky Mountains acquired during a twenty years residence in the region is extensive. He has the happy faculty of imparting to his listeners much of the lore and history of creatures of the woods and wilderness. All his pictures are a delight to the eye of the nature lover and have charmed the many thousands who, seeking for entertainment that is "different" have been fortunate enough to hear and see this splendid portrayal of the natural history and scenic beauty of the Canadian Pacific Rockies.

Palace Theatre.

When we met the Palace manager on the street this morning we asked him what was new and he replied—"Today's the big day". And so we now know that starting today the Palace will offer their second Great Carnival show. The first was presented last spring and won instant praise from Norwich theatre-goers and resulted in new attendance records being established at the Palace. Every possible effort was made to have the winter carnival show exceed the last one in every way. A finer vaudeville bill has been assembled, a funnier afterpiece has been arranged and a great show will be the answer.

The vaudeville will include the Cavaliers in a new and most unusual revuette which claims a thousand and one hearty laughs for every performance. Here is something decidedly different in revues because instead of trying for quantity they rather strive for quality and you can best judge whether they succeeded. There are nine people in this act.

Revue de Vogue is another flash act on this same bill in which seven clever artists will furnish their own conception of a song, dance and musical offering. Giving you just enough of each to comprise a banner offering.

Stuart & Lass will see whether Norwich has a real sense of humor when they let you in on "The Debate", but they have the odds on their side because they win out everywhere. Here is hokum comedy personified and just as you like to hear it.

Ryan and Moore have made a study of their "Song Cycle" and the result is that they have it down "pat" when it comes to delivering catchy tunes. You will surely like this one.

Cycling Martells offer a distinct diversion with their new cycling act and they feature "A Waltz on Wheels" done so cleverly that you will hardly believe it possible to see such grace in dancing done upon single wheels. See if you don't agree with us that this is a real act.

The comedy afterpiece this time is mostly impromptu, meaning that the artists will not plan any particular thing but will rather take advantage of every situation that arises while they are on the stage and turn it into good entertainment. During the course of the afterpiece specialties will be given by the various artists on the bill and the entire show will run longer than any previous show ever offered at the Palace.

"Broken Barriers," the new picture on view at the Palace theatre is one of the pleasantest photoplays of this season. So entertaining did yesterday's audience find it that they applauded long and loud.

It is a tale of love and politics with the emphasis quite on the love story. This portion of the picture is played by Helene Costello and Gaston Glass and they do their parts splendidly. A more darling heroine than Miss Costello would be hard to find.

Vicariously, all of us know of rapacious political organizations and the one in "Broken Barriers" presided over by Joseph Girard in his capacity of Stanley Moore is familiar to nearly every taxpayer. It is excellently done. All of the cast; Frank Beal, Carleton Stockdale and Frank Hagney do a remarkably good job. Mr. Stockdale particularly as the crusading editor stands out.

"Broken Barriers" is thrilling from its beginning, but its thrills of activity based on the fight between the newspaper and the political organization cannot compare with the thrills of the love story. The reporter hero, who is in the position of seeking to ruin the political boss the while he is in love with the boss' daughter, furnishes a series of moments that will live long in the memory of all who see them.

SET HOUSE AFIRE WHILE THAWING PIPES

The fire department was called out by telephone about 10 o'clock Wednesday morning for a blaze in a partition at No. 23 Spruce street, owned by Mrs. Anna Murphy and occupied by Mrs. Helen McIntosh. Two chemical lines extinguished the fire after a hard fight. The blaze ate its way to the second story of the building and considerable damage resulted.

Mrs. McIntosh, while thawing frozen water pipes in the bathroom, accidentally set fire to the partition. She was using burning newspapers to thaw the pipes. Chief Henry R. Taft, Deputy Chief D. J. Brennan, Engine No. 1 and Squad A responded to the call.

HAD TO WORK TOO HARD

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Gave Her Strength

Mt. Carmel, Pa.—"After my second baby was born I had to work too hard and be on my feet too soon because my husband was ill. After his death I was in such a weakened and run-down condition that nothing seemed to help me. I am starting the fourth bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and feel a great deal better. I am much stronger and don't get so tired out when I wash or work hard. I do housekeeping and dressmaking and I highly recommend the Vegetable Compound. I am willing to answer letters."—Mrs. GERTRUDE BUTTS, 414 E. Market St., Mt. Carmel, Pa.

Fighter Does Not Succumb to Cold!

Army men learn to take care of themselves, and they don't pamper colds like many civilians. They knock them out between morning and night; with a compound that comes in plain, pleasant-tasting tablets.

No trouble to carry, and so easy to take; but amazingly efficient, as you'll find out!

Pape's Cold Compound works so quickly, you'll think it luck the first time. And stops grippe or "flu" if you give it time and take several tablets. Pape's way of stopping colds is worth remembering, so remember the name; 35c at druggists—they all have it.

INSTANTLY KILLED IN PLUNGE OF AUTOMOBILE AT TRADING COVE

Harry H. Marcus, 45, of No. 33 Ann street, proprietor of a West Side store, was probably instantly killed early Wednesday morning when the machine he was driving plunged over the small bridge at Trading Cove. The wreckage of the partly submerged sedan was discovered about 4 o'clock by Harold Talbot of Montville who was on his way to his employment in this city. It was about three hours later that state police officers found Mr. Marcus' body in the wreckage and partly submerged.

When Mr. Talbot discovered the wreckage he notified the watchman at the Trading Cove mill and the state police were summoned. Officer Elmer McKenzie and Officer King from the Groton barracks and Dr. John J. Donohue, medical examiner at Montville, conducted an investigation.

The machine, a Hudson sedan, was traveling toward New London. After passing the entrance to the mill property, the machine swerved to the left for nearly 50 feet and then crashed through the fence and 30 feet further on dropped over an abutment dropping about 50 feet. The machine jumped clear of the small stream and landed on the opposite side. Then it turned over on its side and fell into the water.

As far as known there were no witnesses to the accident, which is thought to have occurred around two o'clock. It is said that about 3 o'clock the watchman at the mill noticed a reflection of the lights on the machine, which were still burning. He thought it was a reflection of street lights on waste metal scattered in the vicinity.

When Lieutenant H. J. Albright and Officers Joseph King and William McKenzie from the Groton barracks who had responded to a call received at 6:10 a. m., plunged into the waters of the cove they found the body of Marcus lying on the floor, with one leg protruding through an open side window. The body was frozen stiff and the officers had great difficulty in extricating it. The bank leading from the cove to the highway is steep and was very slippery and the troopers were unable to carry the body.

About 20 men who had gathered at the scene volunteered their assistance and a human chain was formed, with the top man clinging to the railing at the top of the bank and the last man standing in the water at the bottom. The body was passed up from one man to another and in this manner it finally reached the highway. The temperature at the time was hovering about the zero mark and the troopers, thoroughly soaked, as well as several of their volunteer assistants were chilled to the bone by the time the body was finally brought up to the road.

They went into the Mohegan mill to warm themselves and the body was also carried to the mill where it was examined by Dr. J. J. Donohue, medical examiner for Montville.

After completing his examination the medical examiner gave permission for the removal of the body to a Norwich undertaking establishment. The identity of the victim was established through papers found in his clothing.

It was rumored for a while that Mr Marcus' father, Harry Marcus, Sr., was also in the machine, as reports had it that Mr. Marcus was driving his father to New London. Later it was learned that Mr. Marcus, Sr., had left New London Tuesday for New York. The latter's machine was stopped in Stamford by the police of that city who notified him of his son's death. He immediately started back for this city.

Medical Examiner Donohue pronounced death due to a fractured skull. Hourigan Bros., were given charge of the body. Mr. Marcus was well known among the Jewish residents of the city. For some years he had conducted a store at No. 169 West Main street. He is survived by his father, wife and six children, five daughters and one son. He was a member of Norwich aerie, No. 307 Fraternal Order of Eagles.

The will of Aaron Gordon, which has been filed with Judge Nelson J. Ayling of the probate court, makes his two daughters, Mrs. Clara S. Markoff of this city and Mrs. Miriam Gordon Kontoff of Boston, executors and leaves the estate to his wife after making several specific bequests. Mr. Gordon was for many years affiliated with the Max Gordon & Sons corporation, but it is claimed he has left an insolvent estate, having suffered large losses in real estate deals in Worcester.

Two institutions towards which Mr. Gordon was a liberal contributor during his lifetime, the Norwich Hebrew Institute and the Brothers of Joseph synagogue, are remembered in the will, with a bequest of $1,000 to the institute for the endowment fund and $500 to the synagogue. A sister, Bessie Mint of Worcester, and a sister-in-law, Rebecca Epstein, also of Worcester, are each left $1,000.

F. H. BUSHNELL EULOGIZED AT CHURCH FUNERAL SERVICES

A very large gathering of relatives and friends attended funeral services for Frederick H. Bushnell held Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at the Methodist Episcopal church, the interests of which Mr. Bushnell had cherished next to those of his home. The services at the church were conducted by the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, who, in his eulogy said: "Although I have been here a number of months, I had not had the pleasure of knowing Mr. Bushnell at his best, since he has not been himself. But I never before have heard any one man spoken of so universally in such exemplary terms as to character and goodness, as has come to my ears not only from members and friends of this church, but from people of all faiths and beliefs."

Rev. Mr. Potter was assisted in the service by a former pastor of this church, Rev. Frederick C. Baker of North Grosvenordale, Conn., who served the Norwich Town parish in 1884-1885. It was during this period, which was his second appointment that Rev. Mr. Baker united in marriage Mr. and Mrs. Bushnell. In eulogizing Mr. Bushnell, Rev. Mr. Baker recalled how closely he had been associated with him for many years, each summer at Willimantic camp ground, and how through all his experiences Mr. Bushnell had displayed the same high standing to Christianity and loyalty to Christ. "Instead of thinking we are attending his funeral; we should feel that we are attending his coronation," declared Rev. Mr. Baker. The husband has gone to meet his wife where there is no more suffering and is now receiving his crown of glory that has been laid up for him; and what a wonderful meeting it must be.

Mrs. Lewis Aldrich directed the music in the service and accompanied for the singing. At the opening of the service, Mrs. Lewis Irish sang "Take Up Thy Cross," and in closing, Mrs. Albert J. Bailey sang "Face to Face." The bearers were: Charles P., and Nathan S. Bushnell, Frank R., and Harold Rose, Stanton W. Brown and Frederick Portelance.

Burial was in the family plot in Yantic cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Potter read the committal service. Undertaker Charles A. Gager was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The beautiful floral remembrances included: Pillow marked "Brother," Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bushnell; wreath marked "Uncle", Howard R. Bushnell; wreath from the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school; crescent, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Portelance and family; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rose and family; spray of sweet peas, Rev. and Mrs. Francis H. HORNED LARKS RETURN TO SITE NEAR NORWICH

The horned larks are back near Norwich. Two or three flocks of these unusual birds were located Tuesday about 4 p. m., by a Norwich bird student, who reasoned that possibly the severe storm might drive the birds southward for food. Taught by the experience of last year, the motoring party went to Preston Plains. There, near the Dawley place, they were rewarded by the sight of over fifty of the birds.

They were sighted on both sides of the road, feeding in a pasture which evidently had grown potatoes, but has now been seeded down to grain. One member of the party had been disappointed last year in the effort to get a glimpse of the horned larks, so considered it a real triumph to have the rare experience of Tuesday.

Persons visiting the Preston Plains locality would do well to take along opera glasses, for a good look at the feathered strangers.

DONALD ROOSEVELT RICHNER

Harford Boy Nearly Ruined

Thousands of children are robbed of their birthright of health and happiness by awful constipation. Waste matter held too long in their bowels turns poisons which pollute their blood, cause headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, indigestion, biliousness, make them weak, sallow, fretful and underweight.

Don't let your child suffer from constipation until his stomach and bowels are weakened. At the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue or feverishness, stop his trouble quick with California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich, fruity taste. It cleans them out thoroughly, regulates stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally of their own accord.

Thousands of Connecticut mothers are eager to tell of their experience with it. Mrs. R. D. Richmer, 65 Buckingham St., Hartford, says: "My little son, Donald, was nearly ruined by weak bowels before I began giving him California Fig Syrup. He was sallow, bilious, half-sick all the time. Now he's strong and well and full of life. Since this experience I've kept California Fig Syrup in the house all the time for colds and any upset spells."

Protect your child from imitations of California Fig Syrup. See that the carton you get bears the word "California."

Arrested on the charge of attempting to obtain money by fraud through use of a savings bank book belonging to someone else, Charles Bjork, 20, of 20 Grove street, was before the city court Wednesday morning and his case was continued to Jan. 29 to allow him to make restitution o certain articles which it is understood he admits having taken.

With the book he went to the Chelsea Savings bank Monday where he presented an order for $25. The bank officials declined to cash the order and Bjork put the bank book back into the box from which he had taken it in Heller's room. The bank officials notified Heller of the attempt to draw money and stated they could identify the man who presented the order and Bjork was arrested.

It is stated that Heller's room had been entered at least twice before and that a $2.50 gold piece, a $5 gold piece and a stickpin valued at $25 had been missed. It is understood Bjork has admitted taking these articles and has promised to return them. The continuance of his case is to give him opportunity to do so.

YOUNG AND MORGAN ON THE REPARATIONS COMMITTEE

Selection Made by Washington Diplomatic Representatives of the Allied and German Governments—Are to Unofficially Serve on a Committee to Determine the Final Payments to Be Made by Germany—Thomas Nelson Perkins of Boston Was Chosen as Alternative.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—The state department was advised late today that Owen D. Young and J. P. Morgan had been selected as the American unofficial experts to serve on a committee to determine the final reparations payments to be made by Germany. Thomas Nelson Perkins of Boston, was chosen as an alternate.

The selection was made by the Washington diplomatic representatives of the allied and German governments. Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, called at the department to advise Secretary Kellogg of the decision.

The ambassador, as spokesman for the powers interested, said he was leaving for New York to advise the Americans of the decision and to inquire if they would accept should a formal invitation be extended by the proper officials of the various governments. This invitation, however, is looked upon as only a formality as the Washington diplomats were instructed to make the selections.

The ambassador also said that Mr. Kellogg had approved the Americans selected although they in no way will represent the United States which will not participate in the conference. Mr. Young, who is chairman of the board of the General Electric company, has been spoken of as the probable chairman of the committee which will meet in Paris, probably February 4. He was co-author of the Dawes plan for the settlement of reparations.

Mr. Young has said he might not be able to accept appointment on account of the condition of his wife's health, but it is the hope of the selecting committee that he can be persuaded to do so.

Mr. Morgan, a New York financier, has given no indication as to whether he would accept but the publication of his probable selection and that of Mr. Young has been greeted with approval in Europe.

Mr. Perkins, Boston lawyer and financier, was the American citizen member of the reparations commission for two years and is thoroughly familiar with the problems to be taken up.

The foreign members of the committee already have been announced.

POLITICAL RANCOR IN THE OKLAHOMA LEGISLATURE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 17—(AP)—A resolution asking Oklahoma's United States senators to introduce in congress a resolution withholding federal aid for Oklahoma highways until an investigation of the state highway department is completed by the legislature, was adopted today by the house of representatives.

A sergeant-at-arms was called to hold apart Representatives Homer Paul and J. F. Daniels who struggled to reach each other after engaging in bitter debate which preceded adoption of the resolution.

A bill which would abolish the present highway commission was introduced by Representative H. Tom Kight, critic of the administration of Governor Henry S. Johnston.

The house refused to permit a reply to a letter submitted yesterday by Henry W. Leininger, chairman of the commission, intended to justify actions of the highway board.

"BABE" RUTH ATTENDED BURIAL OF HIS WIFE

BOSTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—Babe Ruth, the home run king of baseball today saw his wife buried in the Old Calvary cemetery at Forest Hills. He planned to attend a special mass for her in the Church of St. Augustine tomorrow and then return to New York.

Extremely simple services marked the funeral of Mrs. Ruth, the former Helen Woodford, who lost her life in a fire in Watertown last Friday. Ruth, with tears streaming down his face, sat in silence in the Woodford home while the Rev. Richard A. Burke, curate at St. Augustine's church, read a service which lasted only ten minutes. Floral tributes were piled high around the coffin of his wife.

The burial service was also brief. Standing bare-headed, Ruth seemed unmindful of a light snowfall which prevailed during the service. Mrs. Ruth's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Woodford, and three of her sisters were also present.

HELD ON THE CHARGE OF SMUGGLING ALIENS

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Jan. 17—(AP)—Arrested here by federal agents as the alleged head of a large alien smuggling ring, Captain Joao Lucia Souza, Portuguese-American skipper of the schooner Fannie B. Atwood, was held in jail at Savannah, Ga., today on charges of violating the United States immigration laws.

Declared by immigration officials to have been responsible for the illegal entry into the United States of hundreds of aliens, mostly Spanish and Portuguese, from the Cape Verde Islands, the sailing master was held specifically on an indictment returned against him in New Bedford, Mass., in 1927, which charged that he brought into the country a native of the islands.

Federal agents asserted that he had transferred his alleged smuggling operations from New England waters to the south about four years ago, and had collected large sums from those willing to pay from $400 to $1,000 each to get into the United States.

MEDICAL EXPERTS DIFFER IN HARSH MURDER TRIAL

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 17—(AP)—The trial of George R. Harsh, college holdup man and killer, resolved today into a battle of medical experts, after his mother and other relatives had appeared on the stand in his defense.

The defense rested late today after relatives and 10 alienists had testified that the former Oglethorpe university student was a victim of insanity through habit and illness, and possibly hereditary ailments. The state immediately introduced the first of three physicians who said the scion of a wealthy Milwaukee family apparently was normal and unusually intelligent.

Mrs. George R. Harsh Sr., William, a brother of Milwaukee, and Mrs. J. S. Dicoswy, of Atlanta, a sister, testified briefly before the state began its rebuttal. They said they had made truthful statements to alienists on the death of the senior Harsh and the life of the youth on trial.

ANOTHER LIQUOR LIFE SENTENCE IN MICHIGAN

MANISTIQUE, Mich., Jan. 17—(AP)—The fourth victim of Michigan's habitual criminal law was convicted on a liquor charge by a circuit court jury here today and faces a mandatory life term in prison as a result.

He is Tony Papich, convicted four times previously on similar charges and classed under the law as an habitual criminal. Papich, in whose home prohibition officers found a quantity of wine, beer and moonshine, testified the liquor had been planted there by his wife, who, he declared, wished to be rid of him to devote her attentions to another man. Papich is the father of five children ranging in age from 5 to 15.

Papich maintained he had left home the day before the raid and that there was no liquor in the house then, although he said he smashed a bottle of liquor that he had taken from his wife. Sentence probably will be pronounced Friday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—Howard E. Sutherland, alien property custodian, said today that he had assigned the voting power of between 12,000 and 13,000 shares of the stock of the Standard Oil company of Indiana to John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

The stock, property of Germans seized during the World war, was deposited by Mr. Sutherland with the Equitable Trust companw of New York for the use of Mr. Rockefeller for voting power. Mr. Sutherland explained that he has entire disposal of the voting power of the stock as alien property custodian.

Mr. Sutherland said that he had received the request for the proxies on the stock from Mr. Rockefeller a week ago and a similar request was received today from Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the company. Rockefeller has announced an attempt to oust Stewart from the chairmanship because of the latter's testimony before the senate Teapot Dome investigating committee.

BANK VICE PRESIDENT DEAD; ANOTHER ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

SULLIVAN, Ind., Jan. 17—(AP)—Circumstances surrounding the death of a bank vice president here and the alleged attempted suicide of a bank president in the nearby city of Shelburn were slow in revealing themselves today despite the efforts of several attorneys, bank examiners and county officials.

Edgar D. Maple, vice president of the Peoples' National Bank and Trust company here, was found dead yesterday in the bank in which he was an officer. The body, with a bullet hole in the forehead, was found near an open vault from which, it was discovered today, $4,000 was missing. Also there came today from W. C. Jamison, assistant cashier who found the body, the story of a telephone call to Maple on the night before his death, from a person who asked that Maple be at the bank early the following morning with $4,000. Authorities today adopted the theory that Maple was slain but by whom they do not know.

Meanwhile bank examiners and other officials questioned Jessup F. Blinger, president of the State Bank of Shelburn, who was found yesterday in his home garage unconscious from the fumes of carbon monoxide gas pouring from the exhaust of his automobile. Officers said he apparently had attempted to end his life about two hours after Maple's death was discovered. From Bolinger officers said they obtained an admission that he was responsible for forged notes on deposit with the bank with which Maple was connected. His admission and an examination of the notes culminated in his arrest today. He was held under bond of $10,000 on a charge of forgery.

The forged paper on deposit at the Sullivan bank will total between $80,000 and $55,000, bank officers said after they had made a check.

SIGNING OF KELLOGG PACT AN IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—Bearing the signature of President Coolidge, a brief but portentous document reposed tonight in the archives of the state department to attest that the United States has given is full and unconditional aproval to the Kellogg treaty for the renunciation of war.

The paper, known officially as the instrument of ratification, was signed today by the chief executive in the midst of ceremonies imposing in their simplicity, and surrounded by an atmosphere of solemnity benefitting the supreme importance which Mr. Coolidge attaches to the pact.

In the historic east room of the white house, had gathered the entire cabinet, high officials of the state department, and more than one third of the membership of the senate. They looked on as the president signed his name to the instrument, passed it to Secretary Kellogg for certification of his signature and then followed the same course with a duplicate of the document.

To America fell the distinction of being the first of the fifteen original signatory nations to ratify the pact, but before it can become effective it must be approved by the fourteen other powers in the manner prescribed by their respective constitutions and their own instruments of ratification must be deposited with the Washington government, which is custodian of the original treaty. When this has been accomplished, exchange copies of the pact will be signed by each of the fifteen states.

PROTECTIVE TARIFF SOUGHT FOR FURNITURE INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—A request for increased protection for the $700,000,000 furniture industry resulted in a long crossfire of questioning at the house ways and means committee tariff revision hearing today when it was developed that some of the companies supporting the plea were fined several years ago for violation of the anti-trust laws.

Robert W. Irwin, of Grand Rapids, Mich., representing the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers, testified that foreign imports of house hold furniture were threatening the domestic industry, despite the present duty of 33 1-3 per cent. on cabinet goods, and that higher levies were needed to equalize American and foreign production costs.

Asked by Rep. Rainey, of Illinois, a democratic member of the now defunct National Alliance of Furniture Manufacturers which was held two years ago to have violated the anti-trust laws, Irwin answered in the affirmative but termed the charge an "unjust" one.

CHIEF OF BORDER PATROL WILL NOT ACCEPT TRANSFER

Sumner G. Sleeper, Head of Detroit District, Has Informed L. W. Camp, National Commissioner of Customs That He Would Resign Rather Than Be Transferred to Florida Coast—Asserts That Wherever Liquor is Involved One is Certain to Find Insincerity—Declares That "the Men We Hire in General Are Out of Sympathy With the Prohibition Law and Therefore Susceptible to Graft"—Prohibition Debated in the Senate.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 17—(AP)—Advised this afternoon that he had been transferred to the Florida coast, Sumner C. Sleeper, chief of the customs border patrol here, informed Ernest W. Camp, national commissioner of customs, that he would resign rather than accept a transfer.

He was directed by Camp to come to Washington for a conference and planned to leave tonight.

"I am through trying to enforce the prohibition laws unless I stay here," Sleeper said. "Technically the patrol is enforcing the customs laws, but the unit here is primarily after bootleggers and wherever liquor is involved one is certain to find insincerity."

Sleeper, who came here from Rockland, Maine, in June, 1927, gave out a statement in which he criticized the special customs agents who recently rounded up a number of inspectors on charges of graft and added that "under present circumstances it is virtually impossible to stop rum running on the Detroit river."

"The men we hire in general are out of sympathy with the prohibition law," he said, "and therefore susceptible more to graft."

ANOTHER DEBATE ON PROHIBITION IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—One of the periodic arguments over prohibition overtook the senate today on the proposal to increase the prohibition enforcement fund by $25,000,000, and before the night adjournment wets and drys, republicans and democrats, once more had given expression of their approval or disapproval of the eighteenth amendment and Volstead act. A vote went over until tomorrow.

During the discussion Secretary Mellon was subjected to some caustic criticism for what was described as his "unfriendliness" to the dry cause and there was read into the record a letter from former Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, which declared the treasury head "utterly unfit to have charge of the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment."

When the senate seemed ready to vote on the proposal for the increase offered by Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, a dry, a substitute was put forward by Senator Jones, republican, Washington, also a dry, to reduce the amount to $2,250,000 to be spent in disseminating information in favor of law enforcement and to increase the number of field workers in the prohibition bureau.

Upwards of a dozen senators engaged in the debate on the fund proposal by Senator Harris. Some were argued against the increase, others for it. Some drys were in favor of the additional funds, some were against it.

The criticism of Mr. Mellon was not confined to party lines or prohibition positions. For the most part the criticism of the treasury secretary came from democrats, both wet and dry, and included the observation by Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, that perhaps it would be better to go slow on the criticism of "the new president will not be able to responsibility him."

While the fate of the Harris amendment is in doubt, administration senators are regarded as certain to vote against the increase in view of the opposition to it of Secretary Mellon. The secretary objected to the increase so long as there is no definitely described place to put the funds and suggested that an educational campaign be instituted as a step toward enforcement of the law.

It was this feature of the Mellon letter that prompted Senator Jones to offer his proposal for money to be spent in disseminating information on law observance but that proposal was strenuously objected to by Senators Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, and Broussard, democrat, Louisiana. Blaine said it would amount to a "gratuitous assumption that the people are ignorant of their own laws," and Broussard said he was opposed to giving more money to the "same people who are using poison" to enforce the law.

E. W. HIGGINS TEMPORARY HEAD OF SALVATION ARMY

LONDON, Jan. 17—(AP)—Edward J. Higgins, chief of staff, was tonight temporary political and legal head of the Salvation Army. He will occupy that station until the high council, of which he is a member, elects a successor to Bramwell Booth who was deposed as commander-in-chief late last night.

Army circles today were full of rumors as to what Bramwell Booth and his family intended to do. There were several reports that he was contemplating action in the courts until late this afternoon authoritative circles seemed satisfied that he would accept the decision of the council. If that proves to be the case, the position of the whole army will be greatly simplified.

The council's next task is to select a successor to Bramwell Booth. Most of the conjecture on that point today centered about Commissioner Higgins and Evangeline Booth, sister of the deposed leader and commander of the army in the United States and its possession.

HEARING ON CRUISER CONSTRUCTION BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—Apprehension lest a legislative jam in the senate block consideration of the pending cruiser construction bill today prompted Chairman Hale of the naval committee to demand longer daily sessions.

Hale, who is in charge of the measure which would provide for 15 cruisers and one aircraft carrier, temporarily yielded the floor for work on a deficiency appropriation bill today but in so doing announced that hereafter he desired the senate to convene an hour ahead of its usual meeting time at noon. Senate leaders indicated this request might be complied with beginning next week.

The deficiency bill is only one of a batch of measures awaiting action and the naval chairman showed clearly that he was fearful that if he gave way too frequently for the consideration of other legislation, the warship building program would not be acted upon before March 4.

EVANGELIST McPHERSON FEE MAY CAUSE IMPEACHMENT

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17—(AP)—Ousted from membership in the American Bar association as the result of accepting a $2,500 legal fee from Aime Semple McPherson, evangelist, while he held a position on the bench, Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy today was the object of an impeachment movement.

Members of the Los Angeles county delegation of the lower house of the California legislature in caucus at Sacramento voted as a unit to file impeachment charges against the jurist and seek his removal from office.

The legislators acted after Assemblyman Emory Arnold of Los Angeles had introduced a resolution in the house calling for an investigation of Judge Hardy's acceptance of money from Mrs. McPherson.

HEN IS LAYING EGGS THE SIZE OF A ROBIN'S

NEW BRITAIN, Jan. 17—(AP)—An egg mystery here has nonplussed the owner of a flock of full grown Plymouth Rock hens as to which is guilty of half doing her duty. Each day when the batch is collected an egg the size of a robin's is found in the nests and to make the mystery more absorbing, it has no yoke. Mrs. Patrick O'Day the owner, has noticed the daily occurrance with the interest of trying to learn the cause for the odd act

ASKS INTERPRETATION OF THE MONROE DOCTRINE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—South American relations, expected to play an important role in the administration of Herbert Hoover, were under discussion before the conference on the cause and cure of war at its closing session tonight, when Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, its chairman, made a plea for a new interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine, which she regarded as a stumbling block in the way of peace in the western hemisphere.

The century-old doctrine, she declared, while universally regarded in the United States as expressing an altruistic policy of self-defense, is just as unanimously considered in South America "a policy of military offense." This difference in terpretation, she said, is a serious and constant source of misunderstanding between the two continents.

"The policies which the world links with the Monroe Doctrine," she said in a prepared address, "are those in defense of commerce, big business, economic exploitations, and financial over lordship.

"It is this aspect of our relations to latin countries which has so filled their citizens with dread of unhappy possibilities."

NOT GUILTY OF MURDER OF MRS. GENEVIEVE STULTS

ELKHART, Ind., Jan. 17—(AP)—Harvey I. Smith, 34 years old private detective, carnival barker and preacher, today was acquitted in Elkhart, Ind., in the Elkhart superior court of the murder of Mrs. Genevieve Stults, Mishawaka beauty parlor operator.

Soon after the jury had freed him, Smith declared he intended to solve the mystery of Mrs. Stults's death and that then he thought he would "go into the ministry for good."

During his trial Smith testified that he had studied theology for about a year and that he had preached several times in towns adjacent to Washington.

On leaving the court room Smith shook hands with Prosecutor Glen R. Sawyer. He told Sawyer he had only done his duty as a public officer and added "you will have another case to try, if God answers my prayer."

$220,000 JEWELRY ROBBERY ON PARK AVE., NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—In a smoothly executed invasion of fashionable Park avenue today, four young men held up the Mouboussin Jewelry establishment opposite St. Bartholomew's church and escaped with gems estimated by police to be worth $200,000.

The loss might have been far greater but for the fact that 80 per cent of the stock had been sent to the Miami, Fla., branch of the establishment yesterday, and that the robbers rejected one giant diamond valued at $500,000, because, detectives believed they thought it was too large to dispose of.

AERONAUTIC ASSOCIATION DEPLORES HOUSE ACTION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—Failure of the house to provide for this year's increment of the army air corps' five-year building program was assailed here tonight by the National Aeronautic association, of which Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut is president.

The association declared that in passing the war department appropriation bill the house failed by at least $7,000,000 to provide sufficiently for the needs of the air corps during the coming year and urged the senate to make up the alleged deficiency

In September, 1925, the band won the New England juvenile championship at the eastern states exposition and thereby became known in several states. Later the band competed against four other bands and captured a silver loving cup at a firemen's field day in Plainfield. About one month ago the band was taken over by the Knights of Columbus council, with the sole aim of sponsoring the musical organization as a worthy object.

A survey by state engineers is being made of the highway leading from the city through Mansfield Center to Storrs to present plans to the state highway department for rebuilding the stretch of seven miles and eliminating several dangerous curves. There is nothing to indicate, however, that the work will be done next season. The engineers have taken measurements from upper Jackson street to a point near the Community church at Storrs. The plans are said to call for the elimination of the sharp curves on Spring Hill near the home of Judge L. J. Storrs.

POLICE COMMITTTEE TO PROBE MCLEAN CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 17—The investigation of charges brought against Captain Frank P. McLean of the local police department brought through a suspension issued by Mayor Charles A. Gates on January 12th will be conducted by the police committee according to a vote taken at the adjourned monthly of the common council held tonight. The suspension of Captain McLean was to terminate in a hearing of the charges by the entire common council at the meeting tonight but a conference led to the shifting of the responsibility to the three members of the police committee who are Aldermen W. E. Jackson, Eugene B. Lewis and Arthur J. Dubreuil. The resolution effecting this change was introduced by Alderman W. E. Webber and called for a report and recommendation following the investigation. The suspension as issued by the mayor was read by City Clerk Arthur L. Clark and charged that Capt. McLean left the city without permission and went to Rainbow Inn, town of Bolton, where he figured in an altercation in which blows were exchanged. As a result of this trouble Capt. McLean was arrested by the town authorities and subsequently fined $5 and costs on each of two counts of breach of peace and assault. Not anticipating this change in the method of investigating the charges, Capt. McLean and his counsel, Atty. John Harvey, were present at the meeting. The spectators' gallery was filled to capacity by those who expected to sit in on the hearing.

Regular council business was then taken up, the principal item being a resolution to present five petitions to the general assembly for amendments to the city charter and other civic laws. The resolutions were introduced on behalf of Alderman W. E. Jackson who was not present owing to illness. The first petition was to secure authority to arrange for the semi-annual payment of city taxes instead of the present system. The second was for a charter amendment allowing a change in the appointment of a city engineer. This position which has been vacant since the death of City Engineer Robert E. Mitchell is virtually permanent according to the present code. The third petition was to make Willimantic not liable in case of accident from snow and ice. It was pointed out that Waterbury has such a clause and it has proven most beneficial. The next matter to be presented to the legislature is to secure the privilege of appointing two sergeants of police. At present the officers of the police department include but one sergeant. Another proposed amendment to the charter is called for in the next petition in a request to be allowed to grant an annual appropriation of $5,000 for the public library. The present allowance according to law is $3,500. The final petition is to secure authority to appoint police officers from both the city of Willimantic and the town of Windham. The charter now provides that an applicant for a police appointment must be a resident of the city. Inasmuch as the police court has jurisdiction over the entire town it is felt the present restriction is not consistent.

The preparation of these matters for presentation to the assembly will be made by a committee of two councilmen and Mayor Gates and Corporation Counsel William A. King. A resolution instruction the superintendent of water works to shut off water on all delinquents for failure to pay water rents of over a year standing, was adopted and will go into effect Feb. 12th. City Clerk Clark said that there were 156 such delinquents and that the rents due amounted to about $8,000. The sanitary committee and corporation counsel were instruction to report at the next meeting on the matter of a contract for garage collection. This contract has been held for several years by Campbell Bros. The sewer committee will investigate and report a petition for an extention of the sewer on Chestnut street, north of Lewiston avenue. The resignations of Philip Moore and Panul B. Welch as call members of the fire department were accepted. The advocation of Oscar L. Keith as call member of the department was accepted and was assigned to Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

DANIELSON

PITIFUL CASE REVEALED IN TRIAL OF MRS. DEMERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 17—Some details of the story having to do with the causes leading to Mrs. Yvonne Demers of Southbridge abandoning her six-weeks-old child on a porch at a house in Thompson a few days since was revealed today by Attorney Harry E. Back, who represented her, as public defender, in the superior court at Putnam yesterday, and under whose charge she had been placed for three months, the period of the suspended jail sentence she received.

Mrs. Demers, 31 years of age, is a married woman, but long since separated from her husband. During the past year she became intimate with another man, who is the father of the child that was abandoned in Thompson. When the period for her confinement approached, this man, representing himself as her husband, entered her as a patient at a Worcester hospital, agreeing to pay all the expenses of her stay there. After the birth of the child, Mrs. Demers discovered that the man had disappeared, and it is now quite clearly established that he has gone to Canada.

Left without resources, Mrs. Demers was in a quandary. She had very little money and was in such poor health she was unable to work. Then came a little legacy from the estate of her grandmother. Out of this she went to Worcester and paid $100 on the hospital bill. Unable to properly support her child, she decided to abandon it. Hiring a taxi, she set out with the child on her mission. She has since declared that she selected the house where the child was left in Thompson because it had the appearance of a place where the child would be well treated. She did not know at the time, it now develops, that she was in Connecticut.

In an agreement with First Selectman George H. Hartwell of Southbridge and the chief of police of that place, Attorney Back has permitted Mrs. Demers to go back there in their charge. They will see that she and the child are properly cared for until such time as Mrs. Demers is strong enough to work, when they will find her employment. During the period that the case was being considered in the superior court, Mrs. George L. Gardner of Hawkins street, wife of Sergeant Gardner of the Danielson barracks, acted as her matron.

Hormidos Belac of Willimantic and Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S. The bearers were Henry Derosier, Jr., Camille Guillmont, Victor St. John, Adelard Derosier, Alex Gagnier and Horace Gagnier. Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

During the meeting, Mrs. Edith Jordan, past president, installed Mrs. Hattie R. Bailey as treasurer. Miss Lillian E. Bailey, president of the Connecticut department, W. R. C., gave an interesting account of recent visitations to corps in various parts of the state. In concluding, Miss Bailey presented a gold piece to Mrs. Cora Page, on behalf of McGregor corps, for her faithful work during her term of office. The meeting closed with a salute to the flag and the singing of America.

Announcement was made this afternoon that the monthly community night and business meeting to have been held at South Killingly church Friday evening has been indefinitely postponed on account of the unusual amount of sickness in the community.

Hundreds of people coming home from their daily work had a time of it at 6 o'clock tonight. Streets and sidewalks were a glare of ice and wet with rain, which was continuing to fall. Taxis did a rushing business getting persons to their destinations; in fact, for a time there was more business than they could handle. Hills on state highways were reported in extremely dangerous condition.

There will be no authorized coasting on the streets of Danielson this winter. This is made clear by First Selectman Charles A. Tillinghast, who points out that the selectmen have no authority to close streets to travel so they may be used for coasting and also points out that coasting on streets is a violation of a law of the state. In some cities, where the city charter gives a municipality control of the streets, streets are sometimes closed that coasting may be enjoyed, but that cannot be done here. On the other hand, to prevent accidents it is proposed to sand hills on streets where there has been coasting heretofore this winter. The selectmen regret that this is necessary, but believe it to be better policy than to allow violations of the law and at the same time invite serious accidents.

Tire chains. Get them now. Full supply of all standard sizes, 33 1-2 to 35.5 for cords, 29.440 to 33.606. R. W. Pellett, at the Railroad station.—adv.

C. Clinton Cleveland of the postal force at the Danielson office has been ill at his home for several days.

Mild sleet that came at mid-day today increased the danger of accidents to persons, whether riding or walking.

At a meeting of the directors of the Windham County National bank, Nathan D. Prince was re-elected president, Francis E. Storer cashier and Frank J. G. Bailey assistant cashier.

Members of the board of relief are to begin their sessions with the opening of February.

Charles Chenail, a Wauregan boy, is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. He has a fractured leg, an injury sustained while he was coasting.

Some of the "stub" registrations issued to motorists in this territory in the rush just before the end of the year are still in force, but the regular registrations are coming through to Danielson car owners from day to day.

Fox hunters tell of their dogs starting numerous deer in nearby territory. So frequently does this happen that it would appear that the deer are increasing in number.

A group of girls from the commercial department of the high school are assisting in sending out notices to delinquent personal taxpayers. They are working under the direction of Collector Arthur A. Dean.

Members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., held their January meeting this afternoon at the Westfield Congregational church. They were addressed by W. E. Parker, superintendent of schools.

The first dangerous period of the winter for protected game birds, as to getting sufficient food, is at hand. Snow and sleet cover much of their ordinary feeding grounds.

Should heavy snows come, the borough will enforce a new by-law under which provision is made for the cleaning of sidewalks. This plan was made known today.

Ice harvesting is now underway on some of the smaller bodies of water in surrounding country, this cutting being largely by farmers who store a yearly supply.

Friday afternoon, members of the Roundabout club are to be entertained by Mrs. Harry W. Clarke of Hutchins street.

YANTIC

STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT ERECTS TWO NEW SIGNS

The state highway department recently erected two signs near the home of W. W. Bentley. On the one facing Norwich, it says, "Bozrah Town Line," and on the one facing Fitchville is written, "Norwich Town Line." The Norwich sign would have been perfect had it had said "Speed limit, through the next village 15 miles an hour," in as much as there is a dangerous hill where children coast and many other hazardous places and cars have been known to plow through the main street at over 50 miles an hour daily.

Benjamin Green, in charge of the state highways in this vicinity, lost the index finger of his left hand recently while working on one of the sand digging machines. It is very painful.

The blizzard of seven minutes duration Sunday afternoon made everyone who was out in it know how the one of '88 looked that continued for hours, and covered Yantic in a blanket of snow that lasted for weeks, not disappearing entirely from secluded places until the warm sun of April. The drop in temperature which followed Sunday night's storm to 6 degrees above zero and has lasted all week has caused firemen to work overtime.

Many automobiles have had oil as well as gasoline pipes frozen.

Skating is excellent where the snow has been swept from the ponds. W. W. Bentley's ice pond has made six inch ice already and cutting will begin as soon as that figure doubles.

Mrs. S. Howard Bishop is spending the week in Saybrook.

Mrs. Harry Fishbone and son, Jacob Fishbone are in Boston, where Jacob Fishbone is receiving hospital treatment.

Mrs. Joseph Rogers has returned home from the W. W. Backus hospital where she has been for treatment for the past month.

Rev. Joseph Sutula has returned to his home in Fall River, after spending a few days as the guest of his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sinko, of West Ferguson avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Martin and Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Scott of New Haven were guests of local friends Sunday.

The death of Peter D. Burns of Norwich, formerly of Yantic, and of Timothy Coffee of Stratford, formerly of Yantic, this week, takes two men favorably known to the villagers.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM FREE FROM ANY EPIDEMIC OF INFLUENZA

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 17—Putnam is still free of any epidemic of influenza, according to the latest reports of the city health department. There were several rumors of flu cases during the past week, but investigations conducted by the health officials have proved stories unfounded. City Health Officer Peter A. Gardner stated that several inhabitants of the city and town are afflicted with grip, severe colds and other nasal diseases of minor natures, but as yet no trace of the "flu" has been discovered.

The local health department is in receipt of circulars from the state health department, outlining precautionary methods. Mr. Gardner has urged the public through the press to report to him at once any symptoms of the disease, so as the quarantine rulings may be placed in effect to protect the public at large.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Archibald Macdonald

Final tribute was paid this morning to Mrs. Sarah Macdonald, wife of Archibald Macdonald, Putnam postmaster, and the mother of State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald, when funeral services were held at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church of this city.

The mass was sung by Rev. Joseph D. Casey, celebrant, Rev. Ernest J. Boileau, deacon, and Rev. Father Lavallee of St. Joseph's church, North Grosvenordale, sub-deacon. The Georgian chant was rendered by the choir with Miss Rose Metras at the organ.

The service was largely attended this morning by the scores of friends and acquaintances of Mrs. Macdonald.

Burial was in Grove street cemetery where Rev. Fr. Casey conducted a committal service.

The bearers were John H. Bulger, William Flannigan, West Thompson; A. Maitland, Thompson; Arthur Duvert, Dr. Harry W. Sharpe and Hebert Johnson. There were many beautiful floral pieces.

The stockholders of the Cargill Trust Co. gathered at the banking rooms on Union street last evening for their annual meeting. The most important transaction of the evening was the reading and acceptance of the treasurer's report which showed that the institution has had the most prosperous year of any since its organization four years ago. The reports of other officers of the bank showed that the bank's business increased by leaps and bounds, in fact, so heavily this year that an extra dividend of one-half of one per cent was declared.

The officers elected for the forthcoming year were re-elected as follows: President, Byron D. Bugbee; vice-president, Luther M. Keith; treasurer, J. Dyer Potter; assistant treasurer, G. Stanley Shaw; board of directors, Newton A. Ballard, George S. Bradley, D. B. Bugbee, J. Richard Carpenter, Willis Covell, John Gaston, John P. Grosvenor, L. M. Keith, Lewis Law, George McCollen, J. Dyer Potter, Nathan D. Prince, Leon N. Walker, Silas M. Wheelock, John K. Howard, Boston, being newly elected at this meeting.

During the meeting there was some discussion of plans for the construction of the new building of the Cargill Trust Co., for which the banking house purchased the O'Leary estate a few years previous. At present there is no definite information as to when the officials of the bank will commence building activities but there is some hope that the coming of the springtime will see ground broken, according to the officials.

Temperature mounting from several depths below zero to a point of 30 degrees above this morning, brought a freezing rain storm this afternoon that covered the earth with a glare coating of ice, and threatened the safe movement of traffic on the highways, to such an extent that many drivers refused to attempt to travel with their cars. Windshields were covered with ice of a considerable thickness, impairing vision. Train schedules fell down this afternoon, because of the ice-coated rails.

The state and city highway departments were out with their fleets of trucks, sanding the highways and sidewalks. At a late hour this afternoon reports from the local police station and the Day Kimball hospital indicated that no serious accidents on the highways had occurred.

Sometime during the early morning hours of Thursday, a thief entered the garage of Dr. G. T. Larmarche on the River road, opened the hood of his car and took the generator.

Another of the series of the Well Baby conferences is to be held Tuesday at the Putnam high school auditorium. Mothers in this community are urged to respond to the call of the nurses of the state health department and bring their youngsters to the conference, where regular examinations are made for possible physical defects.

Representatives Leon A. Talbot and J. Otis Fox, Jr., were in Hartford today attending the session of the legislature.

Eugene A. Brousseau of Wilkinson street, after 46 years as a druggist in the Dresser drug store has resigned his position, which took effect Saturday evening. No plans have been announced by Mr. Brousseau as to his intentions for the future.

Rev. Jos. D. Carey, curate at St. Mary's church, is acting pastor in the absence of Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of the church, who sailed Tuesday for Bermuda.

Hunters reported this morning that dogs have started several fox trails but old "Reynard" was able to lead them astray and consequently they were forced to return with no prizes to exhibit. The hunters state that the fox has increased in this section of the country, during the past two winters.

Unknown and insignificant firms have already commenced to flood the mails with unusual opportunities if the person invests in their stock offers. Since there are no means of detecting the financial standing of the concerns local bankers have advised their patrons to be cautious of their offers.

Wednesday morning went down on record as being the coldest day of the year. Official thermometer readings at 6 o'clock were at 14 below zero. An unconfirmed report from the Murray estate in Pomfret was that the mercury stood dazed at a point of 18 below. Reports from the city instruments this morning had the temperature at 5 above.

Coasting was at its height here to-day as youngsters delighted in sliding on the numerous snow-clad hills through the city. The heavy snowfall of Tuesday also coaxed a few of the horse lovers to attempt sleigh rides, as some of the sleighs were seen in the city during today and yesterday. Good sleighing was threatened by the trucks of the state highway department, as the majestic plows broke the roads open, scraping them to the macadam as far as the state lines.

Students of Putnam high school re-vived the old custom of straw riding, Wednesday evening when they secured a pair of horses and a sled. A trip into the rural district featured the evening's entertainment.

William Jones of the local telephone exchange, and R. E. Thurston, general manager of the Putnam division of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., were in Norwich attending a gathering of divisional heads Wednesday evening.

Mrs. E. L. Beebe of Whittemore street spent Thursday in Boston on a business trip.

The pre-Lenten whirl of social functions will commence within another week, since the opening of the season of fasting is but a few weeks off. Events slated to take place in the immediate future will be annual ball of the members of the Putnam Fire department, annual presentation of the Columbian Players of the Cargill council, K. of C., and other activities.

The officials of the New Haven rail-road have accomplished much in the past few days since they launched an effort to improve morning mail train service between New London and Worcester. Officials of the road have been making schedule check-ups each day that have uncovered many pointers as to why the train carrying the important morning mail over the Norwich branch has been so tardy during the past six months. Since the investigation started the train has considerably improved its service and has been delivering its mail cargo to points along the branch on a satisfactory schedule.

A marked improvement in train ser-vice is being exhibited daily by the New Haven road in regards to Train 704, running north over the Norwich branch between New London and South Worcester. The mail train was but a few minutes late in its arrival here this morning, much to the delight of the Putnam merchants and bankers depending upon the prompt arrival of mail.

Joseph M. Lounette, aged 60, died last evening at the town farm in Pomfret. Mr. Lounette has no immediate relatives living in this vicinity. Funeral services will be held this morning from St. Joseph's church in North Grosvenordale at 8 o'clock.

Say Dyspeptics Should Avoid Drugs and Diet

Magnesia Best for Bad Stomach

Drugs are dangerous and Diets usually unnecessary in so-called Acid Dyspepsia, and thousands of people daily dose themselves to their stomach's damage and, without cause, deny themselves the hearty, strengthening food their system requires. Neither drugs nor diet possess the power to destroy the excessive acid in the stomach, which is the underlying cause of nearly all stomach distress.

Good food was made to eat. Stomachs were made to digest this food, and Bisurated Magnesia was made to neutralize the acids that prevent proper digestion. Follow a good meal with a teaspoonful or two tablets of pure Bisurated Magnesia and know the solid comfort of perfect, healthy digestion. The stomach keeps sweet. There is no sourness, fermentation, burning, gas or pain. Thousands of former stomach sufferers do this daily and druggists the world over recommend Bisurated Magnesia. So many people say, "I've tried everything." But before you give up hope, try a little Bisurated Magnesia. See if you don't feel like a new person.

THE CRUISER BILL.

Just a little over six weeks remain in which congress can complete the large volume of business before it. Farm relief which was expected to occupy considerable time at this session will be left for a special session. That that time can be put to good use is apparent but there is a question whether it will be.

With the treaty against war passed, signed and out of the way, stress will be laid upon the cruiser bill. Against this there is evidence of enough opposition to indicate that it will experience slow progress. This is not a new development. It was manifested before the treaty was discussed in the belief that with such a declaration against war there ought to be no action taken that would indicate that we were starting a naval construction race.

The idea of building a big navy just for the sake of spending money has no support from those who are backing the cruiser bill. The idea of constructing more warships for the sake of making other nations suspicious is equally unpopular. Money can be spent in better ways. But when it comes to a matter of giving adequate protection to our commerce, looking out for our widespread interests and insuring adequate defense we need to be awake.

We have expressed ourselves as being opposed to war. We have not denied ourselves the right of self defense, but unless we have the means of maintaining such a defense we are in a helpless situation.

Certain steps have been taken for the limitation of armaments. It was wise and it has worked out well. All nations participating recognize the value of the Washington conference result. Efforts to extend the scope of the naval pact have not been successful and an extension and revision of it will not be possible for two or three years. In the meantime we cannot wisely ignore the weakness of the country in regard to cruisers, concerning which there is no limitation, barring tonnage, and it is perfectly evident that other nations, stronger in cruiser power, are not junking any of their equipment because the peace pact has been signed.

THRIFT WEEK.

When we stop to consider the gain in savings bank accounts, give heed to the manner in which school children are putting away their pennies and note the many who are interested in the Christmas clubs, it is evident that there must be a healthy interest in thrift, although thrift does not necessarily mean simply putting away money.

Nevertheless all efforts in behalf of thrift are commendable, and it is fitting that there should be a special week opening on the birthday anniversary of Benjamin Franklin, that great exponent of thrift, for the purpose of furthering the movement.

It is easy to look in most any direction and note the benefits which have been obtained through thrift. At the same time we are able to observe plenty of cases which illustrate the absence of thrift.

Many an individual has been brought to the realization of the merits of careful planning, buying, spending and saving because of the interest in that direction aroused by the experience of others. To a great many people there cannot be too much emphasis placed upon the importance of overcoming waste. That it is the outlet which directs extensive thought to the merits of sound and sensible use of all things. Instead of rushing headlong into the acquisition of everything the heart desires, whether necessities or rank luxuries, there needs to be thoughtful attention given to the possibilities of the future, and action taken to establish proper safeguards before it is too late.

Looking ahead to the rainy day will not start too early. Too often it never starts at all, and yet those who might have made provisions against the uncertainties of the future and failed to do so are the ones who register the strongest complaints against the hardness of the world. Indulgence in a reasonable amount of thrift by those who are inclined to plunge headlong into expenditures and even debt would remove much of the dependence which so many dread. Thrift week should do much in the future as it has in the past to get people to think right upon such a matter.

THE PRICE OF SPEED.

Regardless of the condition of the highways and regardless of the traffic and the curves, there are drivers who give consideration to nothing except speed. They disregard the rights and welfare of others, even endanger the lives of others as well as their own in their mad rush to get somewhere.

In nine times out of ten there is no real justification for it. They may be in a hurry but not to such an extent as to warrant such chance taking. Too many are the instances like that at Wilbraham, Mass., where the driver of a coupe going "at a fast rate of speed," rounded a slight curve in the road, took a wide turn and crashed into the side of a truck. The truck was sideswiped, the coupe had its entire left side ripped out and din't stop until it had gone 50 feet. The driver was dead. No one else was injured and the truck showed only slight marks from the accident.

No arrests were made for the heedless driving, which was given as the cause, for the accident was due to the man at the wheel of the coupe who had thrown away his life because of his insistence upon disregarding the obvious demands of safety. It was most fortunate that he was not the means of causing the death of others.

There can be no surprise that the state trooper who investigated the accident found therein the best of reasons for scoring the use of public highways as speedways. In view of the number who drive their cars at excessive rates it is a wonder that there are not more accidents for while the cars may be so constructed as to stand the strain it is evident that the drivers do not possess the control of their machines should an emergency develop. It can be readily understood when the trooper declared that frequently speeders are not stopped because it is realized that should such be demanded there would be an accident, and perhaps a bad one.

At Wilbraham it was the speeder who sacrificed his own life because of his unwise practice. Too often it is the case where it means that others are sent into eternity because of just such recklessness.

STATE POLICE.

In the reports which have been submitted to the governor reference has been made to the need for more state police and the desirability of having a special force attached to the motor vehicle department for inspection purposes has been advanced.

In the days when the state police force was established there was need for such an organization in taking care of the many needs which developed among the small towns which had no facilities for combating crime. Since then conditions have changed. The state police are subject to call under such circumstances but they are kept much more busy in looking out for the highway conditions because of the problems that have arisen as the result of the increase in motor vehicle traffic.

Unquestionably there are times when more state police could be used. They have demonstrated in plenty of instances that they are invaluable in dealing with conditions for which they were created and such others as have gradually developed.

In the appeal which is being put forth in Connecticut, support is being voiced from Rhode Island. That state finds that there are many instances when not a man is available to answer the phones in the various barracks thus making it impossible to render the service that is expected.

There are many calls to which the state police are subject. They are expected to cover large territory. They are able to make quick responses but they cannot do the impossible. Likewise the undermanned force cannot operate with that degree of efficiency that is to be expected from an adequate number. When the need exists for better protection it should be met.

RAILROADS VS. BUSSES.

Over in England the railroads are experiencing much the same trouble from bus competition that the trolley and the steam roads have in this country. The trouble is not confined to any one country. It is a case where new methods of transportation are replacing the old and adjustments must be made to meet them.

Reluctance to taking off trains is displayed in England quite as much as it was in the United States. Because of the hardships which the railroads figure they are obliged to shoulder because of their maintenance problems, they have appealed to parliament for relief and have been permitted to employ busses for feeders to their lines. Here again they are following in the steps that have been taken on this side of the water. But there is evidence of a determination to put up a real fight before admitting defeat and giving up service. This is disclosed by the manner in which they have resorted to rate cutting and the establishment of special excursion rates for the purpose of maintaining patronage. If it works it will do more than it has done in this country.

In the matter of passenger transportation the railroads of this country have experienced a decided slump. Where passenger trains were operated it has frequently been the case that freight trains are now moving, and it is no secret that it is in the handling of freight that the profits lie.

For the long trips the passenger business continues to be in big demand, but when it comes to the short distances, especially on branch lines, patrons arn't numerous enough to pay expenses. If that works out so in England, provided bus service is what it should be, there will be no surprise

NAME-PICTURES.

"I'm Mrs. Blapp," explained the visitor, "Miss Remwood's aunt. She promised to keep an eye on Donald here while I did some shopping."

"It's too bad," said Mr. Queerie, "but Miss Rewmood had to run over to Binks and Jinks. Perhaps," he ventured, "your boy would stay here with me."

"Do you think," asked Mrs. Blapp doubtfully, "that you could keep an eye on him?"

"I could keep an eye," boasted Mr. Queerie, "on anything from a bull market to what's his name's comet. Donald and I will get along like corned beef and cabbage, won't we, old man?"

"Uh," grunted Donald.

"Thank you," said Mrs. Blapp. "But be sure to keep an eye on him," she warned.

As the office door closed Donald poked the spring of Miss Remwood's typewriter, letting the carriage shoot across with a bzzt! that made his temporary guardian jump.

"I wouldn't do that, old man," suggested Mr. Queerie, whereupon Donald began a coloring experiment with the red ink and the library paste.

"I wouldn't do that, old man," remonstrated Mr. Queerie.

"Can't do nothin'," grunted Donald.

"Oh, you can do lots of things," cheered Mr. Queerie. "You could—you could sit in this nice office chair. How's that? But I wouldn't spin it around, old man, I had it just the right height. And you're knocking the varnish off my desk when you kick."

"Can't do nothin'."

"Why don't you," offered Mr. Queerie, "er—look out of the window?"

"That ain't nothin'," began Donald, stopping abruptly as he glimpsed the fire escape. A backward glance showed Mr. Queerie studying some papers. Up slipped the window, out slipped Donald, and down cam the window, zam!

"Hey!" called Mr. Queerie, as he saw two feet disappearing upward. "I wouldn't do that, old man! Donald!" he cried, "don't go out there! Come back!"

Hurriedly Mr. Queerie threw open the window and stepped out. He looked up and down. There was no one in sight. The child must have climbed into some one's office. Taking a nervous grip on the rail, Mr. Queerie at length reached the first window.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself," accused a yellow-haired girl, peeking into windows! At your age, too!" she added.

"I'm not peeking," protested Mr. Queerie, "I'm looking for a runaway boy."

"Well, there's no runaway boy here," unbelievingly said the girl. Then, "Oh, I know!" she screamed. "I seen it in the papers—you're the cat burglar! My ring! Jack!"

"I'll protect you, Estelle," cried a husky office boy; "want I should push the gink over the rail?"

"Don't be an idiot!" cried Mr. Queerie. "Do I act like a—"

Burglar?"

"No, cat?" completed Mr. Queerie as he began to crawl upward.

"Don't come up here, you kidnaper!" shouted a voice from above. "Your poor little victim has escaped through my office. Oh, you needn't shake your head. I recognize you."

"Recognize me?" muttered Mr. Queerie.

"Yes, spotted you at once," said the man. " 'He looks like Lon Chaney in the movies,' said your poor little victim, and he was right."

"Victim!" exclaimed Mr. Queerie in tones so wild his hearers tapped their heads meaningly. Slowly he crept down to his own window.

"I wouldn't do that, old man!" warned a childish voice in ludicrous imitation of Mr. Queerie's own.

"Are you a squirrel or just a nut?" demanded Mrs. Blapp. "Running up and down fire escapes while my little pet sits all alone in your office! If I hadn't came back he might have got into mischief." Mr. Queerie mopped his brow.

"You may be a boss in the quill trade," farewelled Mrs. Blapp, lugging her pet through the door, "but I wouldn't trust you to keep an eye on a lame turtle."—Chicago News.

INJECTION TREATMENT GAINING GROUND FOR VARICOSE VEINS

By Dexter H. Witte, M. D.
Milwaukee, Wis.

From ancient times various methods of treating varicosed veins have been experimented with. Drugs have been taken internally and applied externally. Surgeones have removed the veins or cut down and tied them to stop the flow of blood. But drugs proved of little help in most cases and surgical treatment was expensive, not devoid of danger and compelled the patient to remain in bed for some time.

Accordingly search continued for some method of treatment of the simple case, not complicated by general disease or abdominal tumor. Shortly after the invention of the hypodermic syringe in 1851, physicians began to enject various chemicals into protruding veins in an effort to make them shrink up or become solid. But the chemistry of the blood was not understood and drugs used at first caused the blood to form dangerous clots which at times escaped into the blood stream to lodge in some vital area with fatal results.

As our knowledge increased, drugs were found that could safely be injected into blood vessels for treatment of different diseases. During the World War Professor Sicard of Paris, observed that a certain drug containing sodium, which he used to treat a blood disease, would usually cause the veiles into which it was injected to disappear. Accordingly he experimented with sodium compounds in treatment of varicose veins, and now has a large clinic in which he has successfully treated thousands of cases by injection of strong solutions of of sodium salicylate, a drug long used in the treatment of rheumatism.

About the same time the brothers Linser, of Germany, were working along the same line. They used another salt of sodium, sodium chloride, or ordinary table salt, purified and sterilized of course. They have given over 200,000 injections with successful results in more than 95 per cent of cases.

As the sodium salts often cause very painful cramps and may cause ulcers if allowed to escape from the vessel, Professor Nobl of Vienna continued experimenting until he found that solutions of certain simple sugars would usually produce the same results without the complications. He accordingly uses a sugar solution in his clinic and has treated thousands of cases with almost uniform success.

The injection treatment of varicose veins is now gaining favor in the U. S. All three of the solutions mentioned are being used successfully, the sugar solution perhaps being the most favored. Invertose, a mixture of two simple sugars, very similar to the Austrian preparation used by Professor Nobl, is now being used with excellent results, and it seems probable that the day of the troublesome varicose vein and its offspring, the varicose ulcer, is rapidly approaching its end.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Mrs. Reddy Is Freed of Blame.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Be slow, I pray, in fixing blame,
Lest thus you soil an honest name.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown's Boy was up in the Old Pasture. There were Fox tracks in the snow there—plenty of them. Farmer Brown's Boy followed one line of these tracks. When he found a good, clear print of a foot he took a little measure from his pocket and measured that print. Then he smiled, as he wrote the figures down in a little book beside some figures that were there already. The size of the print he had just measured was smaller than the size of the print whose measurement was already written down in the little book.

"I thought so," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "It isn't Mrs. Reddy who has been stealing chickens from my neighbor,

He continued to follow the footprints of the strange Fox.

The Fox who stole those chickens was a bigger Fox than Mrs. Reddy and he doesn't live in the Old Pasture. I suppose I've got to prove that, however."

So Farmer Brown's Boy continued to follow the footprints of Mrs. Reddy and he soon discovered that she was doing all her hunting in a direction quite opposite to the farm where the chickens had been stolen. Then he went back to that farm and followed the tracks of the chicken thief. That they were tracks of a Fox there was no question. The trail led by a roundabout way up to the Old Pasture on Farmer Brown's farm—the Old Pasture where lived Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy. It was no wonder that the owner of the chickens, who knew that Reddy and Mrs. Reddy lived in the Old Pasture, was certain that one of them was stealing the chickens. Farmer Brown's Boy could see the tracks of this man who had followed the Fox tracks clear up to the Old Pasture. There they turned back.

But Farmer Brown's Boy didn't turn back. He continued to follow the footprints of this strange Fox. They led up to the Old Pasture, but they did not lead near the home of Reddy and Mrs. Reddy. They led up through the Old Pasture and finally put of it on the far side. That was all that Farmer Brown's Boy wanted to know. He went back to see his neighbor who had lost the chickens.

"It isn't the Foxes who live up in our Old Pasture," said he to the neighbor. "I am absolutely sure of it. It is some other Fox."

The neighbor looked unconvinced. "What proof of that have you?" said he.

"Well, to begin with," replied Farmer Brown's Boy. "I have measured a number of the footprints of the Fox that stole your chickens. They are considerably larger than the footprints of Mrs. Reddy, who lives up in the Old Pasture, for I have measured her footprints."

Then he opened his little book and showed the neighbor the measurements of the prints.

The neighbor grinned. "Well, that lets one Fox out," said he, "but it doesn't let out Reddy Fox, who also lives up there in the Old Pasture. You will have to admit that these footprints are the size of Reddy's footprints."

Farmer Brown's Boy smiled, but he didn't let the neighbor see the smile. "I see you followed those footprints up to the Old Pasture," said he.

The neighbor nodded. "That is the way I knew it was one of those Foxes up there," said he.

"But you didn't follow those tracks through the Old Pasture," said Farmer Brown's Boy.

"No," replied the neighbor, "it wasn't necessary."

"If you had," said Farmer Brown's Boy, "you would have found that those tracks did not go anywhere near the home of Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy, but crossed the Old Pasture. So that's that. But I have still further proof that Reddy Fox had nothing to do with your chickens."

The next story: "The Final Proof."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—If licensed gunner No. 80 strolled over into Maryland, my Maryland, and began shooting up the scenery and game life without having his tax displayed as per state regulation, would there be any trouble about it? Nonsence. That particular gunner, to wit, the Hon. Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States, undoubtedly can go shooting where and when he will in any state—or in any country, for that matter—and more than welcome. That's one of the privileges of great place in the world's eye.

Never-the-less, it's quite customary and proper for presidents or princes to go through all the forms and motions of obtaining official sanction to practice their whims. The "King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the British Dominions Beyond the Seas, Emperor of India"—which is the modern style employed in designation of the British monarch in treaties and such—must humbly ask permission of the worshipful lord mayor of London to go below Temple Bar in the city. And he always does. That's just a little beau geste to tradition.

Good Politics.

So it was as to Maryland hunting license No. 80. It was good politics on both sides to go through the motions of applying for and issuing the tag. When that oddly assorted trio of Nimrods, Kunnel (cavalry) Latrobe, Kunnel (Kentucky) Starling and the son of the late Kunnel Coolidge of Vermont go a-hunting in Maryland, if ever, you can bet their tags will be in plain sight.

The Bystander is reminded of a time in 1911 when Theodore Roosevelt as former president, was tripping about the rim of the country on various and assorted business. It was this writer's good fortune to make the trip with him as Associated Press writer. Arrived in New Orleans, the party boarded a special train provided by those once renowned Texas Kunnels, both old friends of Roosevelt's, Cecil Lyon and John Simpson.

Everything Ready.

It was against Texas law even then to consume any kind of alcoholic beverage on trains without a doctor's prescription. Also, Kunnel Roosevelt did not indulge. The other two kunnels were right fond of their toddies. And to make everything regular, once Kunnel Roosevelt had gone to bed, the other kunnels called for Cascade and Appolinaris, Kunnel Lyon proudly producing a formal "prescription" signed by the chief health officer of the state and reading substantially as follows:

"One drink every 15 minutes, or oftener if necessary, for Colonel Cecil Lyon and party."

Prosit.

Commendation

The man who slaps you on the back
And says: "You done that fine!"
Will not find that to criticise
His grammar you incline.
His language may not be just what
You would prefer to hear,
But, oh, his conversation falls
Upon a grateful ear!

For praise is sweet to every one;
We always like to know
That people like what we have done
And have them tell us so.
And how they say it we don't care,
When it is evident
That they're sincere; the thing that counts
Is just the compliment

So if you would delight and charm
And please a fellow-man,
Don't ponder just what words to use,
But praise him when you can.
A sweet we all appreciate
Is taffy on a stick.
And never, never, never fear
You'll lay it on too thick.

ICY STREETS MADE TRAFFIC CONDITIONS BAD

There were no accidents reported at police headquarters Thursday evening in spite of the slippery condition of the highways. The light fall of rain, freezing as fast as it fell, coated the sidewalks and highways with a layer of ice, making it necessary for pedestrians and vehicular traffic to proceed at a snail's pace. Shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the employes of the street department were out sanding some of the sidewalks. Reports from the surrounding towns brought the information that many cars were tied up due to icy highways.

AGGIES CLASH WITH MAINE THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Jan. 17—With the Maine university contest scheduled for tomorrow evening in the Hawley armory, the fast moving Connecticut Aggie quintet was given a day of respite this afternoon following the strenuous Tufts game. The Nutmeggers beat the Medford quintet in a close and fast contest by the scant margin of two points following several baskets in succession by Ray Ryan, varsity forward and acting captain in the last few minutes of play.

The game tomorrow will be the second on the list of three contests which the Aggies are to participate in within four days. Saturday evening the Blue and White hoopsters will travel to Amherst where they will resume athletic relations with Massachusetts Aggies following a breach of two years. The latter contest was scheduled after the list of games had been posted.

Only one hangover is evident in the camp of the Aggies following the sophomore center, sprained his ankle sophomore center, sprined his ankle while playing in the first part of the last period that made it necessary to call time and have it taped. While attempting a running shot under the basket, the Nutmeg center overran the floor and fell into a row of chairs that caused a slight cut on his forehead and the injured ankle. The pain has left the injured ankle and it is very probable that he will start the Maine game.

CONN. GOLFER ELIMINATED IN NATIONAL TITLE QUEST

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 17—(AP)—With elimination of Bob Wingate, Jacksonville, the defending champion, in the first match of the day providing the major upset, play in the national tourney of golf club champions went to the semi-finals today.

Arthur Manucy of St. Augustine defeated Wingate on the 19th hole and then fell by the wayside himself in the quarter finals at the hands of 17 year old Jock Cattell of Jacksonville, who won the qualifying medal yesterday.

Cattell today marched to the semi-finals with little effort. Tomorrow he faces Carl Dann, Jr., of Orlando.

In the other bracket, the semi-final match finds Harold Webber, Toledo, Ohio, pitted against Albert Hakes, Dunkirk, N. Y.

Webber's "double" birdie on the 12th was the high light of the afternoon's play. The Toledoan's tee shot hit a crow, killing the bird, and he laid his next shot dead to the pin to go down on his third stroke for a birdie.

Quarter final result this afternoon: Cattell defeated Manucy, 5 and 4. Dann beat Robert Stranahan, Westport, Conn., 2 and 1.

Webber won from William Duckwall, Chicago, 4 and 3.

Hakes defeated Franklin Gates, Montclair, N. J., 4 and 3.

FINISHERS PLAY BALTIC FIVE THIS EVENING

At the Baltic gym this evening the long deferred game between the U. S. Finishing company quintet and the Baltic Independents will take place. Baltic will use its regular team, Wilcox and Depot, forwards, Ridgeway, center, Roode and Blanchette, guards.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

As regards the decline of basketball in Connecticut and the utter rout of the sport in Norwich, the following from James C. Keefe in the Waterbury American, an article written to him by a former Winsted high school and later semi-pro star, William Shea, in which he puts the blame for loss of interest in the court game on too much whistle blowing, may interest:

The very fact that basketball was eminently popular in days when officials never thought of changing the rules and when the dribble and personal play were very much in use is sufficient proof that the old style of basketball was liked by the fans. When the writer played on the Gilbert high school team, he found no lack of interest in basketball. Later when he joined the Winsted Goldenrods he found no lack of enthusiasm. For five years, from 1920 to 1925, he toured the state with that quintet and he remembers distinctly the packed houses, the rabid crowds; and at home, too, he remembers the turnout of fans, that usually taxed the capacity of the auditorium here.

And what were the conditions of play in those days of basketball's prosperity? There was individualism, plenty of it, there was teamwork, and there was the much abused dribble; all greatly in evidence. The people wanted the individual player, there was the color to the game, and by the way, every sport, no matter how great or small, will have individual stars, because all players are not equal in ability, some always being superior to others. That is a fundamental law, individuality. As for the much-maligned dribble, it added zest and speed to the game. A dribble, in the writer's opinion, should always be legitimate. Scoring points is the aim in basketball, and it matters not how it is done, whether by passing, dribbling or long shooting.

Shortly after strict refereeing came into evidence and basketball officials began changing rules, the game started to decline. People would go to a game and see and hear nothing but the referee. He supplanted the star, he blew his whistle for every minute infraction, team play of all kinds was demoralized, and the contest deteriorated into nothing more than a foul shooting contest. This necessitated further changes, but they could not repair the damage done—the people lost interest, and the game has nearly died. Many a time has the writer stood on a basketball court and watched the referee order stars out of the game from the floor—stars for whom the people paid their good money to see play; many a game has the writer played, only to stand about half of the 40 minutes to watch one side or the other shoot fouls—towards the end, in fact, it was difficult to get even a "sweat-up" so many times were the contests interrupted by the shrill whistle of the official.

You can't have popular basketball with the autocratic official blowing the whistle every ten seconds for a plethora of rules enacted by so-called basketball officials and for which the fan has no use. You can't save an enthusiastic following so long as the stars of the game are banished for minor infractions. You can't resurrect the game again by enacting more rules and attempting to curb individualism.

The whole trouble with the game today is too much referee, too many rules. Basketball has lost its zest by the effeminate regulations, by effeminate referees, and at present is nothing more than a good girls' game. Johnny Beckman, the famous individual star of the Celtics, has drawn thousands of followers to the game. Connecticut officials by their strict refereeing have driven thousands away.

DANIELSON TOWNERS FACE STIFF BATTLE WITH LOWELL TEAM TONIGHT

Probably the fastest team to be seen in Danielson this year will be staged when the Danielson Towners play the fast Sacred Heart team of Lowell in Town hall tonight.

The Sacred Heart team comes to Danielson with a very enviable record and are in a class by themselves. The teams they have conquered to date are the U. S. Marines, Scranton Minere, Pierre Marquettes of Boston, Boston Clowns, Philadelphia Colored Giants and Boston Whirlwinds and it goes without saying in basketball circles that any team that can beat the above teams must have some team of their own.

This is just what the Lowell team has and as the Boston Globe states, they are just one great team. It is hoped that the fans will appreciate such a team as this coming to Danielson and will be out to show their appreciation. This team has lost but one game in its tour of the New England states during the last month.

Danielson has been practicing hard for this event and will put their regular team on the floor in hopes of adding another victory to their string. Williams will be at center with Armington, Gallup and Godreau at the forward positions while Heach, Burke, Poirier and Longo will play the guard positions. There will also be a fast preliminary at 7:45.

BIG TEN FOOTBALL OFFICIALS SEEK RICHER GAMES

CHICAGO, Jan. 17—(AP)—Revolt over the failure to get increased fees has broken out among many leading football officials of the Western conference, John L. Griffiths, commissioner of athletics, admitted today. The officials, dissatisfied with the regular $50 fee, are filing schedules for outside games, drawing fees ranging from $100 to $150 for each contest.

The regular sum in the Big Ten is now $75, while in the East, the South and on the Pacific coast, the standard fee for all important games is $100, with many of the best officials getting as high as $200 to $250 for some big games. In case the minimum fee is paid an additional $50 is added if the officials must make an overnight trip to arrive at the scene of the game.

The dissatisfied officials declare they are not on a strike, nor antagonistic to the Western conference, but are filing their schedules with games in which they will be better paid. They see no reason, they say, why the conference should not remunerate its officials with fees similar to those paid in other parts of the country.

With huge stadiums completed in practically every Big Ten school and crowds averaging better than 30,000 in the conference, the officials believe the slight increase they demand is too trivial to be an issue with the directors of athletics.

INVESTIGATING ALLEGED "TWILIGHT SLEEP" DEATH

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 17—(AP)—The death of 18 year old Helen Haskew inmate of the New Mexico girls' welfare home as the alleged result of an injection of twilight sleep today became subject of an official inquiry by a legislative committee headed by Governor R. C. Dillon.

Closely following announcement by Prosecutor Eugene Lujan of Albuquerque that charges would be filed in connection with the girl's sudden death, the chief executive opened a hearing at the state institution and heard the testimony of Faye Graves, another girl inmate. Miss Graves testified that twilight sleep had been administered to her eight times, as far back as last October.

AFGHANISTAN'S NEW KING ERSTWHILE REBEL LEADER

LONDON, Jan. 17—(AP)—Afghanistan had its third king within the short space of a week tonight, reports from Moscow purporting to be of Kabul origin indicated.

The new king was Hatibullah Khan, a rebel leader whose nick-name, Bacha Sakao, means "water boy." His ascension followed abdication by Inayatullah, younger brother of Amanullah Khan, from whom Inayatullah gained his throne only a week ago.

Although the reports had been confirmed from no other source, there seemed little inclination to question them. In fact, dispatches from New Delhi, British India, said that Bacha Sakao was in control of the Kabul area.

Preliminary game at 7:45.

Tonight at the Y gym the Academy plays its third basketball game of the season, meeting the strong Bryant-Stratton Business college five of Providence in one of the feature games of the year. The main game is expected to go on about 8:30. A preliminary between the Y Emps, the city's leading junior team, and the Willimantic State Trade school, will be called at 7:45.

In the main game the Wildcats will be after their second victory of the season. Last Friday in Putnam the Red and White dropped its opening game and then reversed the decision against Pratt high of Essex at the Y Monday night of this week.

Coach Courtland C. Whitney will present his strongest lineup in an effort to turn back the Little Rhody invaders. Many who have seen the team play predict that once the Academy gets experience it will be a tough team to beat. It is doubtful if the locals have received much of it so far. Tomorrow night at Torrington N. F. A. meets Torrington high.

MYSTIC

LOCAL AVIATION FIELD AND PARKING CONSIDERED

At the meeting of Mystic chamber of commerce held in the office of L. E. Vatet, Tuesday evening the two principal items of business were first, in regard to having an aviation field in Mystic; Joseph Santin was delegated to find a suitable place and secure as much information as possible in regard to aviation; secondly, William L. Main has offered to let merchants who come to work in their cars, park the machines in the open space at the rear of the Main block. This will undoubtedly work out well, as a number of cars are parked along the streets all day, and sometimes it is impossible for a driver wishing to park but a short time, to find a place.

THE FARMER MUST SETTLE HIS OWN PROBLEMS.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

When Paul Revere reached Lexington, that foggy April morning, bearing news that the redcoats were marching out of Boston, and the clanging bells sent the alarm over the sleeping countryside, the angry farmers pulled down their long-barreled guns and started for the village green, each one by himself and, so far as he might know at the time, for himself.

They didn't wait to be formed into companies or platoons or even squads. They didn't wait to have ammunition, or supplies or orders served out to them. They didn't wait to be instructed as to where they should "form" or where they should "deploy" or where they should "fall back." They grabbed their guns, slung the old powder horns and bullet bags over their shoulders, dropped a few spare flints into their pockets and set out, each one down his own farm lane or around his own barn, for the hamlet at which their enemies were aiming.

Emerson's famous phrase of "the embattled farmers" gives to many a wrong impression—the sense of battle lines and ranks of riflemen blazing away at the disciplined files of the British. As a matter of cold fact, these farmers potted the red-coats much as they had been accustomed to shoot at bear and deer, from behind trees or stone walls, or any other shelter and ambush, each one for himself. There might, indeed, have been a small knot of them near the rude bridge which spanned the little creek just out of Lexington. But even that was not pre-arranged or ordered. It just happened so, since this seemed to several of them a good spot to fight from. But the great majority "went it alone," in the usual pioneer fashion, and never thought of asking what the plan of battle was, nor whether their flanks were protected, nor whether there were reserves anywhere to fall back on.

That little affair, which succeeding battles made significant and historical, illustrates forcibly one of the changes in the makeup of New England farmers which has taken place since that time.

Then every one was his own boss and hired man, as well, at the same time. He was wholly unaccustomed to either giving or taking orders.

He just did things; did them himself, for himself and by himself. That was the way he plowed, the way he planted, the way he harvested, and when emergency arose, the way he fought.

His house, be it manor or log hut, was his castle; he was himself its garrison; he was both general in command and private with the gun; his farm was his principality, from which he drew practically all his own supplies, and on which he lived independently of the rest of the world. When a need arose—any need, whether of labor or of defense—he prepared to meet it from his own resources, in so far as lay in his power.

There is still something of that old spirit and personal independence left among a few New England farmers. But over the rest of the country, it seems to be sadly missing. It has become a rarity, even among the hills and intervales where it flourished of old.

Now-a-days, farmers like other men seem to be infected with the herd spirit. They want to go in flocks and droves. They must have leaders. They must act by and through organizations. Instead of camping, gun on knees, upon their own doorsteps to defend their own rights they want some one else to defend them.

Especially the government.

No matter what goes wrong a large part of them promptly unite in the demand that government "do something."

There are no more bears to shoot, no more wild Indians to hold off, no more British invaders to fight. But, if there's a drought, or a grasshopper invasion, or a hail storm, or labor grows greedy, or profiteers gobble too hoggishly, or some crop produces a glut in the market—small matter what it is that happens, the howl immediately rises that government must "do something" to prevent or cure or punish.

Now, I am not entering the lists to defend even "the spirit of '76,' I recognize as readily as any one that different times make different manners. The strategy which was all right in days of flint lock muskets and three-pounder cannon doesn't fit these times of high powered rifles and bomb-dropping airplanes. The times change, and we change with them, whether we want to or not. I'm perfectly willing to admit that I don't think a scattered gathering of undisciplined farmers, each banging away on his own account, would make much of an obstacle to a regiment of "doughboys" armed with modern rifles, with popping machine guns on their flanks and armed airplanes flying overhead, dropping "tear-gas" or "mustard gas" shells or some like bedevilments.

But,

Haven't we any fighting spirit of our own left? Has our "spunk" all avaporated? Haven't we carried this appeal to government a leetle too far? Wouldn't some measure of return to the sturdy self-independence of our sires be an improvement?

It would seem that I am not alone in asking such questions. The other day the Toledo (O.) Blade concluded an editorial with this paragraph:

"The farmers could do no better when leisure gives them a few moments for hard thinking than ponder upon the value of those governmental institutions which, at least by advertisement, are established for the special good of agriculture. Are the bureaus and the hordes of bureaucrats worth the price at which they come? If not then what are they worth? How much better off is agriculture under a complex government than was agriculture when government was infinitely more simple?"

That's worth serious consideration. How much better off is agriculture today right here in New England, than it was before government undertook to coddle it, like a sick baby in swaddling-clothes?

Oh, yes, I understand fully about the wonderful advances in farming tools. I appreciate the value of the mowing machine, and the self-binding reaper, and the silo, and the tractor, and the scores of other inventions which have made farming easier. But the stubborn old question still rises: Is New England farming any more prosperous than it used to be? While one man may say, off-hand, that it is, a half dozen deserted homes on what used to be profitable farms will offer mute but irresistible witness to the contrary.

"Let George do it," is the slogan of the age, on the farm as truly as in the factories and the shops.

"I'll do it myself," was the spirit of the olden days.

Had the farmers of Lexington and Medford and Malden and Concord, when the wild bells' clangor told them of the British advanced, waited for government to "do somethin'" about it, that advance would not have been halted and turned into a shameful retreat and rout.

Said one old farmer: "I never get as much work done when I sit in my chair and say 'Go, boys, and hoe that corn, as when I grab my own hoe and yell, 'Come, boys, and help me flush it up'!"

The simple truth is that farming is a matter in the hands of the farmers—not the government.

It will be successful in just so far as the intelligent and strenuous work of the farmers themselves makes it so; not through any governmental favors or mollycoddlings.

It is still true that those who would be free themselves must strike the blow. It is no less true that the farmer who would win deserved success must win it by his own efforts. "There is no discharge in that war." Nor is it one for which substitutes can be hired. Outside agencies may somewhat help or somewhat hinder. But they are side issues, at the best. The work of making each farm a success must be done on that farm by that farmer himself.

And he'll never do it by tumbling on his nose at the first growl of the thunder and praying government to save him.

How and in what way each farmer is to do this is up to him. There is no use trying to lay down specific rules. The fight is and always must be, in farming, a fight of outposts, where each scout must do his work under the conditions before him. The tactics which govern big set battles are of small value to him. He must take things as he finds them, plan his own strategy, do his own shooting and take his own risks.

In a general way there are three things which may be said:

First. The farmer must revert to what are sometimes sneeringly called "old-fashioned ideas" of thrift. He must learn to save the little odds and ends; he must make the most of every small help; he must contrive some way to make even the wrath of his bug and weed enemies serve him.

Second. He must work—and work like the Old Scratch at times, whether he feels like it or not, whether the signs are propitious or not, whether he can get help or not. Did you ever stop to think that practically all farm machines have been invented and manufactured to make work easier? Not, as they should have been, to facilitate and insure the doing of better work? The farmer's work is hard, at the best. Nothing can ever turn it into play. What he needs is not so much advice or machines to make it easier as to find out some way to make it count for more.

Third. He must plan his campaign for results. He must find out not only what his land will produce, but what, in that list of productible crops, is likely to sell best. He must stop raising wheat or potatoes or hay, if those crops are going to be a drug on an overstocked market. He must, somehow, find out what things he can raise which other people will want in French cabinet.

to buy at good prices. Then he must raise such things. It may be he'll have to put the old corn-lot int red raspberries. Or the old potato-patch into cabbages. Well, why not, if red raspberries and cabbages are in biz demand at high prices, while corn and potatoes can't be sold for enough to pay cost of raising? His work isn't to raise what he happens to find it easiest to produce, and then hunt up customers to take it off his hands at any old price, but to raise what the other fellows want so badly that they'll bid against each other their eagerness to get it.

Of course, these are only general suggestions. Equally of course there are other factors in the problem. In truth no two farmers' problems are quite the same.

My point is that each one must be met by the farmer and settled by him, sooner or later. He might as well tackle it, first off, and find out whether he's a winner or a fizzle. The longer time he spend grumbling and whimpering to government for help, the more he postpones the day of decision.

This doesn't mean that he shouldn't avail himself of all the knowledge and all the experience which he can rake, scrape and gather from whatever source. He isn't required to build a Chinese wall around his farm to keep out ideas as well as automobile thieves.

But it does mean that he's got to save himself, if he's to be saved at all. "We've got to do it ourselves, brethren."

IN THE SENATE.

Lieut.-Governor Ernest E. Rogers presided in the senate in the absence of Governor Trumbull in the south.

Many of the veteran leislators were returned to committees on which they served last session, notably Senator Smith, of Manchester and Representative Lynch, of West Haven, who went to cities and boroughs; Senator Hall, of New Haven and Representative De Lacour, of Stratford, military affairs, and Representative Clark of Haddam, appropriations. To Mr. Mitchell, of Woodbury, went the house chairmanship of the committee on finance, while Senator Parsons, of North Canaan, took the chairmanship which was held for two sessions by U. S. Senator-elect Walcott.

The committee assignments confirmed the forecast that Senator Peasley, of Cheshire would be senate leader and Assistant Attorney General Johnson of Manchester, majority leader of the house.

Senator Lavery, of Fairfield, had two plums, as he became chairman of both the committees on aviation and motor vehicles. Senator Durant was also another senator with considerable work before him being chairman on the committee on education and also state parks and second member on contingent expenses.

Senator Hall, of New Haven, who failed to make the judiciary committee, was made chairman of military affairs and also railroads.

Of the democratic senators, Lawlor, of Waterbury, fared better than the others, inbor being his chief committee, Senator Hackett, democrat, as expected, went to education.

A protest made by Senator Frank S. Bergin, minority leader in the state senate today called attention to the fortunes of the democratic members in both branches at the hands of President Pro Tempore Wilcox in the senate and Speaker Samuel A. Eddy in the house.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

FRANK RANGA WAS HONEST BUT GOT IN WITH CROOKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 17—Frank Ranga, 23, of 125 Orient street, was in the police court today charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, but because of insufficient evidence to warrant a trial of the case being in the possession of the acting prosecuting attorney, a nolle was ordered. Ranga and three others came to New London a week ago and started to obtain subscriptions which they represented would be used for the American Mission association, of Boston. The four men had been in New London but a short time when Ranga went to the residence of Patrolman Frank Linehan, on Jefferson avenue, where he requested a contribution. The police had received information several months earlier that this gang were frauds, so that Ranga's solicitation for money resulted in his being arrested. When his companions learned of Ranga's arrest, they fled from the city in a Ford automobile in which they had driven here. Following his arrest Ranga was presented in court, but the case was continued until today for the purpose of permitting the police to obtain additional information relative to the money-seekers. This they were not able to do, other than to receive information from the Worcester police that the other members of the gang had police records and that they were considered crooks. The police in Worcester, however, did not have a record against Ranga, although he was known to the department. Ranga when arrested said that he had but just started at work soliciting funds for the Boston mission and that he had been assured compensation of one-third of the amount he collected.

Unnecessary Alarm

The fire department was called out this forenoon for a supposed blaze in the building 13-15 Atlantic street, occupied by Charles Brax, cobbler, and the Immanuel mission, the latter a home for Negro worshippers. In reality no fire existed except in a stove, neither was there need of the services of the department. Brax started a fire in a stove and the chimney flue being defective, caused the smoke to enter between the partitions and make its way throughout the building. Some excited person caused an alarm to be sent in from Box 232, corner of Atlantic and Water streets, calling out Chief Thomas Shipman and several pieces of apparatus. It was then ascertained that there was no fire.

COURT TREATS ACCUSED AND ACCUSER ALIKE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 17—James Pappes, proprietor of a soft drink establishment at Uncasville, and Stanley Leitkowsky, of that place, were presented before Justice of the Peace Oscar Church at Montville this afternoon, charged with breach of the peace. Both cases were nolled upon payment of costs of court. Pappes was in a pool room yesterday and when he and Leitkowsky engaged in a quarrel, the former is alleged to have kicked Leitkowsky in the groin, inflicting a painful injury. Leitkowsky made complaint to the state police and Officers William MacKenzie and Joseph King arrested Pappes. This afternoon Pappes lodged a counter-complaint against Leitkowsky and he also was arrested. In view of the circumstances attending the row between the two young men the court saw fit to dispose of the case with like penalization of Pappes and Leitkowsky.

GALES FERRY YOUTH IS MISSING FROM HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 17—Rocco Janette, 18, of Gales Ferry, is missing from home and the state police and New London police have been requested to search for the young man. Janette is described as weighing about 130 pounds, of dark complexion and when he went away he had on a pea coat. He went to his work at the Submarine base this morning and about 9 o'clock complained of being ill, requesting that he be permitted to go to his home. The request was granted, but Janette did not go home and his whereabouts have since remained a mystery to his parents. When it was discovered that the young man was missing the request that a search be made resulted.

But a solitary case of intoxication awaits the convening of the police court tomorrow. A fellow, who was liberated at the county jail today, was back in a cell tonight for he was arrested by Patrolman William Riordan, who found the inebriate on State street.

L. E. Dunn, 33 Dell avenue, left at police headquarters tonight a traveling bag containing principally mechanic's tools, which bag was found on Ocean avenue two days ago by Dunn's son.

CITY OFFICIALS DISCUSSING POLICE DEPT. SHAKE-UP

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 17—A shake-up in the police department of New London appears to be imminent and it would not be surprising if before April 1, when the city's budget becomes operative, the personnel of the department were materially changed. For several weeks there has been a persistent report that certain changes in the department were about to be made and with the recent suspension of one patrolman, reports have gained credence, so much so that the contemplated changes are being discussed by city officials and members of the city council. City Manager William A. Holt, when asked regarding any intention of changes being made in the department's personnel, stated that he was not aware of any such plan. However, it is reported that certain changes will be made before April 1, for several city officials feel that a lack of discipline exists among the members of the department and that a change is necessary to obtain more efficient work and a stricter conformity to rules and regulations. Immediately following the McCaskey hearing, Capt. Charles A. Pinney issued a statement in which he made it known and in most positive language that any further violations of the rules and regulations by the men under him would result in charges being preferred, while Lieut James C. Sullivan and Desk Sergt. William T. Babcock addressed the night and day force, respectively, in which the patrolmen and day sergeants were informed that the rules and regulations must be adhered to or the offending officers would be compelled to answer charges at hearings before the city manager. Following these instances it is said that the matter of obtaining stricter discipline has been discussed by city officials and that to obtain that end a shake-up in the department is necessary. It is common talk among the members of the department that the change is contemplated and its announcement is anticipated within a few weeks, or when the changes proposed have been decided upon.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

The Vitaphone talking picture which opened yesterday at the Broadway theatre, the title of which is "Beware of Bachelors," gives the green-eyed monster, jealousy, a run for his money. The family squabble takes place in the home of a young doctor whose wife thinks he has been paying too much attention to his lady patients. Her protests, tears, tantrums and warnings proving of no effect, she decides to give the errant youth a taste of his own medicine.

He is rather astonished to find his lady among the missing—and later to discover her in one of his familiar night clubs, where she is meeting gentlemen on pleasure bent—among them a French perfumer of temperamental disposition, and an elephantine butter-and-egg man.

The office calls of the doctor's lady patients are rudely interrupted by the spitfire bride—his peace of mind is gone—his business fails off, yet he is having no more disillusioning experiences than his wife—who has encountered obstacles not on her schedule.

"Beware of Bachelors" is treated in a hilarious vein, and it has that quality which keeps an audience at chuckling point from the beginning to the end of the show. Miss Ferris and Mr. Collier are very amusing and likable as the squabbling couple. Andre Beranger, remembered for other bizarre characterizations, is amusing as the perfumer, who yearns to express his varying moods with perfumes of varying violence. Dave Morris is ludicrous as the huge pursuer, and Margaret Livingston plays with zest and charm. Roy Del Ruth has done an exceptionally fine piece of direction, no opportunity for laughs or touches that interpret character being omitted.

"Beware of Bachelors" is an exceedingly clever treatment of a subject which has been gone over by story-writers and dramatists from the beginning of time. There is a whimsical unexpectedness, a charming youthfulness about it, and in spite of the slapstick elements in which it abounds, it has real heart interest. You'll like the rioting newlyweds. Be sure to see them in "Beware of Bachelors."

Breed Theatre

Rinty fans, and who is not a Rinty fan, will be delighted to know that the Wonder Dog comes to the Breed today for a run of two days. In Warner Bros. latest starring vehicle, "Rinty of the Desert," Rin-Tin-Tin is first seen as an outcast dog, who leaves the regions of sand and cactus, by way of a passing truck, and finds himself at home with old man Marlowe and his pretty granddaughter, Mary, keepers of a small dime museum. Mary's young man, Pat Casey of the police force, becomes a friend of Rinty's. The big-hearted dog, not contented with his limited friendships, also adopts a litter of orphan puppies.

All goes well till Mason, a dishonest partner of Marlowe, lures the old man away. Pat Casey and Rinty go in search of him. The gang capture and imprison Casey, and escape, leaving him to be attacked by a ferocious bull-dog. Rinty is accused of attacking his master, and sentenced to be shot. Then begins the exciting action of the play—action which shows Rinty more alive than ever! Fiery! Agile! Brilliant!

Harvey Gates adapted the Frank Steele story for the screen. Audrey Ferris, Carrol Nye, Paul Panzer and Otto Hoffman are in the cast. Ross Lederman directed.

Palace Theatre

Norwich has something to talk about once more. Not that the city lacks for things to talk about, but rather because something decidedly unusual has happened and they like to talk about it. This time it is the Gala Winter Carnival Show which opened yesterday at the Palace theatre. And what a show it turned out to be? Every act on this great bill of vaudeville received recognition from a large and enthusiastic audience which did not seem to want the poor actors and actresses to get any rest at all.

The regular bill on the stage ran as follows: Cycling Martels opened the show with a neat and distinct novelty wheel act, during which they featured their Waltz on Wheels. Then Ryan and Moore came out to entertain in their own cycle of Doings which won instant response from the Palace fans. They had to do two encores before the audience would permit them to bow off. Then came the Revue de Vogue, a flash act with seven people who have specialized on songs, dances and music, and they, too, found the Norwich theatre-goers a warm audience to work for with the result that they put every ounce of "pep" they had into their performance. Next to closing was held down solid by Stuart and Lass in "The Debate," a howling comedy hokum skit packed with a thousand laughs. Fifth on the bill was the "Cavaliers," which carries nine specialty performers who can do more than an act with 60. Every one is a finished artist and how they did make the packed Palace resound with laughs at their efforts. Truly this was a great bill, but the real "punch" that stopped the show "ice cold" was the great after-piece staged by the manager of the Palace and in which every act on the bill played a part. It started so unusual that you could hardly figure out what it was all about. Everyone seemed to be getting in the other's way and the comedy that surrounded these antics had the audience howling from start to finish.

If you like a thrilling story in your photoplays and at the same time want to be certain that you need blush neither for yourself nor your neighbor, note the fact that "Broken Barriers" fills the requirements.

"Broken Barriers" opened yesterday at the Palace theatre and nothing too good can be said for it.

The story is splendid. Credit Caroline F. Hayward for this. The cast is ideal. Credit Helene Costello, Gaston Glass, Joseph Girard, Frank Beal, Carleton Stockdale and Frank Hagney for that. The whole mise en scene is fine; credit the producers, Excellent Pictures Corporation, for that. This is a picture of all assets and no liabilities.

"Broken Barriers" tells of a crusading newspaper bent on accomplishing the destruction of an arrogant political machine. The newspaper has the information, the power and the will to proceed. It only runs into complications when its star reporter, the head and shoulders of the assault, runs into pleasant danger; he falls in love with the daughter of the political boss.

There is the theme of the story and what a dandy it is! It certainly makes an ideal picture; our restrained opinion is that "Broken Barriers" is one of the most supremely entertaining film features shown here in a long while.

Thrilling and clean; just as wholesome as it is thrilling, and there is no dearth of excitement. The sort of picture all folks enjoy, from the young folks just beginning to pair off all the way up to their elders, who know through taxes all about rapacious political activities as they know love through marriage and children. See it.

"This way saves the clothes, too" says Mrs. Wm. Casey, 2 Hickory St.

"No wonder everybody around here is talking about Rinso. I'll never forget the first time I tried it. Talk about surprises. The wash was white as white can be —yet all I did was soak and rinse!

"I'll never go back to old-fashioned soaps again—because I can see how the scrubless Rinso way saves the clothes. And how good it is to my hands, too!

"I use Rinso for dishes, and for all household cleaning. I like the suds—they're so thick, creamy and lasting."

Mrs. Wm. Casey, 2 Hickory St., Norwich, Ct.

This famous soap is so economical

Because it's a compact, granulated soap, one cupful of Rinso gives more suds—does more washing—than two cupfuls of lightweight, puffed-up soaps.

And when it comes to washing clothes snowy-white—nothing equals Rinso. For only Rinso can give Rinso whiteness.

And so safe! You can trust even your finest linens to Rinso's gentle care. No scrubbing—dirt and stains soak out. No wonder clothes and hands are spared!

No wonder the makers of 36 leading washing machines say, "Use Rinso for whiter washes and safety!"

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

BULLS ACTIVE IN THE STOCK MARKET; CALL MONEY REDUCED TO 6 PER CENT

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—The stock market showed the most pronounced strength of the week today, as a moderate ease in the call money market prompted short covering and restored bullish confidence.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent. but was reduced to 6 per cent. as funds were attracted by the high rates of the past few days. Bankers, however, failed to see any substantial improvement in the credit outlook, and regarded the 6 per cent. rate as merely temporary. This attitude was borne out by persistent firmness of time money.

There had been but little thought of an increase in the New York federal reserve rediscount rate this week, and what uncertainty was still felt on this point was largely dissipated in the morning by the Bank of England report, showing no change in its rate and a sharp improvement in its reserve ratio. In fact, the British bank's position was so improved that Wall street no longer expects a higher rate in New York to be preceded by an increase at London.

Traders were less concerned over the close, as no important change was looked for in either direction.

The reserve compilation, announced after the close, showed the unexpectedly large increase of $71,000,000, bringing the total up to $5,384,000,000, or within about $10,000,000 of the high total for all time, reported on Dec. 5. While the New York banks reduced their loans on security collateral approximately $90,000,000, the out of town banks, corporations, and others placed more than $160,000,000 into the market.

The federal reserve bank delivered an unexpected blow to somewhat brighter attitude taken toward the credit situation, announcing earmarkings of $20,000,000 in gold, against imports of slightly more than $5,000,000. With sterling hanging about the incoming gold point, there had been some expectation of renewal of the gold movement from England, but continued earmarkings are regarded as indicating that the reserve bank will not increase its holdings of the yellow metal.

There was little in the day's business news to affect the market. Reports that rolling mills in the Youngstown district were working at capacity, and better demand for structural steel, further attested the excellent condition of the steel industry. Directors of Gulf States Steel proposed an increase in authorized common stock and the granting of rights to purchase one new share at $60 for each two shares of common or preferred held.

Metal shares generally moved forward. U. S. Steel touched 173 3-8, the highest price since the 40 per cent. stock dividend two years ago. St. Joseph Lead was again heavily bought, mounting nearly 11 points to a new high, reflecting its excellent earnings last year. Chile was the favorite of the generally stronger coppers, mounting about 8 points, as reports that Anaconda would make an exchange offer to minority stockholders were revived.

Rails generally improved. New York Central moving up 5 points to 194 as favorable action on its petition to lease its large controlled lines was freely forecast. Motors made fair progress, Packard gaining more than 5 points, and merchandising shares generally rallied. Sears Roebuck gaining about 5 points. In the utilities, Peoples Gas made a 6 point advance on formation of the new Insull Holding company.

Radio was a high flier, surging up nearly 18 points, but losing about 5 points of its gain later. Electric Auto Lite shot up more than 11 points to a new top, and By-Products Coke climbed 9.

Otis Elevator fell back 10 points on profit-taking and Mathieson Alkali lost nearly 4 on denial of reports that Du Pont was negotiating to acquire it. Allied Chemical yielded 3 points to realizing.

The commodity markets were generally steady. Corn improved on further reports of unfavorable weather in Argentina, and wheat was firm. Cotton made some headway during the session, but encountered profit taking toward the close.

The foreign exchanges maintained a firm tone, sterling ruling slightly higher during most of the day. Francs were higher, presumably reflecting the increased gold holdings of the Bank of France.

GOLDSTEIN PAINT SHOP BADLY GUTTED BY FIRE

At .30 o'clock this (Friday) morning, the paint and hardware store conducted by Robert H. Goldstein, 92 Water street, was badly gutted by fire of undetermined origin. The fire department responded to a telephone call and on arrival, a bell alarm was pulled in from box 161, Water and Commerce streets. The fire, which evidently started on the ground uoor had worked its way up into the second story. Several lines of hose were quickly laid and the streams directed onto the pames on both uoors. At press time the firemen were fighting the blaze from both front and rear of the building.

At 3.10 flames broke through the roof and it appeared as if the building was doomed.

UNION

Sunday afternoon the young blizzard from the northwest, which lasted surprisingly long, brought the coldest wave thus far. Monday morning, Jan. 14, the mercury ranged from 2 to 10 below zero.

Monday night and Tuesday morning there was a real snowstorm with a depth of about six or eight inches on the level. The hemlocks and pines, laurels and even leafless trees, were loaded with a feathery snow covering, which made a scene like fairy-land when the sun shone out brightly, after the storm had ceased.

Corporal Stanton L. Bradway of Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont, is visiting at the home of his uncle, Ralph A. Bradway. Corporal Bradway's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bradway, and his brothers and sister were in the midst of the Florida flood last fall. They suffered financial loss, but escaped personal injury.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Proulx and and little daughter, Shirley Mae, of Putnam recently spent a day at the Thayer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Holcomb R. Howard attended the meeting of Stafford Grange Tuesday evening when Deputy Harold K. Hansen of Coventry was present for the installation of the officers of Stafford Grange.

Rev. and Mrs. Henry A. Coolidge were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Coolidge in Ellington Monday.

Stephen Veigaska, Jr., is at the Johnson Memorial hospital recovering from a recent surgical operation.

Mrs. Floyd Firestone and little son, David, arrived at their home in Ann Arbor after a safe and comfortable journey from here. They were unfortunate in being taken ill with influenza soon after reaching the parsonage and were under a doctor's care for several days. They were making a good recovery, before starting for their return to Michigan and seem to be continuing to gain in health and strength.

Rev. H. A. Coolidge was ill the past week, but recovered strength to preach last Sunday. He had the same trouble which his daughter and grandson had, after arriving from the west.

NATIVE OR NO. AFRICA PREACHES AT LOCAL CHURCH

Nelson Schlegel, pastor of the Congregational church was unable to preach Sunday morning, being confined to his bed with a severe cold at his home in Hartford. Harold Smith, a student of Hartford Theological seminary preached in Mr. Schlegel's absence. Mr. Smith was born in northern Africa, of English parents, missionaries in that far-off country. Mr. Smith will be graduated this year, and will then marry and take his bride to North Africa, where he will be a missionary.

Owing to the unfavorable weather there was no C. E. meeting Sunday evening.

Former Norwich Man Weds
(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—Arthur Milroy Rochette, 25, formerly of Norwich, Conn., but at present of Newark, N. J., and Elizabeth Rose Healey, 19, of Harrison, N. J., obtained a license to wed at the Municipal building here. They will be married in Manhattan.

The bride was born in Harrison, the daughter of Francis and Rose Edmundsen Healey. Mr. Rochette is the son of Arthur and Frances Rochette. He was born in Norwich.

S. S. Hahn, Los Angeles attorney, said that he had obtained a writ of execution from Judge James G. Conlan of San Francisco yesterday in which payment of $18,000 alimony and nearly $10,000 accumulated interest was demanded of Cliff Durant, automobile manufacturer, by his former wife, Mrs. Pearl Durant.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Waiter (in London restaurant)—Dinner here is a la carte, sir.
Newrich—Well, wheel it along, me lad.—Punch.

Astronomy Professor—Name a star with a tail.
Absent-minded Stude—Rin Tin Tin.—Dry Goods Economist.

He—Dearest, will you marry me?
She—No, I can never marry you, Jack; but I shall always respect your good taste.—Montreal Star.

Caller (to hostess' child who has just returned to room)—Well, little man, did you find out what H-o-o-v-e-r. spells?
Bobby—I asked daddy an' he said it was Prosperity.—Boston Transcript.

"John, I wish you'd dine in the dining nook."
"What's wrong now?"
"You've got one foot in the kitchenette."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Hello, Peck, I hear you have an addition to your family."
"Yes; two."
"Oh, twins, eh?"
"No, a baby boy and my wife's mother."—Boston Transcript.

The play-teacher thought the children knew how to play Blind Man's Buff. She blindfolded one little girl, and when the child did not move she asked "Why don't you play?"
"Where's the cigarette?" came the unexpected answer.—Life.

"Did you have much call for mistletoe this year?" asked the last-minute shopper.
"Might as well have stocked up with high shoes, ankle-length underwear and hatpins," growled the dealer.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

KALEIDOSCOPE

The human body consists of about twenty-six thousand billion cells.

The famous Kohinoor diamond is in the crown of the queen of England.

Skim milk contains all the valuable food elements of whole milk except fat.

A truck for city milk delivery which can be operated from the running board has been devised.

Pellagra, a disease of man, and black tongue, a disease of dogs, are found to be due to the same kind of dietary deficiencies.

A method of putting out fires by freezing the flames with solid carbon dioxide at 100 degrees below zero has recently been devised.

Chips of marble from the famous Carara quarries are to be utilized for chemical purposes instead of being chiefly wasted, as in the past.

Perches have been placed on lighthouses near Britain, so that birds that become confused and fly around the bright lights may no longer fall exhausted into the sea.

Scientists recently grew wheat plants to maturity in a greenhouse in 13 weeks, raising them in a water solution containing the necessary plant foods and giving them only artificial light.

A pigeon beat a telegram from Hinsdale to Sanford, Me., in a 100-mile race of the Sanford (Me.) Racing Pigeon club. A telegram from Hinsdale stating that the pigeons had started was delivered in Sanford 12 minutes after the first bird had arrived.

The cat comes back, but so does the pig. Not so long ago Ray Pike of Brentwood, N. H., sold a young pig to a man who lives two miles away. The pig was put in a bag and carried to his new home, which was a perfectly good one, but the little pig was not contented. He got out of his pen, traveled about a bit and in two days was back in his old pen. He showed all sorts of affection when he saw his mother, and she was just as glad to see him, which as not always the case when pigs are separated for even a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stowe of South Essex, Mass., have a rather remarkable cat. She has made a nest for herself in a hole in a tree 40 feet from the ground, and there she has a thriving family of kittens. She comes down regularly for her own feed and then returns to her sky parlor to take care of her family. It is said that perhaps the reason for this peculiar household arrangement is that kitty, never having been allowed to rear a family, is determined to live where there will be no interference in her housekeeping.—Boston Globe.

CHESTNUT HILL

Residents have received cards from Mr. and Mrs. Christy Oehlers who have arrived at their destination, Miami, Florida. They made the journey from New York by automobile and report a pleasant trip and that they are desirably situated.

JEWETT CITY

ASHLAND COMPANY OWNERS PLANNING BIG BUSINESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 17—Various rumors as to the ownership and future plans of the Ashland Cotton company, which was sold late in December are pretty well subdued with the statement now made public by officials for the present owners.

The United Merchants and Manufacturers Co., Inc., are the purchasers of the Ashland Cotton company, which has been known as such since 1863, and as it will continue to be known under the new ownership.

Homer Loring one of the best known figures in the textile industry is president of the new concern. The vice president, Lawrence Marks, of Corn, Wall and Marks Co. of New York, is equally well known in the field of textile converters.

Contrary to the general belief the Ashland Cotton company will not lose its cotton identity and as a matter of fact will manufacture more cotton fabrics than it has for several years back. The cotton products of the company will be of finer grade and of more varied construction than ever before. This will necessitate the junking of some of the present machinery which will be replaced and added to by modern equipment.

New combers are to be installed immediately as well as new picking equipment. Cards are being reclothed now. From three to five hundred new looms will be installed when the expansion program is completed, but many of these new looms of the most modern type will be installed as soon as the present schedule of improvements permits. The balance of the new weaving machinery will be placed in the new additions, now under construction and on which work is being rushed.

Rayon is here to stay and considerable of the output at Ashland will be of this fibre. Ashland enjoys a most enviable reputation in the rayon market and is one of the largest if not the largest manufacturers of this fabric in the United States.

A new elevator is being placed in the tower of No. 1 mill and various other improvements are under way which will be productive of faster and more efficient handling of stock in process.

Of particular interest locally is the fact that the Merchants & Manufacturers Co., Inc., is the holding company of a number of textile mills in New England, but that the business of each plant will be handled locally and not through a central office.

Lewis M. Carpenter, agent and treasurer of the Ashland Cotton company since 1919, will continue at the plant.

This mill has been one of the most prosperous in eastern Connecticut for the past ten years, running night and day practically all of that time under the management of Mr. Carpenter and the outlook is exceptionally bright now, with the added facilities for handling the business which the mill is capable of securing.

At Zegeer's store, brand new ball dresses particularly beautiful, made of high grade georgette with silk slips. Prices reasonable. Sold for cash or easy terms. Come and see them.—Adv.

ICE TIES UP TRAFFIC UNTIL LATE AFTERNOON

With the mercury at 33 degrees at a little after two o'clock, Thursday afternoon, the light rain began to freeze, with the result that the state road and sidewalks were covered with ice. In the curve at Tadpole close to a dozen motor vehicles were for the time being put out of commission. While chains were being hurriedly adjusted by some of the drivers, others were trying to get a start on the grade by means of blankets and bags spread over the ice. For close to an hour, as the traffic kept filling in from both ends the road was impassable. The Connecticut buses kept up an irregular schedule most of the afternoon, but were able to move at any time, if the alert drivers saw a loophole. The south-bound 2 p. m. coach left Jewett City at 3 p. m., having been held up 45 minutes in the Tadpole jam. At five o'clock a rise in temperature of 3 degrees with its resultant fog soon softened the highways and ended traffic troubles during the early evening.

Finn's tonight, China night. Also Companionate Marriage, with Betty Bronson.—Adv.
